POLICE CLOSED in on a group of separatists who tangled with some NDP supporters after the socialists refused to join in the separatist chants. Prime Minister Trudeau was making an east-end rally address Friday night in the Montreal riding of Hochelaga when the scuffle broke out. Police carted off the small group before further trouble erupted. (CP Wirephoto).

Scuffle Erupts At Trudeau Rally

Five Dragged Away

MONTREAL (CP) — Police dragged five separatist demonstrators into a paddywagon at a Friday election campaign rally addressed by Prime Minister Trudeau.

At this point they moved in swiftly, placed four men and a woman into the paddywagon and drove off with them.

Other separatists stayed to boo Mr. Trudeau, who had little trouble before and after the arrests in verbally handling the demonstrators.

Most of the crowd of 1,000 were on the Liberal leader's side, applauding his jibes at the heckling separatists who chanted slogans such as "Trudeau is a traitor."

Police said the scuffle arose when separatists tried to get some NDP supporters to join in the anti-Trudeau chants. The NDP people refused and the shoving started.

Mr. Trudeau, in good form after drawing a crowd of 25,000 earlier in a downtown Montreal square, said the separatists have a right to their ideas about Quebec independence. But they did not have a right to hinder other French-Canadians who want to have a say in what goes in all of Canada.

SPEAKS FOR FRIEND

The rally was outside a church in Hochelaga riding, where the Liberal candidate is Gerard Pelletier, minister without portfolio in the Trudeau cabinet, and a longtime friend and colleague of the prime minister.

Mr. Trudeau later re-opened his attack on Quebec separatists at Joliette, north of Montreal. He told another crowd of 1,000 at a street rally there that people who reject national unity tend to resort to violence.

They cannot trust to reason to sell their ideas, he said. His Jo-

'Spy' Ship Not Ours Says U.S.

TOKYO (Reuters) — North Korea said today it sank a "spy ship of U.S. imperialist aggression troops" near the port of Boopo on the western coast of the Korean Peninsula.

But U.S. navy and defence department officials in Tokyo and Washington denied that any American ship was sunk.

American officials said it was possible a South Korean vessel might be involved.

The report by the official North Korean central news agency followed a Seoul report that South Korean troops killed seven North Korean troops in the western end of the demilitarized zone Saturday.

The North Korean report said patrol boats opened counter-fire against a spy ship dispatched by a mothership near Yunpyung Island while it was engaged in "brigandish provocative acts."

Patrol boats sank the "enemy spy ship" at about 1 a.m. local time off the port of Boopo (sometimes spelled Pukpo). "The spy group aboard the ship was sent to the bottom of the sea," the news agency said.

NO NATIONALITY

The broadcast did not give the nationality of the vessel or any other details. North Korea often includes both American and South Korean forces in the term "U.S. imperialist aggression troops."

The South Korean defence ministry in Seoul said it had no information to substantiate the North Korean claim.

A spokesman for the U.S. Air Force in Japan said the U.S. 314th Air Force Division at Osan, South Korea, reported receiving a distress signal from a South Korean fishing vessel.

The distress signal was received more than 11 hours after the time the "spy ship" was said to have been sunk.

The U.S. Navy's intelligence vessel Pueblo with an 83-man crew on board was captured Jan. 23 by North Koreans off Wonsan and accused of intruding into North Korean territorial waters.

One crew member was killed and release of the survivors is still being negotiated between U.S. and North Korean representatives at the Korean truce village of Panmunjom.

Riot Kills Five

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) —Five persons were reported killed and 150 wounded as students and police battled in Brazil's largest city Friday night, in clouds of tear gas, near the U.S. embassy.

WHITHER THE B.C. BALLOTS?

Crystal Balls Are Murky

By PETE LOUDON

Even British Columbia's professional election watchers are baffled this time.

Or there's going to be a result pattern remarkably similar to that of 1965.

No in-betweens. that's the prediction of people in "smoke-filled rooms", polled in Vancouver and Victoria by the Times today.

But the forecast prior to a federal election has never been so foggy. And the reason given is the public response to the personality of one man — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

If this can be discounted as a passing phenomenon, politicians, campaign officials and the growing army of public relations experts in the province see the breakdown this way:

Liberals	10	7
NDP	10	9
PC	2	3
SC	1	3

(The pattern was reached by averaging out the replies of those polled.)

But if the Trudeau excitement is real and not a vivid mirage, these estimates can be knocked into the proverbial cocked hat. It would be easier to predict the weather next St. Swithin's Day.

Those polled could agree on only 11 "safe" seats in the province.

They leaned toward the re-election of David Groos (L) in Victoria and of George Chatterton (PC) in Esquimalt-Saanich, T. C. Douglas (NDP) in Burnaby-Seymour, Colin Cameron (NDP) in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The-Islands, Tom Barnett (NDP) in Comox-Alberni, Jack Davis (L) in Capilano, Frank Howard (NDP) in Skeena, Ron Basford (L) in Vancouver Centre, Harold Winch (NDP) in Vancouver East, Grace McInnis (NDP) in Vancouver Kingsway, Arthur Laing (L) in Vancouver South.

The areas of contention remaining are Burnaby-Richmond where Robert Prittie (NDP), the incumbent, is hotly challenged by Liberal Tom Good; Coast Chilcotin, where it's a toss-up between Liberal Paul St. Pierre and Hartley Dent, NDP; Fraser Valley East where Socred incumbent A. B. Patterson may be in trouble; Fraser Valley West where Mark Rose NDP may have an edge; Kamloops-Cariboo where former Conservative Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton is running hard; Kootenay West where Randolph Harding, former B.C. MLA is having his first federal contest; New Westminster where Clive Lytle (NDP) is favored; Okanagan-Boundary where David Pugh (PC), incumbent, is struggling; Okanagan-Kootenay where Howard Johnson (SC) is the incumbent; Prince George-Peace River where it's anyone's

Liberals Hold Lead in Poll

The final Gallup poll before Tuesday's general election shows the Liberals maintaining their solid lead over the Conservatives.

According to the survey, if the election were held today this is how Canadians would vote:

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
47%	29%	18%	6%

The Gallup Affiliates point out that the figures are a report on their findings in the national survey and are not their prediction on the outcome of the election.

On the other hand, their survey has been rather close to the actual result in recent elections. In 1962 and 1963 they were within two percentage points of the result, well within their three percent margin of error.

They missed in 1965 when they were four percentage points away from the actual result.

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
46%	29%	10%	10%

In May after the Liberal leadership convention the poll result was:

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
50%	29%	16%	5%

By contrast after the Conservative convention in October, 1967, the poll showed:

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
34%	43%	17%	6%

The popular vote in the 1965 general election was:

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other

Other includes Creditistes, Social Credit and Independent candidates.

In the national survey 11 percent of those interviewed said they were still undecided on how they would vote on Tuesday.

Personality Impact Tells

Tuesday's election will be decided by the people's reactions to Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Robert Stanfield, columnist Peter Newman says in a detailed analysis of the two leaders on Page 5 today.

"What has separated the Liberals from the Conservatives in this election are the personalities and very different styles of their leaders," Mr. Newman writes.

"This is hardly the best criterion for choosing a government but it is the one which Canadian voters seem to want to impose.

"All through this campaign they have turned out to watch the party leaders, not so much to hear them discuss issues as to take their measure both as men and politicians."

Nurses Attain Tentative Pact

Tentative agreement was reached late Friday in the dispute over salaries between more than 4,000 registered nurses and 61 hospitals in British Columbia.

While no details were disclosed, it is reliably understood that the recommended settlement is well below the more than 50 per cent salary increases sought by the nurses but slightly above the 21.8 per cent and 27.4 per cent raises in two steps which they previously rejected.

The terms of settlement represent a modification of the conciliation board award which the hospitals accepted and the nurses turned down by an 81 per cent margin.

Eight days ago the nurses voted 95 per cent in favor of striking 59 of the 61 hospitals involved in the dispute.

Nurses now are paid between $390 and $466 a month. They turned down a scale of between $475 and $593.75 effective July 1. They were seeking between $600 and $841 as well as a 37½-hour work week (instead of 40 hours) and portability of salary increments between hospitals.

No comment on the tentative settlement was made by either the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. or the B.C. Hospitals Association under a mutual secrecy agreement.

But bargaining committees for both sides will recommend acceptance of the agreement to their members. The decisions are expected sometime next week.

The accord was reached after all-day talks in Vancouver Friday under the guidance of labor department conciliator Jack Sherlock of Victoria, appointed to the dispute by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

Bomb Rocks Liberal HQ

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — A small bomb exploded today in the business district at the time Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene was due to arrive in a motor cavalcade.

Police Chief J. J. Paquette said the bomb apparently was thrown from the third floor of a Main Street hotel next to the Liberal campaign headquarters. There were no injuries.

It exploded on the trunk of a passing car, hurling pieces from the bomb up to 70 feet away, he said.

Two suspects who registered at the hotel were being questioned by RCMP officers. They were not identified, but listed their home town as Woodstock, Ont.

The explosion, heard throughout the business area of this town 25 miles west of Kingston, apparently was caused by a high-explosive powder device rather than a gasoline bomb, police said.

'Goldwater' Jab Aimed at PM

TORONTO (CP) — NDP Leader Douglas wrapped up his eastern campaigning Friday in four hard-fought Toronto ridings and tossed out a reference to Prime Minister Trudeau as "a Barry Goldwater."

Mr. Douglas used the term in the context of Mr. Trudeau's treatment of student requests for summer jobs and scholarships.

"Mr. Trudeau has outwardly appeared to be a swinger," he told 1,500 at a rally in a working district in East Toronto.

"But behind the facade he has turned out to be a Barry Goldwater."

Mr. Douglas said the prime minister had rejected student pleas with the excuse that education is the responsibility of the provinces.

"But a young person's university career should not depend on his father's bank account and "an NDP government would foot the bill."

The rally was the last stop in a wearying blitz of four ridings, but the 63-year-old leader still had enough kick to perform a modified a gogo dance with a group of folk singers.

Earlier in the day he ad-

NDP CHIEF TO DISCUSS SHIPBUILDING

Mr. Douglas will hold a press conference at the Empress Hotel at 5 p.m. and have a private dinner with the four Island NDP candidates before addressing a rally at Memorial Arena at 8.

Later he will take part briefly in an open-line radio show before leaving at 11:30 p.m. for Vancouver.

Mr. Douglas will speak on shipbuilding, pensions, pollution, housing, and economics at the rally.

Colorful, Rousing Rally Buoys Stanfield Spirit

HAMILTON (CP) — A colorful and uproarious crowd here made Robert L. Stanfield's last major rally of the 1968 election campaign a success Friday night, interrupting him 84 times with applause.

Organizers on stage had to control the chants of "Go, Bob, go" with whistles to keep the applause from cutting too heavily into the hour of TV time.

The rally in the old Palace Theatre, its 2,200 seats filled and about 300 more persons standing, was carried live by CHCH-TV and Mr. Stanfield said it reached 42 Ontario ridings.

He committed his party to a list of priorities if it is elected to power on election day Tuesday. They would "provide the main thrust of our first speech from the throne and our first budget."

The list: Curtailment of inflation, reduction of interest and mortgage rates, stimulation of "new economic growth," elimination of the housing shortage, a revised medical care insurance program and relief from "punitive taxation."

He also committed a Conservative government to swift efforts to deal with pollution; "restoration" of international farm produce markets; a long-range program to "upgrade and enrich cities;" and efforts to make Canada "a magnet for development."

He struck out at the Liberal party for failing to present a program and for being "too incompetent, too careless, and too casual" to manage the economy.

Mr. Stanfield got a boost from Ontario Premier John Robarts, who introduced the former Nova Scotian premier as one who played a large part in "our efforts to build a strong and united Canada."

"We can't afford to take a chance with Canada," Mr. Stanfield said, picking up Prime Minister Trudeau's appeal to voters to "take a chance" June 25.

He lashed back at criticism of his party's "patriotism," noting that 108 Conservative candi-

FOR THOSE WHO MISS TOUCH OF PIERRE

'Still-Life' Sacrifice to the Mob

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — An hour or so in the campaign life of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, Thursday, June 20.

After a boisterous noon rally here in the Paramount movie theatre, he leaves the packed hall and moves into the mob of 1,000 at the front door who could not get in.

He clums onto the back of a fire truck parked out front and tries to make a speech. The microphone fails. He shouts a few words of farewell without it and climbs into his car for the trip to the airport.

He gets in the back seat next to two local Liberal candidates, Smokey Callaghan and Bill Ryan. The crowd surges against the car.

Hands, mostly from girls, reach through the window offering slips of paper or Trudeau pictures to autograph. Trudeau, who has a window seat, obliges.

The car, preceded by a police car, inches forward. Hands, sometimes two or three at a time, are thrust in through the window. Trudeau clutches each briefly, sometimes clasping a little hand warmly in both of his.

William Lee, a key Trudeau aide, in the front seat with me and the driver, passes out pre-autographed Trudeau pictures to available hands at his window as a kind of still-life sacrifice to the mob. The car still inches forward.

Police form a linked-hands barricade on both sides of the car to prevent the pressing crowd, mostly hysterical girls, from falling under the wheels.

"Hi, Trudeau," comes a high-spirited irreverent shout from a boy about 10 alongside.

"Hi," called back the prime minister, grinning.

He sees a couple of girls.

"Here, have a flower," he calls to them and throws a white flower out the window. It had been lying on his lap, probably a gift from an admirer. The girls go quietly wild.

The driver, a local Liberal, says: "I've been in quite a few campaigns but I've never seen anything like this."

Mr. Lee, a political professional, joshes about the exuberance of the welcome: "You said New Brunswickers," he said to the New Brunswickers in the car.

Lee again to me about Trudeau:

Into the six-seat executive prop-driven plane for the flight to Fredericton on the New Brunswick swing, Trudeau in the seat next to the pilot. It is soon airborne.

Trudeau examining his watch with a broken leather band: "They finally ripped watch."

He has a cup of milk from a thermos after declining a sandwich from Mr. Lee, who passes them out to himself, me, a television cameraman and a Liberal official.

Trudeau falls silent. He dozes for a while after looking at some papers handed to him by Lee. Then the plane breaks through the clouds and lands at Fredericton for more of the same.

riding; Surrey where Barry Mather (NDP) may have an edge and Vancouver Quadra where John Pearkes (PC) is challenging incumbent Grant Deachman (L).

Each politician, each campaigner, each publicity man has had access to voter canvasses, opinions of local editors, even the assessments of barbers and cab drivers. But they've only served to muddy the waters in most ridings.

There are actually two factors which have the clairvoyants stumped. One is the effect of widespread redistribution of voters since the last election. But the big unknown is effect of the Trudeau image.

A consensus in Vancouver says if this were the U.S. and any single candidate drew the crowds of listeners and watchers that the prime minister collects across Canada, the Grits would have a shoo-in.

But because this is Canada where people are said to be more canny, people might be expected to come out in droves, fired by curiosity or just to enjoy the hoopla — then walk home thoughtfully.

And what their decisions will be nobody can know until June 25.

All political figures questioned demanded anonymity. Only those who knew the pollster personally would step away from their role of super-confidence in their own candidates. Public relations people, for business resasons, were given the same promise.

Most persons polled felt gamblers would be safer putting their money on those eleven individual candidates than in risking it on any overall estimate of the provincial result.

The pollster won't be making any bets.

dates have seen active service and many were wounded.

"This party created Confederation and we will make Confederation work."

After his speech, Mr. Stanfield drove to Toronto. He was to fly to Montreal at noon, after a morning on TV taping, to visit 13 ridings and open St. Jean-Baptiste Day festivities in the suburb of Ville d'Ajou by lighting the traditional bonfire.

CROWDS WERE SMALL

His speech here followed a wet afternoon tour in which he spoke to disappointing crowds of 100 to 800 in five suburban communities.

The lively crowd at the theatre buoyed him, however.

He hit former finance minister Mitchell Sharp for saying the Conservative tax-relief program for homebuyers had lost Mr. Stanfield the confidence of Bay Street—the Toronto financial quarter.

"I admit that Mr. Sharp should be one of the greatest authorities on lack of confidence," he said, drawing laughter. But he doubted that the financiers would object to a modest plan to relieve hard-pressed families and if they did, "all I can say is it is too bad for those fellows."

The Liberals were masquerading as reformers and had presented "no hint of any new program." Mr. Trudeau had talked of "ending the free stuff" but hadn't detailed policy on social welfare."

Mr. Stanfield said the present welfare system is "wasteful, inequitable, inefficient and ineffective" and a new and better one must be created.

An unread portion of his prepared text noted that he had committed the party to "the concept of a minimum income for those Canadians living below the poverty line."

dressed 200 supporters at a dance hall in York West riding and led a 40-car procession through suburban Long Branch and Etobicoke.

He drew cheers with almost every sentence in a speech to 400 at a union hall and peptalked 600 workers in the three-way battleground of York-Scarborough constituency.

Today Mr. Douglas flies to British Columbia for weekend appearances in Prince George and Victoria. He will tend to his own riding of Burnaby Seymour Monday and tour the polls during Tuesday's voting.

At a news conference Friday afternoon after flying here from Montreal, Mr. Douglas proposed a plan to get 1,200 striking St. Lawrence Seaway workers back on the job.

He said he believed the workers would agree to accept the government's offer of six-percent wage increase in each year of a two-year contract if they received a pledge that an "industrial peace commission" would be set up.

The commission, staffed by neutral experts in the field of labor economics and labor law, would examine working conditions of all waterfront workers in Canada and recommend wage standards.

In the seaway case the commission would propose a retroactive settlement formula, and the NDP leader said the government could show its good faith by agreeing in advance to accept the decision as binding.

The commission would eventually expand its studies to include all sensitive areas vital to the nation—all operations in which a strike "could tie the whole Canadian economy in a knot."

Mr. Douglas said that only a protacted seaway strike will slow down wheat exports. More than 36,000,000 bushels are stockpiled in ports open to ocean-going vessels, more than the amount exported since early April.

It rained almost incessantly for the seven-hour tour Friday evening, forcing the NDP to drop plans to ferry Mr. Douglas by helicopter. Three stops were cut from the schedule.

He ate dinner with Mr. and Mrs. George Lismanis, who are among 32 Etobicoke families whose homes are being expropriated for an industrial development.

Mr. Douglas said it was "a shocking abuse of public power" for the borough to eject them without fair compensation.

The NDP's proposed national urban council would guarantee comparable homes in expropriation cases and give owners an added indemnity for the inconvenience.

Mr. Trudeau said independence would mean no important changes to Quebec. It would not mean more wealth or more power.

At the rally end, he predicted the Liberals will win the election.

"We will win in the West, in the Atlantic region, in Ontario and in Quebec. And we will win here in Joliette."

Although there is a stiff Conservative-Liberal battle in Joliette riding, Montreal has been a Liberal stronghold.

Mr. Trudeau was to campaign in Ontario today, hitting Brockville, Oshawa and Kingston in a carefully-paced finale to his six-week campaign. He is coasting home with the easing of his punishing schedule.

Seaway Strike Costs Mounting

MONTREAL (CP) — Authorities began computing the estimated loss in cold cash after more than 1,200 St. Lawrence Seaway workers seeking higher wages went on strike early Friday.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority said in Ottawa the daily cost of the strike is an estimated $96,000 in lost toll revenues and $34,100 in lost wages.

David W. Oberlin, port director at Duluth, Minn., warned that the strike could cost shippers $2,000 daily for each vessel if they remain idle and force them to "write off the Great Lakes entirely."

Pierre Camu, the seaway authority's president, said he does not see an early end to the strike on the inland waterway, the first in its 10 years of operation.

"We are not going to move at all," he said. "The government is behind us and is not going to appoint a mediator."

Earlier this week, Prime Minister Trudeau said a federal conciliation board's majority recommendation of a six-per-cent increase this year and similar one next year is reasonable.

The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, representing the seaway workers, appeared to be just as firm as the seaway authority in its stand.

Promoter Granted Bail

LONDON (CP) — The province of Ontario took the first steps today aimed at having Myer Rush, Toronto stock promoter wanted on charges involving a $100,000,000 stock fraud conspiracy, extradited to Canada.

After a confused hearing in a magistrate's court the case was remanded until July 1 and Rush was released on bail.

He was released from police custody "in his own recognizance" after he agreed that he would forfeit £15,000 (about $39,000) bail if he doesn't turn up at the next hearing.

France Strangely Subdued On Eve of Election Test

PARIS (CP) — France today approached with lukewarm calm a general election sparked off by the worst social upheaval since the Second World War.

Authorities described the two-week campaign ending at midnight Friday night as the quietest in 10 years—a stark contrast to the violent demonstrations and strikes that precipitated the election.

Only the candidates—2,267 of them contesting 487 National Assembly seats—were in fighting spirit on the eve of the first round of the two-round election.

With the battle lines sharply drawn between the Gaullists and their electoral allies and allied left-wing parties, the vote Sunday will be a kind of primary election to decide on candidates for the second round the following Sunday.

In those constituencies where no candidate gets an absolute majority Sunday, the allied parties will decide among themselves on a single man with the best chance of keeping the other side out in the second round.

CONTEST 470 DISTRICTS.

Communists have entered candidates in each of the 470 districts of metropolitan France, and Gaullists have sponsored 462 candidates. The Federation of Democratic and Socialist Left has entered 431 names, and the Centrist Modern Progress and Democracy 267.

All sides advocate basic reforms, but have carefully refrained from offering specific plans.

At dissolution Gaullists had 199 seats and the pro-Gaullist Independent Republicans 43—making a total just short of an absolute majority in the asesmbly.

. . . main challenge

The Democratic Centre—often called Centrists—had 42 seats and it is expected that the outcome of the election will hinge on the vote this party receives.

The rest of the seats were divided between the United Socialists and independents.

The Gaullists were two seats short of a majority in the assembly when President de Gaulle called an election in an effort to end student violence and industrial unrest crippling the country.

BALANCE OF POWER

The balance of power in the dissolved chamber was held by the 42 Centre party deputies. Although firmly anti-Communist, most of them voted against the government in censure motions.

When results of Sunday's round become known Monday, the mainstream Gaullists led by Premier Georges Pompidou, their allies and the Centrists will decide on single candidates in each constituency to represent them in the second round.

The federation and the Communists will make similar deals.

Pompidou hopes to win a true majority in the new assembly in which he will not have to rely on the Centrists for survival.

Down to Cases

AS THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN nears its end amid various predictions of a Liberal victory, a note of desperation has appeared in some of the Conservative presentations. This runs all the way from the leadership, where a significant divergence of view has emerged between Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Dalton Camp as to the exact status of Mr. Faribault, the party's apparent spokesman in Quebec, down to the local level, where a Tory candidate has been driven to suggest that the failure of the public address system at Mr. Trudeau's Beacon Hill Park rally was deliberately engineered so the speaker could avoid having to answer questions from the crowd!

This indicates a certain disarray in the opposition ranks as the phenomenon of the Trudeau wave takes on coast-to-coast proportions. But national elections cannot be won on a national basis. The reality of victory lies in the election of individual local candidates, and it is here that the campaigns of the two Liberal entrants, Mr. David Groos and Mr. David Anderson, become important to the overall picture.

As an incumbent, Mr. Groos has given the voters every opportunity to question him on his parliamentary record of the past few years. It is one of persevering support for those Liberal measures which now are being recognized as major accomplishments of the Pearson government. Mr. Anderson, a newcomer to federal politics but by no means to federal service, has a distinguished record of achievement in Canada and the Far East, and, like Mr. Groos, a full grasp of the significance of the new approach to Canadian problems which characterizes Mr. Trudeau's politics.

Mr. Groos and Mr. Anderson offer the voters of Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich an opportunity to become a positive factor in the new spirit which is sweeping the country, an element in a government which will bring to the turbulent and unprecedented political and social tides of this era a new approach designed to apply twentieth-century solutions to twentieth-century problems. This community, destined to be an essential participant in the coming role of British Columbia as Canada's gateway to a thriving Pacific trade theatre, has a special interest in its future representation in Ottawa. That interest will be served by voting for Liberal candidates on Tuesday.

Changes in the Upper Chamber?

LIKE THE CANADIAN SENATE, Britain's House of Lords is sharply restricted in the effect it can exercise on the House of Commons and the government of the realm. Even so, the use of the peers' prerogatives has embarrassed Prime Minister Wilson in the execution of policy related to Rhodesian sanctions. Mr. Wilson intends to do something about it—and the implication is that he will curtail still further the capacities of the House of Lords to influence government decisions.

Emphasis on the non-elective nature of membership in the House of Lords stirs interest in Canada, where Senate reform has been debated for decades. Here, as in Britain, the fact that Upper Chamber members exercise parliamentary functions without benefit of popular election has been a matter of serious consideration but little action.

Unlike the Lords, Canada's Senate has no hereditary entry portal. In this country the Upper Chamber has been frequently regarded as a comfortable sanctuary for workers of the political party in office when appointments are made. There have been exceptions, and a number of formerly active politicians have played a significant part in some of the valuable work which the Senate initiates.

The discipline Mr. Wilson has in mind for the Lords will be watched in Canada to determine what further precedent may be created to give senatorial office a wider base—a prospect with substantial appeal to many Canadians.

Boom Gargle Whee

THIS IS AN ERA OF SCIENtific and technological wonders. Rocket travel, nuclear power, global communication, medical magic —almost every day brings a new phenomenon to amaze and excite us. There is all the more wonder, then, that science and technology have so far been unable to devise and perfect a foolproof public address system.

Few if any readers can have attended a gathering at which the platform microphones and amplifiers worked to perfection. Far too often the sound system is a complete fiasco, saving the day only by silencing itself entirely. At the best of it, if booming, squealing, blaring and inaudibility are avoided, the microphone does not cater properly to a variety of speakers who differ in height, speaking distance and volume. It rarely responds to a speaker who may turn aside for introductions, or particular reference to the flanks of his audience. And the plight of a listener, trapped too close to or too far from a loudspeaker, is familiar to most persons today.

Here is a challenge to the brains and ingenuity of our scientists and technicians, and a successful solution of the problem will earn the gratitude of platforms full of speakers and halls full of people. Over to you, gentlemen—can you hear me there in the back row?

A Quiet, Kindly Aid

IN A DAY OF VIGOROUS STUdent demonstration and frequent serious disruption of university processes, the University of Massachusetts has acted positively in a way which shows sense and sensitivity. The student senate there has voted to assess all students three dollars a year and to use the proceeds to finance a tutoring project for underprivileged Negro students. The project is undertaken as part of the social action program honoring the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.—it is a gesture which the distinguished leader of non-violence would have approved.

By tutorial aid, Negroes from the Boston area will be afforded a better chance to benefit from the higher education available to them at the university—an educational opportunity which might otherwise be lost without the kind of help the fund will supply.

There are more dramatic ways to express sympathy with the Negro cause in the United States. But here, through the co-operation of all donating students, something more than arm-waving should be accomplished. Along with the tutorial aid will go an expression of sympathy and brotherhood that should not be lost on the recipients.

Finding Faults

Referring to the Monday night extravaganza at Beacon Hill Park, it seems that the Liberal Party in Victoria had much going for it. If prayer power alone is any indication, the gods were with them from the start. The weather fell into their hands with graceful acumen, and Mr. Trudeau contributed his bit with the magnificent entry a la helicopter. From then on, the evening floundered. Without adequate preparation, Confucius wrote, there is bound to be failure. It seems that the Liberal Party organizers in Victoria took just too much for granted. Strange that Mr. Groos with so much musical talent in his own family did not consider what might happen to the singing of O Canada outdoors without considerable direction. Also to allow the Prime Minister to have to abandon the climax of his speech (as we are led to believe it was) because the P.A. system failed, seems once again to lack foresight on the part of party organizers. It could not have impressed their new leader or made him anxious to return.

If this is any indication of the kind of management the Liberal party is offering to the voters in Victoria, I think that it hardly inspires any degree of confidence for those who go to the polls next Tuesday.—Miss Carol Wootton, 357 Linden.

The Tories Juggle the Faribault Hot Potato

MR. Stanfield appears finally to have settled the question of Mr. Marcel Faribault's precise interim status in the Conservative party but he certainly has no reason to thank Mr. Dalton Camp for making the exercise necessary by his observations on television. It was plainly impossible to ignore Mr. Camp's ill-considered comment because the whole Quebec Conservative campaign is built around the person of Mr. Faribault. Since he is manifestly an able man, widely respected in his native province, his entry into federal politics enabled the Conservatives to recruit a group of candidates with considerably more impressive credentials than those of their undistinguished predecessors in recent elections.

Western

Had Mr. Stanfield overlooked the apparent slur on Mr. Faribault, he would have jeopardized his party's prospects in Quebec constituencies.

Their Man in Quebec

He has solved his problem in a fashion by dismissing Mr. Camp's point — that Mr. Faribault has not formally been designated as Quebec lieutenant — as a technicality. But he is the "man of prestige" to whom Mr. Stanfield looks "for advice on Quebec." Moreover, a man of Mr. Faribault's distinction would necessarily be regarded by Quebec Conservatives as their leader.

Unfortunately, Mr. Stanfield escapes one horn of the dilemma only to be caught on the other. In the course of a long campaign he has had to reassure audiences across the country that he is not committed to the constitutional views of Mr. Faribault as elaborated in his various books and presumably in recent briefs of the Quebec government. This would be a less difficult argument if Mr. Faribault was merely one candidate among many. Mr. Camp by his indiscretion forced Mr. Stanfield to re-emphasize Mr. Faribault's particular status as the uncrowned leader in Quebec and the man whose advice is naturally sought on Quebec problems.

Specific Proposals

There is more to this than may appear from the rather general election debate with its initial emphasis on provincial pretensions in the international field and later discussion of the two-nation theory and special status. Mr. Faribault, in his writings, has not limited himself to general theories; he is the advocate of special proposals for constitutional amendment. Even if the approach theories are excluded from discussion, the specifics are highly important because negotiations are now moving forward to the stage at which the actual division of powers must be considered.

One of these matters was largely ignored until Mr. Trudeau drew pointed attention to it in his speech at Victoria. Not only has Mr. Faribault proposed the transfer of a number of powers from federal to provincial (or concurrent) jurisdiction; he has also taken strong exception to the residual powers accorded to Ottawa by the British North America Act.

It is well known that Sir John Macdonald attached great importance to the residual powers. He said, in a famous but far too optimistic passage: "We have given the general legislature all the great subjects of legislation. We have conferred on them, not only specifically and in detail, all the powers which are incident to sovereignty, but we have expressly declared that all subjects of general interest not distinctly and exclusively conferred upon the local governments and local legislatures shall be conferred on the general government and legislature."

The courts, unfortunately, placed their own somewhat remarkable interpretations on the constitutional passages to which Mr. Macdonald had reference. So restrictive were the judgments over a long period that grave difficulties were occasioned, particularly in the 1930s. But the language could not altogether be drained of meaning and the situation would certainly have been much worse if residual powers had not been accorded to the federal government.

Radio, TV Jurisdiction

Among the subjects which could not have been foreseen at Confederation were radio and television. Jurisdiction was decided in favor of Ottawa in 1932 on the specific ground that it was a new matter not provided for in the Constitutional Act and one therefore to be brought under Parliament's residual power.

(It is interesting that, despite Mr. Johnson's current claims, Mr. Faribault and his partner, Mr. Fowler, agreed in Ten to One: the Confederation Wager "that this was a proper power for the federal jurisdiction.")

Again, even the Privy Council with its restrictive notions, did hold that national emergency might create conditions in which "peace, order and good government" over-ride the "property and civil rights" clause cherished by provincial governments.

Mr. Stanfield has said that he does not accept Mr. Faribault's argument for extinguishing residual powers. What would be the practical position, however, if he formed a government in partnership with Mr. Faribault?

Concessions

It was possible for Mr. Diefenbaker, with his unprecedented majority, to ignore his nationalist followers, some of whom used to abstain on divisions; even so, he paid for it in the end with the loss of most of his Quebec support. Even the hopeful Conservative pollsters foresee only a narrow majority and this assumes a score of Quebec members on whom the government would depend for its life. Thus Mr. Stanfield would be almost bound to concede something to Mr. Faribault and the likeliest concession (because its consequences would become plain only in the future) would be the residual powers.

It is true that constitutional change would require the consent of the provinces and some provincial premiers might look askance at Mr. Faribault's proposal. But the primary responsibility for the defence of federal powers rests with Ottawa and it would be plainly unreasonable to count on provincial governments to risk quarrels with their neighbors in order to save what Ottawa was willing to let go by default.

Thus the net effect of Mr. Camp's contribution is to focus attention on Mr. Stanfield's Quebec adviser and his learned works. It seems, in present circumstances, a distinct disservice; almost a confirmation of the dire forebodings of Mr. Stanfield's immediate predecessor, the Conservative candidate in Prince Albert.

Indian-Pakistani Flies in the Non-Proliferating Ointment

ONE of the great international undertakings of recent times—a treaty to bar the spread of nuclear weapons — is now at the point of fruition. The question remains, however: Just how much has really been accomplished? Its authors and sponsors have claimed much. The non-proliferation treaty (NPT) was to have been the touchstone of better Soviet-American relations, the doorway to a new East-West era. It was to have banished the spectre of a world in which dozens of irresponsible or potentially irresponsible petty dictators could have brandished the bomb.

Frye

It was to have led to new and still more ambitious disarmanent agreements.

It was, in short, to have transformed the international climate and made for a stabler world.

In the cold light of dawn, many of these ambitious hopes are fading, or coming into more realistic perspective. The NPT is an historic achievement, but it is not likely to remake the world.

Most Important Result

Possibly the single most important result of the treaty is the one that was recorded this past week in the UN Security Council: a pledge by the United States, Russia and Britain that they would not let any smaller country be overwhelmed with nuclear weapons or nuclear blackmail as a consequence of foregoing the manufacture of such weapons.

This pledge was undertaken in an effort to persuade India, and other countries menaced by Red China, that they do not need the A-bomb to ensure their security.

Whether it achieves this result or not — India remains highly skeptical — the pledge is on record as a political fact of much significance.

It means that Washington and Moscow have in effect allied themselves with India against China — or perhaps more precisely, have all but formalized what previously was an implicit alliance.

The three-power pledge cannot be redeemed automatically. Except in the event of actual armed attack, requiring an immediate response, rescue action would be undertaken through the UN Security Council, where the Veto-wielding great powers could review their commitment and where, if Peking one day were to be seated, she could herself block an authorization move.

This loophole has helped produce the skepticism in India and contributed to New Delhi's unwillingness to sign the treaty. India wanted something more explicit and foolproof.

Still, as Canadian delegate George Ignatieff pointed out, the declaration of intent is itself of the highest importance, "one of the most encouraging political developments in years." Words are worth something, even in today's world; and Russia and America have vowed jointly to keep the nuclear peace.

This vow, directed primarily at Russia's erstwhile ally, China, is a quid pro quo from Moscow for a diplomatic boon of great value to her: the treaty curb on West Germany's nuclear potential.

Bonn has not said she will sign the treaty, but every indication is she will. If so, what was long regarded as an irritant to East-West relations — the possibility of a nuclear Germany — will have been removed.

This prospect has not suddenly transformed the East-West climate. Berlin is once again a sticking point, and behind it, East Germany's desire for recognition and acceptance.

The condition for a genuine detente in Europe remains what it has always been: a German settleemnt. The non-proliferation treaty has not proved to be an open sesame.

In the area of curbing future nuclear mini-states, the treaty may live up to many of its sponsors' claims. Egypt, Israel, Sweden, Italy, Canada, South Africa and a number of other countries with atomic potential have endorsed the treaty, presumably intending to sign it.

India's defection, however, is a serious matter, since it could have a domino effect.

Pakistan sees India as a real security peril, and is not likely to be reassured by a promise of help via the UN from the United States and the Soviet Union, neither of which was prepared to alienate India during the 1965 Kashmir war.

Bargaining Power

Moreover, India could benefit from going nuclear without ever forcing a showdown. She would have such substantial new bargaining power as to dominate the Kashmir issue, leaving Pakistan little option but to swallow the status quo in that bitterly contested state or herself go nuclear. Whatever the cost, she almost certainly would choose the latter.

For the moment, Pakistan is still trying to mobilize pressure on India to sign the treaty. At Pakistan's insistence, a conference of non-nuclear powers will be held this August in Geneva with that as a major objective.

If this fails, Peking may find Pakistan standing outside its store front seeking to be the first customer for A-bomb know-how. And the Pandora's box which the NPT had sought to close would have been forced dangerously ajar.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

From a terraced hill to the north of Thetis Lake one can look down on the surrounding different types of forest areas.

You can see old stands of Douglas fir with a thick covering of salal. In the east, there is a valley with a small stream flowing into Prior Lake.

If you look towards the south you can see the Garry oak-arbutus association, while through the trees you can get glimpses of the quiet waters of the lake changing pattern with the sun and wind.

On the crown of the hill there is a small pocket of soil that has enabled trees to grow as well as several sun-loving shrubs. Here the grasses are still green, while nearby the mosses and grass are turning brown.

There is an abundance of the beautiful stone crop with its star-shaped flower. Here, also you can find the nodding onion with its many pink blooms. There is also the hooker's onion showing its bell-like blossoms after the leaves have disappeared.

Growing with them will be the brodiaea with its cluster of trumpet-like flowers. It seems to vary in color. Do you know that the Indians used the bulb for food?

In small pockets of soil you will find the yarrow. Its finely divided leaves give it an appearance something like small bottle brushes. The leaves give off a pungent odor.

If you look around on the hill you may find a "fireplace" that must have been built many years ago, for it is now overgrown with moss and stonecrop. The face has been built up against a fault in the bed rock. One wonders who built it; by the pattern and the way the rocks are laid, it must have been someone who understood rock work.

Come back down the east face and go towards Prior Lake. Here the salal is thick but not too tall. It is now in flowere — a rather sticky, pink urn shaped bloom. Do you know that this plant belongs to the heather family?

The Voters' Decision Must Finally Rest On the Qualities of Stanfield or Trudeau

Choice Will Shape Destiny of Canada

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — Next Tuesday, during that final lonely moment in the polling booth with pencil poised, each voter will have to weigh his own and Canada's aspirations against an unknown and unknowing future, then decide which political leader can best fulfill our individual and collective purposes.

Newman

Yet after six weeks of roaring rhetoric and rambunctious rebuttal most Canadians will go to vote without a much clearer idea of exactly where the two major parties stand on specific issues than they had when the election began.

It's been a strange campaign, fought less on the hustings than in the television studios, with no sense of progression marking the 40 days of electoral battle, and few telling thrusts or dramatic encounters.

Even though this election has the distinction of being fought by two men who've done post-graduate work at Harvard University, it's been virtually devoid of intellectual content.

It's probably the closest Canada has ever come to staging an American-type presidential contest in which issues take second place to personalities.

There are no government scandals such as plagued the Tories in 1874 and the Liberals in 1965 to be justified or twittered over.

No matter how hard the opposition tries to make it so, economic depression is not an issue at it was in the elections of 1878 and 1935.

Despite the party leaders' valiant attempts to outdo each other in professing their devotion to a united Canada and a happy Quebec, there is no specific policy plank of either party, such as the Liberals' reciprocity bill of 1911, that has become the predominant public concern.

Little Policy Identity

In fact, its's difficult, if not impossible, to identify the parties in policy terms. Pierre Trudeau and Robert Stanfield have both been meticulously responsible in refraining from the kind of fiscally irresponsible promises that characterized Canadian elections during the stewardship of John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson.

The Liberal leader has placed more emphasis on national unity, while the Conservative leader has been more interested in delineating the bread and butter problems.

Their declarations have raised much sound and some fury but most observers have agreed that Canada would probably thrive under the leadership of either candidate. (Tommy Douglas, who has waged the best federal campaign of his career, is still more adept at raising seminal issues than in advancing their solutions.)

What has separated the Liberals from the Conservatives in this election are the personalities and very different styles of their leaders.

This is hardly the best criterion for choosing a government but it is the one which Canadian voters seem to want to impose. All through this campaign, they have turned out to watch the party leaders, not so much to hear them discuss issues as to take their measure both as men and politicians.

Specifics Unimportant

The way each man handles himself on the various problems facing the country seems to have become more important than the specifics of his solutions.

It's almost as though the voters were attempting to gaze into the future and see for themselves what Canada would be like under a Stanfield government or a Trudeau administration.

In this context it's interesting to speculate how Trudeau and Stanfield have been transformed by their experience of campaigning across the country during the past six weeks, and to project how they might change further if power were bestowed on them.

When the election began, the Conservative leader seemed to have difficulty articulating his feelings about Canada and to be bewildered by his role. Now even if none of his crowds run riot with enthusiasm, he does get through to them when he talks, as he has been doing nearly every evening for the last two weeks, about the quality of life he wants to see flourish in this country.

He is describing a Canada in which federalism would mean more than an industrial power-centre with an imperial relationship to a less fortunate hinterland.

Stanfield's policy declarations have been unspectacular but responsible. Even though his stand on Quebec has been unclear (mainly because he has not been his party's only spokesman on the subject), it's plainly silly to charge, as many Liberals have been doing, that the election of Robert Stanfield would endanger national unity.

Not Inspiring Leader

At the same time, it's not unfair to suggest that while Stanfield has undoubtedly drawn growing respect from his followers, he does not have the vital qualities of inspiring leadership.

This matters particularly now at a time when the federal authority must assert supremacy in its fields of jurisdiction. Stanfield, who already has a natural predeliction towards the importance of preserving provincial rights, might not be able to exercise the kind of thrusting leadership necessary to shore up Ottawa's waning prestige and authority.

It was inexcuseable, for example, that John Robarts was two hours late for Stanfield's major Toronto rally with no better excuse than the opening of an obscure mine in northern Ontario. He would never have dared be so cavalier with John Diefenbaker, even though the two men had far less mutual respect for each other.

The former Nova Scotia premier embodies, both in his person and his declarations, the Conservative tradition in Canadian life and politics.

His is a philosophy that aims to change society by action from within the established system, that views history as a slowly evolving process which can be prodded through gradual improvements.

Respect for the Past

He has a passionate respect for the past and sees in the reaches of history clear guideposts for the uncertain future.

A government headed by Robert Stanfield would be honest, meticulous in its regard for federal-provincial jurisdictions, and probably extremely capable of managing the economy. It would be manned by experienced politicians of diverse background, including Davie Fulton, Gordon Fairweather, Dalton Camp, George Hees, Alvin Hamilton and Duff Roblin.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau, like Stanfield, has changed during the course of the election campaign. But, unlike Stanfield, he might be expected to change a great deal more once in office.

It's the potential of the two men that makes them so different.

From the vigorous but uncertain figure of late April, Trudeau has been transformed into an assured leader who has established a vital relationship with the crowds turning out for him in numbers not seen in these parts since the Diefenbaker sweep of 1958.

While Stanfield has been painstakingly spelling out the details of his policy commitments, Trudeau has been attempting to educate a nation, not so much to accept new ideas as to accept a new way of dealing with problems.

If Stanfield represents the Tory tradition of Canadian politics, Trudeau stands for a new view of the country. He rejects the neurotic Canada of the past and advocates a fresh country for a new age.

The Liberal leader is plugged into the potency of the moment, even if his promises are few and his plans are vague. What he seems to be saying is "Gamble on me and my belief that I can deal pragmatically with problems as they arise."

It was fashionable, at the start of this election, to diagnose the difference between the two leaders as being between stability and change.

But Trudeau seems to be seeking something more than a mandate for change because change implies the spelling out of some clear alternative to existing conditions. Instead, the prime minister is asking the people to share with him in breaking that most sacred of Canadian political traditions: the perpepetuation of the greyness that has been the color of most of our governments since Confederation.

Reject the Obsolete

This man will dare to define the terms of our nationhood. What he seems to be saying is that if we are to survive as an independent country there will be some attitudes and approaches we will have to reject; that it will no longer be good enough to leave these things fuzzy; that once new goals are set we must re-examine our basic institutions and reject those which have become obsolete.

All of this is still a movement in search of a program, a mood in want of a doctrine. But that's the Trudeau style, and if he's elected next Tuesday, this will become the Canadian style.

A government headed by Pierre Trudeau would not be easy to ignore. Ottawa would rejoin the main currents of Canadian life.

Trudeau would experiment, certainly make some mistakes. Instead of trying to operate the existing system better, he would change the system itself.

There are positive indications that he would be a strong prime minister, controlling his cabinet closely.

There are disturbing signs that he could become inverted, governing the country by clique, relying on an intellectual elite for advice and being ruthless with those who dare oppose him.

There is no doubt that the Trudeau years would be an exciting, energizing time in national politics but it is impossible to predict what kind of country would evolve during their passage.

Emotional Impact

Trudeau's emotional impact has been so persuasive that normally detached observers have been captivated by his panache and charm.

They apologize for his faults and anticipate his imperfections. They see his ruthlessness as pragmatism, his romanticism as humanism, his single-mindedness as a super-patriotic dedication.

Pierre Trudeau is many things but he is not an idealist interested only in the intellectual content of politics.

In the past two months he has revealed himself to be a surprisingly tough politician, well aware that the real object of this election is the attainment of power and he's been prepared to go anywhere, and say almost anything to get it. (What else could prompt a Laski-inspired intellectual, a one-time labor lawyer, a former editor of a radical journal to don a Stetson and say in Western Canada that individualism and free enterprise must be supreme?)

A resounding Liberal mandate on June 25 would make Trudeau the most powerful man in the country, and unlike some of his predecessors, he would not hesitate to exercise that power.

The man chosen to become the next prime minister of Canada on June 25 will face formidable new facts and realities.

What is new is the prevalence of newness. Change can no longer be measured in terms of minor rearrangements of what has gone before, but only as an unprecedented upheaval of all the established values.

As this election campaign comes to an end, deep psychological and historical tides are running in this country.

We may be on the verge of a wholly new alignment of the political forces that will shape the destiny of our second century.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

It hung from the slenderest of threads, but the first hopes emerged this week that the Vietnamese peace talks in Paris might actually make some progress.

What observers seized upon was a private, informal meeting between U.S. envoys Averell Harriman and Cyrus Vance, and Xuan Thuy and Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam.

No details of their discussion were disclosed but it was reported to have been friendly. It was predicted that more of this type of session would be held in the future in addition to the public propaganda displays.

Both sides have now agreed to meet regularly on Wednesday of each week with additional sessions if necessary. The private talks may be held in conjunction with the Wednesday meetings or at other times.

U.S. Defence Secretary Clark Clifford told a news conference the signs of progress in Paris were slight but insisted there was "some movement" in the talks.

There are two issues to which Clifford might have been referring. One is the recent rocket attacks on Saigon, which Harriman raised at Wednesday's meeting as being a threat to the peace negotiations unless they were called off by the Communists.

However there were unofficial reports in Paris that the Viet Cong had undertaken the attacks on their own initiative and the North Vietnamese were displeased because of their adverse propaganda effects.

The other issue is the presence of North Vietnamese regular troops in South Vietnam, which the Hanoi negotiators in Paris have steadfastly refused to admit despite U.S. insistence on the point.

But in North Korea this week the top Viet Cong representative virtually conceded that North Vietnamese troops are fighting in the South. He also indicated that North Koreans are fighting with the Viet Cong and more help might be sought in the future.

Meanwhile on Sunday the Vietnam war will become the longest conflict in which the U.S. has ever been involved, surpassing the 6½-year American Revolution against Britain which ended in 1781.

Since the first U.S. solder was killed in Vietnam in December, 1961, 25,000 American servicemen have lost their lives.

●

In Saigon there are rumors of another government collapse in the offing as the result of a power struggle between President Thieu and Vice-President Ky.

The latest crisis was touched off by the ouster of Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, a powerful ally of Ky who had built up an empire as head of the nation's police forces.

Ky resigned as director of South Vietnam's civil defence organization as a protest gesture, but has been unable to raise enough support to openly challenge Thieu. A split between the two men had been predicted since Ky stepped down as premier before last year's elections to take the No. 2 position on the Thieu ticket.

●

After a seemingly endless series of setbacks, Prime Minister Harold Wilson may have at last found a political issue on which he can regain some lost ground.

A constitutional crisis erupted in Britain when the House of Lords voted down a government order imposing new sanctions against Rhodesia in line with a recent United Nations resolution.

The order had been passed by the House of Commons and Wilson warned the hereditary upper chamber of the consequences if it tried to block the measure.

With the encouragement of Conservative Leader Edward Heath the Tory-dominated Lords did vote no, but only by a slim margin.

Heath got little backing from Britain's Conservative newspapers and Wilson, with public support apparently behind him, moved quickly to call off all-party negotiations on reform of the Lords and announce his intention of bringing about more radical changes on his own.

Conditions returned closer to normal in France this week as thousands of workers went back to their jobs and the country prepared for the crucial general election Sunday.

After the run-off vote is completed on June 30 it is expected that Premier Georges Pompidou will still be in office with a narrow majority but lacking the strong mandate which President de Gaulle has been pressing for.

Clumsy Writing Mars Pioneer Saga

GENTLE PIONEERS by Audrey Y. Morris. Musson Book Company; $6.50.

Reviewed by Eugenie L. Myles

Suppose you are handed a gift package containing five separate items. How are you going to express warm appreciation of each one?

Or suppose you must decide which of the five digits of your right hand you cherish most?

This is the kind of challenge awaiting the reader of Gentle Pioneers, a biographical account of the lives of five personalities notable in early Canadiana. They are the writers Susanna Moodie and Catherine Parr Traill, often referred to as the Strickland sisters; their husbands John Dunbar Moodie and Thomas Traill; and their brother, Samuel Strickland.

As its title suggests, the book attempts to follow the diverse pioneering experiences of these new Canadians as they established homes for themselves in the backwoods of Upper Canada.

After a year of apprenticeship-farming, in 1826 Samuel settled on bushland on the Peterborough region of what is now Ontario. Following him from England in 1832, his presently-famous sisters and their husbands acquired homes nearby.

Now the reader is kept busy visiting in three households; he must not linger too long in any one; he must be off to discover what is befalling the other families.

For, of course, many lively experiences, delightful and painful, comic and tragic—the lot of pioneers anywhere—do befall the families. In recounting these experiences, this new book cannot compare in immediacy and in vividness, in humor and in drama, with the two or three celebrated tales written by the sisters themselves. But it does enlarge our acquaintance with them and particularly with the three men, John Moodie, Thomas Traill and that most successful pioneer, Samuel Strickland.

To a kind of clumsiness, then, in the theme must be added a frequent clumsiness in the writing. Here, for instance, are the Traills making their way through the darkness to their new home:

"Catherine was still weak from illness and from hunger. She had to summon strength that she had never used before, to hurry through the dark woods after the rapidly disappearing stranger, back and forth through underbrush, falling headlong into a creek, and arriving at Peterborough at midnight, still soaking wet."

There is over-insistence, too, upon such words as "lonely" and "brutal" and "gentleman farmer." In fact, the author's main thesis seems to suggest that these families, being of "gentle" birth, were more unsuited than others to "roughing it" with success.

"It was brutally hard and lonely labor, even for Samuel," she writes; two sentences later she mentions again "his lonely clearing."

Yet his very success is surely a contradiction of the point she is trying to make. He was "intelligent, imaginative, and never had to learn the same lesson twice."

We also question other judgments, such as when the author, writing of Catherine says, "her kind of gentleness was uncommon in the colony where brutal hardship often created brutality in the settlers."

Susanna, especially, bemoaned her lot in the bush, seeming to be unaware that one may be no less a lady because circumstance compels one to milk a cow, or, worse still, to sit down to table with one's servants.

In Britain her father had but newly established the family as "landed gentry." Had they remained in London, writes the author, they would have been "lower middle class." Perhaps that is why, in her writing, Susanna shows herself to be so acridly class-conscious.

At any rate, the irony of fate has decreed that only those books of the Strickland sisters which are the direct outcome of that backwoods challenge have become Canadian classics.

Both prolific writers, they published in addition poetry and quantities of fiction. But they are remembered for their autobiographical accounts of their own intensely-

When Life Was Lonely And Brutal lived experiences, Susanna Moodie's Roughing It in the Bush and Catherine Traill's The Backwoods of Canada.

Adding to the dimensions of their portrayals are John Moodie's Scenes and Adventures as a Soldier and Settler and Samuel Strickland's Twenty-Seven Years in Canada West.

Gentle Pioneers, then, despite its shortcomings, contributes its own share to our understanding of, and interest in, our Canadian beginnings.

That this is an increasingly growing interest is noted in a recent article in the Financial Post; in that article Publisher Mel Hurtig of Edmonton reports that now one in four books sold in his stores is either by a Canadian author or about Canada.

This book should further whet that interest, perhaps sending the reader back to the original writings of this vocal pioneer family.

CONSPIRACY PROBED

Canadian Hero Shot to Death

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

At the present time, with politics and assassination so much in the news, Canadian readers will find it interesting to look back exactly a century and read of the assassination of D'Arcy McGee.

It was on April 7, 1868, after a late-night sitting in the Canadian House of Commons that McGee was slain. Just as he was about to enter his boarding house on Sparks Street in Ottawa, the assassin put a bullet through his brain.

The newly-created Dominion of Canada was profoundly shocked by his death; there was a panic in the cities of Ontario and Quebec; numerous arrests were made. When Patrick James Whelan, a tailor, was found guilty of the crime and executed, there were few who sincerely believed the courts had actually probed to the bottom of the case.

Mr. T. P. Slattery, the author of The Assassination of D'Arcy McGee is, as was McGee, a lawyer of Irish extraction practising in Montreal. His work is a painstaking labor of love.

His Last Words Were Plea For Unity In Canada

and religious questions rife at the time. The title, then, is rather misleading, for the book is in reality a full scale biography, not a case history of an assassination.

It traces McGee's life from his birth in Ireland in 1825. As a young man he was an avid nationalist, active in the Young Ireland movement that culminated in the abortive uprising of 1848. McGee was a newspaperman and something of a poet, and when he fled to America he had no trouble finding work as a journalist on the Boston Pilot.

New England, however, in spite of its democratic freedom and republican government, did not live up to McGee's expectations.

He soon became convinced that the Irish were second class citizens in America; they were exploited by the wealthy and forced to live in slum areas in the growing American cities, deprived of their religious and economic freedom and of their dignity as human beings.

A trip to Canada convinced him that the British Colony, with responsible government and religious freedom, offered greater hope to his fellow countrymen. This change of heart aroused the hostility of many Irish Americans, as did his speaking tour of Ireland where he described in colorful language the unhappy lot of the Irish in New England, and urged the Irish who wished to go abroad to go to Canada instead.

McGee himself moved to Montreal and was soon elected to the legislative assembly. He became convinced that only in union would the British colonies in North America have a chance to survive after the American Civil War.

In the Fenian Raids, the Irish of the northern states were demonstrating their willingness to act as the vanguard of the forces that would annex Canada to the American republic.

As one reads Slattery's account of Confederation, with the focus on McGee, one becomes aware that Canada was created as a result of an interesting fusion of expediency and idealism operating in defiance of geography, economics, and religious and racial differences.

The fundamental assumption motivating McGee and the other architects of Confederation was that in Canada it might be possible to create a different democracy, fusing tradition with freedom in an effort to create an environment where men might live in dignity and peace.

Even after Confederation became a reality, McGee was called upon to make additional personal sacrifices. His ability and reputation entitled him to a position in the first cabinet.

Sir John A. Macdonald, however, in his attempts to balance the claims of different regional, racial and religious groups, could find no easy way to include the Irish Catholic McGee who was still representing a Montreal constituency. McGee voluntarily stepped aside and took his place in parliament as a private member.

His final speech in the House of Commons, before going to his death on the streets, was a plea for Canadian unity: "I speak not as the representative of any race or of any province but as thoroughly and emphatically a Canadian, ready to recognize the claims of my Canadian fellow subjects, from the farthest east to the farthest west, as equally as those of my nearest neighbor."

The Assassination of D'Arcy McGee is both a timely work and a fine tribute to the memory of a great Canadian.

From reading it and pondering the fate of McGee, modern readers may learn another lesson that history teaches; when voters vote for personalities rather than programs, when emotionalism replaces intelligence, the idealistic politician is often sacrificed and democracy itself is placed in peril.

Major Success

The Vancouver writer, Marian Palmer, has scored a major success with her first novel, The White Boar, reviewed in these pages last month. The story, set in the reign of Richard III, has been chosen as this month's selection by the Literary Guild. Mrs. Palmer is reportedly at work on a second book which carries her heroes, the Lovells, into the reign of Henry VII and the rebellion of Perkin Warbeck.

UNDER TABLE

That's Uncle

This novel starts out at a cracking pace as Mr. Cornish assembles a large and varied gallery of eccentrics.

Aunty May and Uncle Bert, for example, run a little corner-store in Toronto's Sherbourne Street in a haphazard yet enormously successful way.

They wilfully court disaster and hide their money away so that they need not face up to success and return to the little English village where they promised themselves they would live in their retirement.

"What you doing there?" he asked. "What's up?" ...

"Watching TV," he said from below.

"Watching television! From there?"

"Why not?" ...

May, who was wandering about the room plucking at her cotton nightdress, said in elaboration, "Bert don't want a fall and break a bone."

The characters are handled with a Pinteresque absurdity that reaches under the inarticulateness of ordinary minds to reveal the poignancy of baffled and inexpressible feelings.

Most of the dialogue is very good, but the plot is less successfully developed.

The story hinges around a minor Canadian composer, Ronald Napier, and his daughter Isobel's attempts to move her large and growing family from their trailer into her father's vast house and restore the building to its former grandeur as the York Conservatorium.

The characters become so obsessed with their elaborate plans for concerts, musical biographies and the like that the reader who does not belong to Toronto's music circles may well feel shut out and begin to lose interest.

There is a great deal in this novel that is funny and memorable, but these brighter patches are dimmed by the limited appeal of the book's over-all structure.—A.W.J.

Sixth Novel By Moore Just Out

Brain Moore's sixth novel, I Am Mary Dunne, is just out from McClelland & Stewart. The story takes place in New York, but through a series of flashbacks, the reader follows Mary's life in Nova Scotia, Toronto and Montreal.

Mr. Moore emigrated to Canada from Ireland in 1948 and now lives in California.

Is She Minor Novelist Or Important Figure?

ETHEL WILSON, by Desmond Pacey; (Twayne's World Authors Series) Burns and MacEachern; $5.25; 194 pp.; bibliography.

Reviewed by R. G. LAWRENCE

All students of Canadian literature and all admirers of this Canadian novelist will applaud the intention behind this fine critical study.

With appreciative sincerity Dr. Pacey has written about Mrs. Wilson as a person, has quoted at length from her letters, and has analyzed in detail her six novels, eighteen stories and nine essays.

Appreciation, sometimes over-enthusiastic, is the keynote to Ethel Wilson. Yet the tone is damaged by one unfortunate circumstance.

Many readers will likely begin with the fly-leaf; in the two-paragraph comment on the book the publishers report that Dr. Pacey considers Mrs. Wilson "a minor novelist of genuine distinction."

The reader soon recovers from this inauspicious introduction to the subject as he responds to Dr. Pacey's enthusiasm for the novelist as an observer of the human comedy, as a philosopher, as a stylist.

Then, as the reader sweeps to a splendid climax in the final chapter, once more he reads, "a minor novelist of genuine distinction." The positiveness of the last two words hides behind the first three.

Some readers will, however, derive satisfaction (or consolation) from a subsequent statement: "... in the still emerging literature of Canada, she is a figure of great importance."

The critic's warmest appreciation is divided between The Innocent Traveller and Swamp Angel.

He finds both to be subtle and complex novels, with an emphasis on tolerance and joie de vivre. In his study of the former book, Dr. Pacey analyzes the social panorama, extending over one hundred years, the love of B.C., the patterns of symbolism, the humor.

In the latter novel the critic's emphasis is on the patterns of characterization, on the distinctions between people who have a fundamental tolerance or sympathy and those who have not. Dr. Pacey is of interest, too, for his study of Mrs. Wilson's skilful use of light and darkness in this novel.

Dr. Pacey finds much to commend in Hetty Dorval and Equations of Love, but considers Love and Salt Water the author's "least rewarding" novel.

On the whole, he regards Mrs. Wilson especially praiseworthy for the clarity and objectivity with which she

Commendable But Never Completely Satisfying

views life, "a principle of simultaneous involvement and detachment," and for her artistic skill, "the ability to weave all the elements of the art of fiction into a single fabric."

He also notes how often Donne's 'No Man is an Island' theme is a background to Mrs. Wilson's writing.

For all its commendable qualities, Pacey's Ethel Wilson is not completely satisfying.

Its exhaustive detail tells the reader already familiar with Mrs. Wilson's work more than he may wish to be told, and should a reader seek a first acquaintance with Mrs. Wilson through this critical study he will find that Dr. Pacey has robbed him of some pleasures of a later reading of the novels and short stories by providing detailed plot analyses and summaries. (The final chapter of this study is probably the best introduction to Mrs. Wilson's artistic achievement.)

One suspects, however, that Dr. Pacey considered university students as the most likely readers of his book: he is inclined to point out the obvious and to use with uncomfortable frequency the pedagogue's device of reinforcement.

Dr. Pacey often makes a perfectly sound and apparently original point about Mrs. Wilson's ideas or technique; he then buttresses this comment with a quotation from the author, and the reader discovers that Dr. Pacey has simply paraphrased Mrs. Wilson's words.

Repetition serves the critic too often as well. There are in the book at least three instances of his use of the same quotation from Mrs. Wilson twice within a few pages.

Despite secondary flaws of this kind, Ethel Wilson will be a valuable tool for generations of writers of research papers, and not merely because it is as yet the only full-length study of the author.

Certainly a major point in favor of Dr. Pacey's critical study is his ability to communicate his own emotional pleasure in an aesthetic response to Mrs. Wilson's work. It is this response that will lead many readers back to Ethel Wilson's novels and stories with renewed and heightened enjoyment.

The Federation, in collaboration with colleagues from the province of Quebec, successfully organized the Centenary Festivals of Music last year under the authority of the Federal Centennial Commission.

Among the 70 or 80 delegates who have so far signified their intention of registering, will be the president of the Federation, E. G. Pridham of Toronto and vice president Gordon Hancock of Regina.

DIAMOND IN THE GROOVE

When Will He Free Himself?

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Shostakovich; Symphony No. 10 Karajan; Berlin Phil.; DGG 139020.

Poor Shostakovich. From the age of 19 his life as a composer has been a monstrous see-saw controlled by Russian party politics.

Time and again he has composed a symphony for which he was lauded and lionized as a public hero.

Then, encouraged by such a reception, he has written another symphony for which he was banished to a metaphoric salt-mine until he could see the light, repent and write himself back into favor with a musical pamphlet extolling his country's ideology.

SHOSTAKOVICH
. . . under pressure

Many Westerners feel angry that such a talent should be prostituted in this way and blame the composer for the banalities he writes into his compositions.

LAST ACT

Others remain hopeful that one day he will free himself completely and, perhaps as his last act on earth write what he has kept bottled up inside him for so long.

The real tragedy lies in the fact that, despite the suffering and deprivation it has brought him, he still believes in his country's dogma.

If he were a rebel he could escape and thumb his nose at the party from afar as so many others have done. If he were an out-and-out unthinking party man he could banish creative impulses and produce the patriotic pap which would please the authorities.

LIFE OF CONFLICT

But he can take neither escape route and has been torn by deep searing conflicts throughout his adult life.

The limiting boundaries set by the party stem from the idea that music is good only if it is general and simple enough to be enjoyed by all.

It must not be subjective, mysterious, grotesque, supernatural and above all it must avoid formalism inculcated by the decadent West.

For these reasons Shostakovich's 10th Symphony, which is concerned with man and his place in the universe, is still a restless, questing work with only an occasional suggestion of a possible answer to the questions posed.

The first movement starts with dark string tones and even when the lyric clarinet enters the restless rumbling continues underneath. Tension is never released and conflict increases to the entrance of the horn motif.

Constant time-changes bring a sense of further agitation and the melody is unimpressive.

Towards the end of the long first movement, all the voices hammer polyphonically like a headache-remedy commercial but shafts of sweet string tone suggest a glimmer of light, a possibility of a resolution before the dark tune reasserts itself.

Shostakovich has been reprimanded for his interest in the grotesque but the infernal scherzo of ceaseless witch-whirlings of the second movement shows that the devil has not been cast out of him yet.

Von Karajan's sudden cutback before the final crescendo, which sounds like the snapping shut of a louvre, afterwards gradually reopened, is most effective.

The horn and the motif in the third movement probably represent the composer himself in his endless search.

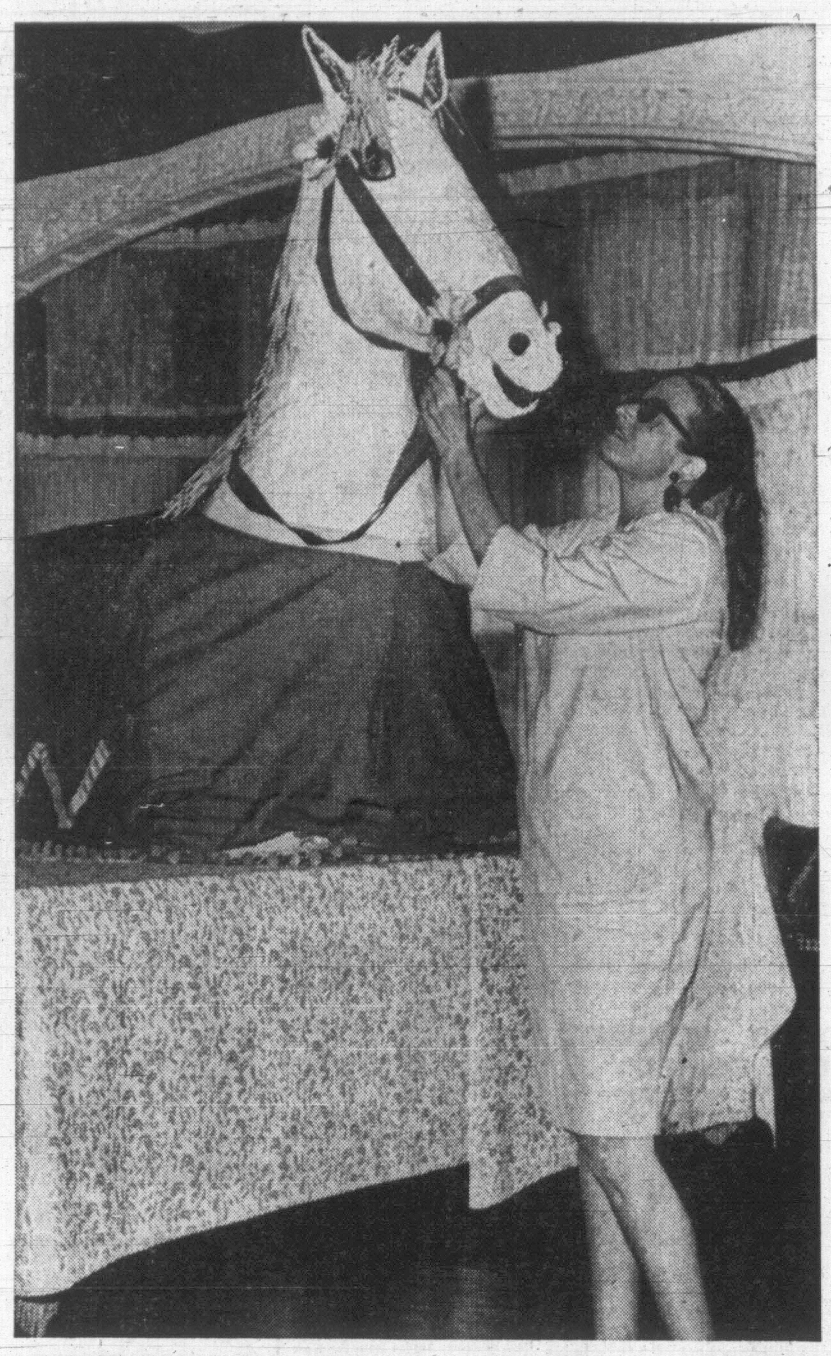
ADD PATHOS

Influences of Mahler, Tchaikowsky and the Eastern quality of Russian music add a pathos to this movement.

All the wistful passages end in question marks and all the brighter ones are exclamatory. The infinitely quiet horn used here is excellent.

Von Karajan bypasses much of the over-romantic, grotesque and trite and brings out the essential pathos of the searching artist which makes the symphony valuable.

Despite official condemnation of "subjective" music, this symphony depends very much on the mood of the listener at the time; sometimes it is exquisitely moving, at others simply annoying.



AFFECTION of his owner is lavished on very special horse which has spent the winter reclining on the billiard table in the old Butchart home in the famous Gardens. Mrs. Ian Ross promises the spirited creature fun and games and the applause that all show horses revel in when the sunset revue, Just For Fun, opens July 1 on the Butchart Gardens' floral stage.

Young Pianist Guest Artist

An outstanding young pianist will appear as guest artist with the Victoria Symphony in the forthcoming season.

Miss Camille Inkman has been studying during the past year with Robin Wood at the Victoria Conservatory of Music.

A winner for all Canada in the Centennial Music Festival competition at St. John's last year and multi-winner at Vancouver and Victoria music festivals this spring, Miss Inkman's playing was compared by adjudicators to that of Rachmaninoff.

The 18-year-old pianist will play Beethoven's great Emperor Concerto with the orchestra in its regular series, Oct. 27 and 28.

She will also perform the work at out-of-town concerts in Duncan and Campbell River.

In the latter town of 8,500 population a concert committee recently sold 500 subscriptions for a series of Victoria Symphony concerts that will include guest soloists and the Amity Singers.

He Was Hooked on Theatre After Picket Line Shows

By SCOTT TYRER

TORONTO (CP) — George Luscombe, founder, director and producer of Toronto Workshop Productions is a dedicated man — dedicated to the theatre as a way of people talking to each other.

He began in theatre in the late 1940s, while in his teens, entertaining picket lines.

"A group of young CCFers would go out and do song-and-dance shows from the back of a truck," Luscombe says, "and we'd change costumes in a garage."

It may not have been a promising introduction to theatre, but it was enough to get him hooked.

In 1950 he went to Wales and joined a small repertory company and then moved to Manchester and into pantomime. At this point, training and experience — not money — was what he was after.

As luck would have it, he met Joan Littlewood, founder of her own theatre workshop. was impressed by her methods and joined the group in 1953.

"I saw her productions in Edinburgh," he said, "and I was overwhelmed by the excitement of the writing and content of the play.

"It was something worthwhile."

TURNING POINT

For Luscombe, this was a turning point in his career. He always knew what he wanted to do — now he knew how to do it.

When he returned to Canada in 1959, he organized an amateur company in a basement theatre in downtown Toronto.

His company — Toronto Workshop Productions — was a new group, and did a lot of new things.

It opened the Colonnade Theatre in 1964 as a fully professional company with Before Compiegne. It was the first company to play in York University's Burton Auditorium with The Golem and found a new use for Toronto's Nathan Phillips Square — with a capacity of 6,000 persons, it was a great place to do Hey Rube.

Luscombe's was the only Toronto company to be invited to perform at Expo 67.

Brigadoon Made Money

Other officers are Janet Senior, vice president; Marjorie Shipley, secretary; Pat Walton, assistant secretary; Milt Williams, treasurer. Advisory board members are Margaret Duff, Frank Brawn, Tony Wilkins, Errol Thorten and John Bray.

It was reported that the spring production of Brigadoon was a financial success.

Plans are well under way for production of an up-dated version of Romberg's Desert Song. It will be presented during the last week of November at McPherson Playhouse.

Taboos Tumble In New Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — U.S. film-makers appeared ready to take another significant step in the direction of greater frankness in dealing with sex, obscene language and other subjects once considered taboo on the screen.

Vast changes have been in evidence in the film treatment of sex, nudity and language. Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? introduced profanity and tough talk about sex relations.

The Pawnbroker, Hawaii and other films exposed female breasts. Such actors as Charlton Heston (Planet of the Apes), Michael Parks (The Bible), Terrence Stamp (Far from the Madding Crowd) and Paul Newman (Cool Hand Luke) were seen nude from a rear view.

TWO BARBERS

Rex Harrison and Richard Burton have been named to star in Staircase, based on the London and New York play about two homosexual barbers.

Twentieth Century-Fox is planning a film of Myra Breckenridge, Gore Vidal's sex-filled satire with a hero who changes gender.

Paramount has announced the future filming of Tropic of Cancer, the Henry Miller novel long banned from the U.S. as pornographic.

Candy, the book described as a pornographic satire, has recently been filmed with an all-star cast.

At least two new films now entering the theatres feature the use of a vulgar expression for excrement; they are Rosemary's Baby and Burton-Taylor's Boom.

UNNATURAL ACT

The British-made I'll Never Forget What's 'is Name was recently condemned by the National Catholic Office for Motion Pictures, successor to the Legion of Decency, because of the film's depiction of an "unnatural" sex act.

There are a few voices within the industry who argue that pushing film morality to the limit is an unwise course.

They point out that the top grossers of all time—The Sound of Music, Gone with the Wind, The Ten Commandments, Ben-Hur and Mary Poppins were family pictures.

They also argue that the most consistent financial success among film studios is Disney's, which has always made films for the entire family.

It's also the best. Most restaurants don't steam fish.

Steamed fish is crisp, yet light as a snowflake. But the chef must take the fish from the stove at the split second it's ready.

There's no way to save an over-steamed fish. At the Chinese Village we just gather more steam and start fresh. With another Juan de Fuca salmon.

We might lose a fish now and then. But we've never lost a customer. (If a chef loses two Juan de Fuca salmon in a row, it is said that he just moves to a restaurant that doesn't serve steamed fish.

GERMAN PLAYS STAGED BY PHOENIX THEATRE

Two interesting post-war plays by German authors that deal with the same theme—the alteration and destruction of freedom—will be staged in the next two weeks at University of Victoria's Phoenix Theatre.

Dates are Wednesday, through Saturday, and July 2-6.

Faculty and students have volunteered their services in order to assist in developing a scholarship fund for the growing number of students majoring in theatre in the Bachelor of Fine Arts program.

The theatre division, expanding rapidly under its newly appointed head, Dr. Ralph Allen, is attracting a large number of students from points as far away as the Eastern United States, many of whom will need financial aid in order to complete their degrees.

DOUBLE BILL

First play on the double bill, Freedom for Clemens, is directed by Carl Hare.

Frederick Edell directs the second play, Dr. Korczak and the Children. A revealing commentary on events in Poland during the Second World War, it is staged as a contemporary commedia del'arte.

In the cast are Carl Hare, an impartial commentator who becomes gradually involved in the action of the play; James Netherton and Alan Munro, two actors whose roles force them to oppose one another; Susan Roy, an actress, and eight-year-old Gordon Schwartz.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

It's All About Music At Vancouver Festival

For the first time under the artistic direction of Canadian impresario Gordon Hilker, the festival has dropped straight drama and full opera and concentrated on music of a more popular kind, and dance.

It pays tribute to the operatic medium with a single promenade concert starring Anna Moffo with the Vancouver Symphony in a program of Italian operatic arias.

For the classical music lovers there is a sip here and there at the banquet table—France's Parrenin Quartet in a Sunday night recital as well as single performances by the Vancouver Symphony Chamber Ensemble, the Royal London Philharmonic Orchestra and Vancouver mezzo Audrey Glass in recital with John Avison.

It must, however, be said that everything else on the menu is among the best of its particular kind.

For example, the Strauss operetta Rosalinda, which belongs as much in the classical as in the popular realm. This has famed English actor Cyril Ritchard and soprano Jean Fenn (called the most ideal Rosalinda of all time) in the leads.

Then there is the exciting Broadway hit musical, Sweet Charity with Chita Rivera in the title role; and a first for Vancouver—the off-Broadway world premiere of the musical, And Now—Noel Coward.

Festival-goers will thus be getting a first look at a show that will go straight on to Boston and Broadway.

GO-POWER

The complete company of the Robert Joffrey New York City Centre Ballet consisting of 40 dancers and 40 musicians, will start the festival off with performances from July 2 to 7.

Joffrey, who sees ballet as "total theatre" has created a sensation with his arresting ideas and choreography.

As a conclusion, in August, the festival will present Bayanihan, a troup performing the songs and dances of the Philippines.

ART IN REVIEW

Hop, Skip and Some Lumps

By TED LINDBERG

Let's take a running, jumping, ricocheting, pausing (and occasionally stopping) tour through the 1968 annual jury show at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

We have to, because there are roughly 50 artists and 60 pieces of work: perhaps 10 more artists and twice as many works as there ought to be.

Lindberg

No juror, myself included, would have the temerity to cut a show down to truly significant works, especially when the gallery is planning to fill two rooms.

Nonetheless, the gallery got a show, the prize-winners got their prizes and honorable mentions, and the juror (Doris Shadbolt of the Vancouver Art Gallery) got out of town.

Don't Prove Much

Jury shows are an anachronism, definitely on the way out, and in a way spoiled by their own success. They just don't prove much any more, except what we can easily predict.

They are most often more expensive and time-consuming than they are worth and cause lots of hurt feelings because the ground rules are really indistinct in the minds of most people.

Yet at the same time, people love them, live for them, insist on them and often never get them.

What the juror does, of course, is to pick the obvious pros, seek out other works that show great professional promise (mainly art students with considerable training), and then, if need be, fill in with gifted amateurs (those who are equipped to do something well, and leave it alone), and primitives so bad they're good.

I can't begin to make adequate comments on all of it, but I'm going to make one-word or one-phrase summations on many individuals until some time when each is fully represented in a show.

I will also commit a few sins of omission.

The bulk of my remarks will be devoted to a few interesting newcomers.

The first prize winner "Toy Blips Tree" by Steve Ramos, a relative newcomer, was a deserved but convenient decision because the juror escaped completely the dilemma of having to decide between several superlative paintings.

New Shape

Among the entries, which I saw before the judging, there were plaster maquettes, wood carvings, gewgaws and a curious model of a rustic cabin (?), but nothing which really qualified as sculpture in the esthetic and technical sense.

The disbelief and dismay that was recorded during the opening ceremonies were most likely voiced by those who, having seen so little non-objective sculpture in this area (somehow the term "lead balloon" comes to mind), were not aware of the plastic possibilities of steel and paint.

Take a good look at this piece (until June 30), because this too is the new shape of things, and think of the prospects of folding and twisting steel like suede leather; the organic-mechanical contradictions that make for visual stimulation as one circles it.

The Predictables (and compare this with last year's show or next) in painting and graphics are:

R. Ciccimarra (teetering); Aileen Devereux (best when misinterpreted as non-representational); John Dobereiner (formal space-prober and canvas-shaper); R. A. Emery (round format, defies gravity); Nita Forest (alludes to existence of nudity in Victoria).

Don Harvey (super, indisputable, overpowering, snap-crackling, smell of ozone: or like Technicolor through 3-D goggles handed out by Mr. H. in the foyer); P. K. Irwin (iconic, mystical tattoo); Flemming Jorgensen (apt, poetic, understated wash-painting); Virginia Lewis (atmospheric); Stephen Lowe (Chinese neoclassic, wants a cultural revolution); Valentina Polushin (academic).

Breast Fetishism

The newcomers that strike any responsive chord include: P. W. Quin (big, bold, abstract paintings based on human figure, with Pop symbols, identity confusions and breast fetishism); Lynne Andrews (gentle, sensual, surreal fantasy-prints); and Elsa Evans (intelligent use of serigraphy: a subdued abstract composition of quiet but considerable charm).

There are, in addition, three absolute standouts among the new and the youthful:

Gail Bigsby, a Uvic student, with more talent and energy than she yet knows quite what to do, presents us with a rich compendium of ideas and devices, throwbacks and associations in "Waiting Full Tilt on the Other Side of the Street."

It is an acrylic painting with frottage (rubbed-on images), bound together not by any of the classic unities but, by the intensity of the imagination which governs the enterprise.

She pushes almost absolutely to the full limit of what can be distilled on one canvas, without ever risking the accusation of busyness, because the elements of line, form, color, texture and spatial definition are so inconsistent (yet so integrated), that there seems to be no interference. The painting is a sumptuous, intoxicating perceptual experience.

At Random

T. S. Burnett (another newcomer unknown to anyone I've talked to) is the author of an almost equally mystifying composition titled "Urban Scape," produced through a process he calls Negagraph, which has something to do with reproduced blow-ups of drawing fragments, apparently arranged randomly.

Although he exerts much more economy, using only black on yellowed-white, one is again caught up in the illimitable possibilities of the line: its thickness, its rhythms, its structural possibilities in deep space.

"Urban Scape" is a parable of the open situation, implying the many solutions possible and that they can be combined in one painting.

Unaccountably stuck back in the Massey Gallery, at the rear of the building, is an ambitious and mature painting by Kathy White, recipient of the Mark Kearly Award for secondary schools.

Titled "Submarine Symphonie," it could be a magical mystery tour on a stylized killer whale. Rendered in fearless proportions and with genuine verve and authority, it easily contends with the best of the newcomers.

Such are the joys of the annual day of reckoning.

Uncle Charlie Knows for Sure

By AL FORREST

It is election night in Canada and in just five minutes, only 300 seconds, the radio and TV stations will begin to announce the results.

It is now 7:56 p.m. Tension begins to grow. Will Stanfield be top banana? Is a rose by any other name the prime minister of Canada?

It is now zero minus three minutes and counting.

Two minutes, 59 seconds . . . 58 . . . 57 . . .

A last minute dash to the refrigerator. Let's see . . . potato salad? . . . cold ham? . . . no, it's election night, something special . . . a little balogna perhaps . . .

Back to the TV set.

It is now zero minus two and counting. One minute, 59 . . . 58 . . . 57 . . . 56 . . .

"Did you buy the champagne?"

"What if we lose?"

"We can't lose. What if we run out of champagne?"

"There's rye and Scotch. What if we lose?"

"We can't . . . Can we? Well, if we lose we mix the rye and the Scotch and the champagne . . ."

One minute to zero.

"Turn it up. Get ready."

"Everybody come!"

Thirty seconds.

"What if the clock's wrong?"

"Shh. Listen."

"What if the TV set goes blank?"

"Quiet."

"What if it explodes. Oh, dear!"

"Everybody quiet, now."

Ten, nine, eight, seven, six, five . . .

"Oh, dear God please let us win, I've got ten dollars riding on . . ."

Two, one . . . zero!

★ ★ ★

At the very same instant, Uncle Charlie in Halifax has just finished off a bottle of rye in celebration of his party's resounding victory.

As his party's total grows bigger and bigger, Uncle Charlie, a rather big party himself, slips lower and lower until he slides gracefully under the table.

There's a grin on his face as he contentedly clutches the empty bottle, knowing that he has once more helped the good guys to win.

★ ★ ★

At the very same moment — when the TV returns start in B.C. — sweet Nanny is quietly content, too.

Cold sober, of course. Nanny hasn't touched a drop since New Year's Eve when she accidently dipped her tea bag in a hot brandy.

But she lives in Montreal, you see, — the British Quarter, to be sure — and she's been watching election returns for three hours now — it's 11 p.m. there — and she's just dozed off.

★ ★ ★

But not young Debbie. She's at party headquarters in Toronto all ajoy and her mini-skirt flapping in the late evening air.

She's known for more than an hour who the next prime minister of Canada is and she's glad . . . glad . . . glad.

★ ★ ★

She's so tickled she's kissing everybody in sight. Why she even kissed a young man from the Other Party.

She wouldn't dream of doing that any other time but after all her party is so far out in front that she can afford to be generous to the vanquished.

★ ★ ★

But, as I say, it's zero hour in British Columbia.

Victor? Vanquished? What do we know? It's just beginning.

★ ★ ★

LAW OF THE LAND — The Canada Elections Act says that no Canadian returns can be announced in B.C. until the last poll closes.

Fair enough.

But all polls should close at the same time and get on with the counting at the same time and the telecasting at the same time.

When polls close at 8 p.m. in Ontario they can close at 5 p.m. in British Columbia. It wouldn't hurt to let B.C. workers off at 2 p.m. so they will have time to vote.

As an editorial writer would say: It's time for Ottawa to end this farce, stop this stupidity and smarten up down there.

IT'S STEPHANIE STEEL'S first exhibition and it won't be her last if she continues to paint with the feeling she expresses in her landscape paintings. Her show is being held at Hartley's Studio on Fort Street. The talented artist has other skills. She makes ceramics and is presently working on a children's book of poems.

FIGHTS NATURE'S BATTLE

Housewife Poet Turns to Painting

By HUMPHRY DAVY

She wanted to be a poet but she blossomed into an artist.

That's the way things turned out for Stephanie Quainton Steel, 140 Goward Road, a housewife and mother of two children.

That Mrs. Steel is still very much a poet at heart is evident in her superb landscape paintings on exhibition this week at Hartley's Picture Craft Studio, 748 Fort Street.

She expresses with brush and paint what she originally would have expressed in words—the feel of the landscape—its ever-changing moods—its delicate colors under morning and evening skies.

ISLAND SCENES

It's her first exhibition, the result of four years' study and practice.

She first studied under Stephen Lowe, well-known Chinese artist, who considered her one of his best pupils. Then she took lessons from landscape painter Trevor Smith.

"I learned a lot from Oriental art," she said. "I like its simplicity."

But before taking up painting, Mrs. Steel wanted to become a poet. And she might have succeeded had she continued. Her works were considered good enough to be published in the Alberta Poetry Year Book and other periodicals.

She hasn't altogether given up writing. She is presently working on a children's book named "Tide Pools" and is hopeful of finding a publisher.

OTHER TALENTS

She has other talents. She makes ceramics and can claim to be a house builder.

Six years ago her husband dismantled the old Gillies farmhouse on Granville Street and with the materials they both built their present home. She's quite proud of this project.

One of her activities is horse riding and for a number of years she was a member of the Western Horsemen's Club. She owns a thoroughbred, born on King's Park, Kentucky. She bought it at Sandown race track when the horse was retired.

Perhaps her success as a landscape painter is due to her love of nature.

"People today are getting farther and farther away from nature," she said. "They don't understand it. They still look on wildlife as game. They don't seem to realize they are just another form of life—just as we are."

She thinks the educational system is partly to blame for the present gulf between man and nature.

Studies are oriented towards world problems—man's relationship to man, she added. "They forget the real problem is at home—environmental decline. Every year more and more wild animals are in danger of becoming extinct, waters are becoming polluted; soils are being wasted or misused."

If nature is fighting a losing battle, Mrs. Steel's paintings will certainly awaken interest in the struggle.

Drama Week Set

From July 20 to 27, the International Drama Week of Student Theatres will again be held in Erlangen, just north of Nuernberg. Cancelled in 1967, this annual rally of academical amateur theatre companies has previously taken place for 16 years in a row.

Roy Rogers Coming to PNE

The giant grandstand show gets under way on August 17, opening day of PNE and continues for 14 days and nights until the fair closes on Labor Day, September 2.

Evening grandstand shows will be held in Empire Stadium and close with a fireworks display.

All matinee performances will be held in the new 15,000-seat Pacific Coliseum.

He will be followed by Miss America runner-up and singer Anita Bryant, who appears on the show from August 22 to August 34 inclusive.

GO WILD

The children will go wild over Roy Rogers and Dale Evans when they perform from August 26 through August 29.

The grandstand show's final three days — August 30, 31 and September 2 — will feature tenor Sergio Franchi.

He was later discovered by Hollywood while playing a part in the Broadway show Brother Rat. Warner Brothers signed him to appear in Room Service, the Hollywood version of Brother Rat.

He continued making movies until the Second World War when he enlisted in the Navy and saw action in the Pacific, including Tarawa.

FILM SERIES

After a series of films, including Teahouse of the August Moon, Eddie returned to singing in the Broadway show Music Man, in which he took over from Robert Preston. He has been doing a solo act on the nightclub circuit since 1964.

Anita Bryant's deep interest in religion has moved her to appear in concerts with evangelist Billy Graham and to sing sacred music to audiences throughout the world.

She has collaborated with Dr. Norman Vincent Peale in an album of sacred music. In 1968, Anita took part in the annual Congressional Wives Prayer Breakfast, which attracted President and Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey. Anita gave the benediction by singing How Great Thou Art.

For seven consecutive years, Anita appeared with Bob Hope on his Christmas tours to remote armed services bases. Her work on the tour has won her the USO Silver Medallion; the Veterans' of Foreign Wars Award and Gold Medal and Citation and the National Guards' Guardsman Award.

She has appeared on the Lawrence Welk Show and the Mike Douglas Show and starred in Guys and Dolls, The Fantastiks and Do I Hear A Waltz.

They hold more box office records in rodeo and state fair appearances than any other team in the entertainment industry. More than half the audiences for their television shows are adults, yet the King and Queen of the Cowboys have been favorites of children for years.

WITH DALE

Roy has starred in 90 motion pictures — many of them with wife Dale Evans as his co-star.

Despite their many successes in the movies and private industry, they continue sharing their good fortunes with the less favored people of the world.

Among Dale's many awards are: 1964 voted as Woman of the World by International Orphans Inc.; Church Woman of the Year by Religious Heritage of American.

Roy has been named Honorary Knight for Life and Dale as a Lady of Camelot by the Round Table International

WON CITATION

The citation, bestowed only 18 times in 30 years and never before to show business personalities, recognized them for "distinguished service to humanity and to their country in the fields of clean entertainment, of unselfish and effective leadership in service of homeless and orphaned children, and to the mentally retarded, and as volunteer entertainers to the armed forces."

They have raised a family of nine children, including Dodie, an adopted American Indian child, who is still living with them.

Italian tenor Sergio Franchi has branched out from his operatic and concert roles to work on the nightclub circuit.

Ruggedly handome, Franchi has selected his repertoire to suit all tastes and cover all areas.

Franchi was an overwhelming success at the PNE last year, when he could only appear for one performance, and he has been brought back this year for a three-day stint.

Pygmalion Here in July

The Canadian Art Theatre's recent production of George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion, which recently played seven performances at Vancouver's Playhouse Theatre, is being brought to the McPherson Playhouse July 3-10.

Playhouse, July 3-10.

Shaw's most popular comedy upon which the musical, My Fair Lady, was founded, will have Toni Sinclair and Derek Ralston as Liza Doolittle and Professor Higgins.

The Canadian Art Theatre is the Vancouver organization that brought the play Just Wild About Harry to the McPherson last winter.

Student Recital

Ensemble playing, including piano quartet, trio, duet and duo piano highlighted the student recital held Friday in St. Ann's Academy auditorium.

The program was presented by piano pupils of Mrs. Hilda King, including 21 first, second and third place winners in the Victoria Music Festival; also pupils of student teachers Margaret MacCullum and Wendy McCague.

Guest soloists were Ian Franklin, oboe, with accompanist Jim Furmston, and vocalists Wendy McCague and Joan Harding.

Pupils of Mrs. King participating were Ruth Anderson, Nancy Bingham, Linda Edge, Jo-Anne and Tyea Edgington, Joyce and Kenneth Francis, Jill Hobson, Paulette Howard, Yvonne Howland, John Hughes Deborah Irwin, David Jewkes, Aronanand Karen Johnson, Lee Anne Johnson, Leslie Kelso, Rhona Kwiram, Jimmy Locke, James and Katherine MacLean, Pat McLeman, Renee and Rosanna Masfield, Linda and Marion Marshall, Jill and Julie Matheson, Cathryn Motherwell, Vivian Napp, Martha O'Brien, Kenneth Seaman, Joyce and Patricia Soebagio, Dawn and Heather Sutherland, Carol Taylor, Catherine Weir and Dorothy Wolff.

Also taking part were Lorna Johnson, pupil of Lyell Gustin of Saskatoon; vocalist Lori Gray and Pianists Liane Furmston, Tina-Marie Parsons and John van Druten, all pupils of Margaret MacCallum; and Jamie and Margaret Hogg and Cathy McKeachie, pupils of Wendy McCague.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1968—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

If you happened to be in the Town and Country shopping centre the other evening, you may have noticed a lean, athletic-looking fellow deep in conversation with a couple whose halted buggy held a sleeping infant.

The youngish man in the grey suit was Victoria-born David Anderson, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich. He was getting in some grass-roots, or more accurately, pavement, campaigning, and from my stance against a handy post, I was kind of hoping he would try to kiss the baby.

Sensibly he didn't. The couple passed on to their shopping; two voters more interested in next week's election than in any they can recall.

This attitude is general. The candidate who takes his campaign out of his headquarters to the places where voters come and go, must be prepared to answer some searching questions.

Those who ask them also have lively views of their own, and they don't hesitate to air them. Impressed though they may be with Mr. Trudeau, they want to know how the man who hopes to represent them in Ottawa shapes up.

★

David Anderson, who has lived much of each campaign day at a lope, arrived at the shopping centre well on in the afternoon. It was shirt-sleeve weather, and most of those he approached were willing enough to stop for a chat.

A few were up-Islanders . . . it's surprising how many of these come down to do their shopping in the Douglas Street centres. An occasional shopper had come over from Victoria riding.

To these, Mr. Anderson recommended their own Liberal contenders. And to all he was pleasant even when the conversation took unlooked-for turns.

"Does your Mr. Trudeau have faith in people," she demands, "or does he have faith in God?"

Candidate takes that one in stride. "He has faith in both, Ma'am."

"Yes," his interrogator persists, "but if he is elected, and you are elected, will you rely on people or on God?"

Candidate considers. Then he says, and I did think it was a fair enough answer, "This is politics Ma'am, and in politics we must rely on people. But we trust that God will guide them, and us."

But you can't win 'em all.

"Well," says she, "if Mr. Trudeau isn't going to rely on God, rather than mankind, I won't vote for him."

★

The citizens he stops, or who answer the urgings of a voice-horn on an orange-painted and sign-decked tally-ho parked nearby, are Very Important People. Each has a ballot, and he means to place it well.

The women are frequently concerned about Canadian unity, but the men rarely express views in that direction. They want to talk about jobs and pensions, pollution, control measures, the plight of the Indian and the need for cheaper and more plentiful housing.

Then along comes a man (surely kidding!) who didn't know a federal election was coming up. Another prospect tries to swing the topic to the U.S. presidency; he prefers George Wallace, the Southern gentleman, to McCarthy. Turns out he's a visiting American.

A candidate has to listen as well as speak, and to deal with all queries as best he can.

Here's a friendly type who wants to know whether he can net small native birds for his aviary, and where he can get a Japanese bird net.

Bird-netting could be illegal, the candidate suggests. A check reveals that only the crow, the magpie (none in these parts), the starling and the English sparrow are denied protection by law.

When I shoved off, David Anderson was still hobnobbing with all comers: a knowledgeable, patient man concerned with individual human problems as well as major issues.

In a Parliament that needs such members, I've a notion that he would prove his worth.

B.C. Stays Dry Election Day

New Brunswick residents will be able to buy a drink next Tuesday but B.C. will maintain the traditional drought of election day.

In fact, local cocktail lounges and beer parlors will be cutting off patrons at midnight Monday, half an hour earlier than normal.

THREE DAYS TO GO

No liquor outlets will be open Tuesday, including liquor stores.

New Brunswick has decided to alter the traditional stand and allow outlets in the province to open after the polls close.

B.C. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson could not be reached for comment this morning.

"You can't buy votes with a drink these days. People are smarter than that."

He said he thought most B.C. hotelmen shared his view.

Victoria and Vancouver cablevision systems will blackout telecasting on seven American channels from 4 to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The Canadian Radio and Telvision Commission has ordered the cutoff to eliminate the possibility of early dissemination of voting results from eastern Canada, contrary to the Canada Elections Act.

The act prohibits radio and TV stations from broadcasting results before polls close in their coverage area, but until the proclamation of the new broadcasting act this year, cable TV systems were outside the control of federal regulatory agencies.

"Cable TV systems now are facing licensing and any failure to obey the election law ruling would become a matter of consideration when licence decisions are made," CRTC counsel M. M. Goldberg said.

A Cablevision spokesman said the blackout is the only way of handling the problem because it would be impossible to eliminate from the local network any results that the U.S. broadcasters could slip into the regular programs.

Cablevision will broadcast a sign explaining the problem to viewers. Regular service will be restored at 8 p.m.

Letters urging Island Legionnaires to support Conservative candidate Jeff Brock have been criticized by Legion branches in Sooke, Cowichan and Duncan.

The letters were sent by Duncan lawyer Jack Davie, a member of Legion Branch No. 53 in Cowichan, to Legionnaires in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands constituency where Admiral Brock is running.

Don Williamson, Branch 53 president, said he is protesting to the Legion's Pacific Command and charging that Legion mailing lists were used to direct the letters. The Legion is non-political and its members support all parties, he said.

Sooke branch president A. M. Green said Friday he felt the mimeographed appeals for support were improper.

Mr. Davie said he did not personally have access to Legion mailing lists but some of his friends may have, but he could not say if these lists were used.

The letter sent to members said in part: "As a fellow Legionnaire, I am writing to you to urge you to support another Legionnaire, Jeff Brock, in the June 25th election."

Cowichan and Duncan legion branches have sent protests at the use of the mailing lists for political purposes to Pacific Command.

Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. daylight time Monday.

All manner of electioneering is prohibited in or around polling stations, as are loitering and posting placards.

Youngsters are not permitted to accompany their parents into the polling stations.

Victoria returning officer David Wilson said blind voters may solicit the assistance of the deputy returning officer in the polling station, or they may take a friend as an assistant to mark the ballot.

PRE-STRIKE STRATEGY?

'Work Less Overtime' IWA Urges All Locals

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Coast locals of the International Woodworkers of America have been asked to cut back overtime.

The request was made in a letter dated last Thursday and signed by Del Pratt of Vancouver, second vice-president of IWA Region No. 1.

The letter, sent to all coast locals of the union, said:

"The coast negotiating committee requests of all locals that they deny authorization for unusual or extraordinary overtime, and that under no circumstances should any agreement be reached allowing production overtime until the conclusion of negotiations."

Eleven days ago, Murray Drew, president of the IWA's Victoria local, announced that members were being asked not to work overtime.

Asked if it is legal to refuse to work overtime, he replied: "Certainly. The guys don't have to work over 40 hours a week."

NO STOCKPILING

The move against overtime was seen as a union effort to prevent companies from placing themselves in an advantageous position if there is a strike or lockout by moving products to areas that could not be legally picketed.

It was not believed to represent any more of a hardening of attitude than, say, the serving of 48-hour strike notice last week.

Negotiations between the IWA, on behalf of 26,000 loggers and mill workers, and Forest Industrial Relations, representing 113 employers, continued in Vancouver this morning and were expected to run into Sunday.

There was no statement by either side on progress, except one report that an offer of 20 cents an hour over two years was made. This, however, is only half the wage increase the union gained in the 1966 settlement.

Single Parent To Be Topic Of Meetings

Economic, legal and emotional problems facing the single parent will be discussed in public meetings Wednesday and July 3 at the James Bay Dialogue Centre, 520 Niagara.

A psychiatrist, a social worker and a single parent will form a panel to examine the single-parent situation and answer questions from the audience.

Ron Pollard, a social worker with the Victoria and Family Children's Service, said by sharing problems, ideas and experiences, the single parents "will hopefully be better able to cope with their own problems and the situation in which their children find themselves."

Besides Mr. Pollard, the panel will include Victoria psychiatrist Dr. Pierre F. d'Estrube, and Mrs. Pat Hilborn, president of the Low-Income Group and a single parent.

The meetings' organizers say stress in the past has been placed solely on the economic aspects of the problem and more day-to day aspects have been overlooked. The meetings are designed to examine the "total situation."

45 Fires Controlled

The 45 forest fires burning in B.C. today are all under control, the forest service reports.

There have been 443 fires to date in the province and conditions are "relatively good" compared with this time last year when fighting 716 fires had cost $258,000.

Firefightting costs this year are $89,900.

Low to moderate fire-hazard conditions exist throughout B.C. except in the Cariboo and Chilcotin regions where the hazard is high.

The weather office reports a high-pressure system moving toward the Island from the Pacific Ocean. It should result in a sunny Sunday with high temperatures of 65 on the coast and 70 inland.

Some 35 new fires — most caused by human carelessness — were reported during the week. Firefighters put out 38 fires.

Driver Killed At Chemainus

James Allan Macdonald, 20, of Chemainus was killed early today when his car swerved out of control and crashed on North Chemainus Road.

RCMP report the youth was alone in the car travelling south toward Chemainus when the accident occurred at 5:45 a.m. The highway was wet.

The car had come out of a slight bend on to a straight stretch when it swerved out of control. The driver was thrown from the car which then passed over him.

A coroner's inquiry has been ordered.

LACK OF EVIDENCE

Two Go Free On Drug Count

Two of four people jointly charged with possessing marijuana had the case against them dismissed Friday following a day-long preliminary hearing in central criminal court.

Magistrate William Ostler ruled there was no evidence to show possession on the part of Ralph Thomas Paul of 1567 Yale and Michelle Trottier of 679 Mount Joy.

Two other persons charged in the same incident were committed to trial. They are Jeff Green of Edmonton and Gordon Watt of 1658 Earle.

All four were charged June 1 after police searched a car which failed to stop at a stop sign near Mill Bay. The search produced several cans of beer and a small jar of a plant-like material.

"The mere presence of persons in a car is not sufficient to prove joint possession," said the magistrate.

Man's Ashes Sent Abroad

The ashes of Walter Augustus De Havilland — longtime Victoria resident and father of two internationally known film actresses — will be flown to New York, then to Paris and finally to Guernsey in the Channel Islands.

"My husband always wanted to visit Guernsey again," Mrs. Walter De Havilland said here Friday. "He spent his boyhood there and retained very happy memories of the island."

The ashes will go first to Mr. De Havilland's daughter, Joan Fontaine, in New York and then to Olivia De Havilland, who lives in Paris with her French husband, a magazine editor.

Mr. De Havilland died in North Vancouver recently at the age of 96. A memorial service was held in Victoria Truth Centre Friday afternoon and conducted by the minister, Rev. Emma Smiley, DD.

Mr. De Havilland and his wife, the former Rosemary Beaton, were married at the Truth Centre in 1960.

"When my husband died, we had difficulty reaching Olivia De Havilland in Paris becuase of the French strike," Mrs. De Havilland said.

"But we contacted Joan Fontaine in New York and, after many delays, she was able to put through a phone call to Paris."

Miss Fontaine is now acting in a play on Broadway. Miss De Havilland has a lead role in Gone With The Wind, now being revived in Europe and North America.

SYMPHONY STARS IN MOVIE

A five-minute film of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra in rehearsal has been shot by Jorgen Svendsen.

With background sound and commentary added, it will be used in a promotional capacity by the Symphony Society.

Ask The Times

Q. In which countries was the movie, Dr. Zhivago, filmed?—G.T.

A. In Spain, near Madrid, and northern Finland, 75 miles from the Soviet Russia-Finland border and Canada.

Q. Are epileptics allowed to drive cars?—J.J.S.

A. According to the motor vehicle department, once a person reports himself as an epileptic he is required to produce proof from his doctor he has been free of seizures for the past two years. Re-examination at a later date depends on the doctor's recommendation.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

SITUATION ABOUT NORMAL

High School Job-Seekers Snap Up Every Offering

The flood of high school students looking for summer jobs has yet to reach its crest but the employment picture is brightening after earlier gloomy forecasts.

"The job situation is no worse than other years, John Atcheson of Victoria's Canada Manpower office said today.

About 15 to 20 high school students a day are now making enquiries at the local office, he said. A pattern has yet to develop and he suspects many are taking a week or two of holidays before beginning the job hunt in earnest.

ORDERS COMING

Across the province about 215,000 secondary school students are expected to flood the job market in the next few weeks.

Locally, more orders for workers are coming in from employers, said Mr. Atcheson, a trend normal at this time of year.

A request for 250 berry-pickers earlier this week was quickly filled. Students like this kind of work, he said.

Victoria employs about 4,000 in the tourist service industry during the winter and this swells to 8,000 in the summer.

It's too early to assess how closely the summer job demand and call for workers will match, he said.

Most Uvic students looking for summer work have found it. The student placement officer reports that of 300 still registered only about 150 are after full-time jobs.

Job Picture Eased But Still Depressed

Unemployment in British Columbia eased slightly in May but was well ahead of the same period last year.

There were 48,000 men and women without work in mid-May compared with 51,000 in the previous month and 36,000 one year ago.

Federal figures show the unemployment rate in B.C. to be 6.1 per cent last month compared with 6.6 per cent in April and 4.7 per cent one year ago.

The number of persons employed grew to 737,000 from 723,000 in April and 723,000 one year ago.

The B.C. unemployment rate was exceeded only by the Maritimes (6.8 per cent) and equalled by Quebec. Ontario had 3.6 per cent without work, the Prairies 2.7 per cent.

Shipbuilders Sound Alarm; Cry for Help

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian shipbuilders told the federal government officials Friday they want long-term financing for their industry; a 10 per cent raise in the subsidy now paid Canadian yards to offset the effect of the devaluation of the British pound last year; and legislation restricting all new ships ordered by Canadian registered companies to Canadian-built vessels.

Otherwise, they say, their membership will shrink as high costs and declining business force more Canadian shipyards to close.

The Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association made an uneasy peace with the federal government Friday. The shipbuilders had lashed out at federal officials earlier this week for failing to show up at opening sessions of their annual meeting.

In the end, five government representatives arrived, including John Strang, director of shipbuilding for the transport department.

The association now is made up of 14 major Canadian yards doing a combined $250,000,000 annual business.

EMPLOYMENT LOW

"Our normal employment of about 14,000 is down to 8,000 this year," Drummond Taylor, the association's executive director said Friday. He himself was out of a job last year when his firm, Victoria Machinery Depot Co. Ltd. of Victoria, closed for lack of orders. Earlier this year George T. Davie and Sons Ltd. of Lauzon, Que., was sold. Its operations are being transferred to Davie Shipbuilding Ltd., also of Lauzon.

Kingston Shipyards, which employs about 200, is to close next week, and Mr. Taylor said two other companies, Port Arthur Shipbuilding Co. and Port Weller Dry Docks Ltd. are "very concerned" about the future.

Shipbuilders cited several reasons for declining business. One is the devaluation of the pound, which made British ships, already about 50 per cent cheaper to build than Canadian vessels, even cheaper. Another was a decline in government defence contracts.

FEAR FURTHER SQUEEZE

Mr. Taylor said that when the Canadian shipbuilding subsidy, now 25 per cent for large vessels, drops to 23 per cent next June, shipbuilders will be in an even tighter squeeze.

Subsidies totalled $40,000,000 last year.

"One answer for the industry is to diverify—such as building offshore floating drill rigs," Mr. Taylor said. "Another is for the government to reserve all seaboard coastal trade for Canadian vessels.

"We don't want to be too dependent on the government. But legislative changes, and some long-term financing aid, such as allowing high depreciation for tax writeoffs, would help Canadian shipyards become competitive."

W. H. White, general manager of the Saint John Dry Dock Co. Ltd., was named president of the association Friday, succeeding Cameron Hawken of Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que. Eric Harrington of Canadian Vickers Shipyards Ltd., Montreal, was named vice-president.

$350 Fine

James Maloney, 886 Maddison, was fined $350 Friday after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Police said he was the driver of a car which struck the open door of a vehicle parked on the Pat Bay Highway June 15.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Brokers Still Optimistic Rally to Be Summer Long

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets recovered to their highest levels since January after chequered trading earlier this week.

The major spurt Friday, following a general improvement on the previous two days, crowned the final passage through Congress of the long-awaited U.S. tax increase — spending cut bill.

The successful vote in the House of Representatives, swiftly endorsed by the Senate, gave markets in Canaad a sharp psychological boost, although brokers made no attempt to guess how long optimism will last.

The tax surcharge and government spending reduction were seen as a test and symbol of Washington's willingness to behave in a responsible way. And the issue seemed even more crucial in a year when the United States has had an all-time bad press for its way of life and foreign policy.

Not surprisingly, analysts have begun to worry about just how much longer-term good the new bill will do to the stock maret.

They say interest rates will come down and inflation, in the U.S. anyway, should be considerably reduced. But they expect little immediate impact on the U.S. balance of payments deficit which has been a big factor in the overall monetary drama.

POINTERS FAVORABLE

Nevertheless, brokers continue to be highly optimistic for a summer rally. Right now, pointers on the horizon seem favorable and large funds pouring into the market have made price levels far less volatile.

A drop in gold shares was seen as another good sign. Dome fell 2⅞ to 87, Campbell Red Lake 2 to 33 and Dickenson 40 cents to $4.60.

Early in the week, there were reports that South Africa was secretly negotiating a deal with the three larest Swiss banks to feed newly-minded bullion to the free market.

Swissair's new route between Zurich and Johannesburg was said to be the proposed channel.

However, the South African government confused the issue Friday. It announced plans to resume gold shipments, but said these would only replenish about $42,000,000 in gold reserves held abroad which are currently being transferred to the International Monetary Fund.

With South Africa, France and Russia all lined up as protential sellers of gold for their own separate reasons, brokers say gold shares may be on a slippery slope.

The general election campaign has been remarkable only for its lack of impact on the market. With no big ideological gulf between the two major parties — as there is, for instance, in Britain — the financial community has found nothing serious to worry about.

BLUE CHIPS ADVANCE

Interantional Utilities gained 3⅞ to 54⅞, Simpsons 1⅝ to 39⅛, CPR ⅝ to 60, Seagrams ½ to 45½, Canadian Imperial Bank ⅝ to 17 and Toronto-Dominion Bank ½ to 17¾.

Among other heavy stocks, Imperial Oil rose 2⅝ to 67. Bell 1¼ to 43¼, MacMillan Bloedel 2⅜ to 22¾ and Standard Radio 5⅜ to 55¾.

Neon Products of Vancouver was in the headlines yet again with its fifth takeover bid this year. The stock, which had a 1968 low of 11¾, jumped 2⅜ to 35½.

James Pattison, who acquired Neon late last year, said midweek that Haughton Industries Management Co., a private Torotnto company, would surrender control in exchange for 54,000 Neon shares.

His previous bid was for Imbrex Ltd., which was up 1⅛ to 13 after touching 13¼. Earlier successful offers were for Overwaitea Ltd. of Vancouver, Northern Paint Co. Ltd., Winnipeg, and the ANC Group, Edmonton.

Trizec Corp., the most active, fell 15 cents to $2.00 and Great West Saddlery, the second most active, 1¼ to 9¾. Wajax jumped 2½ to 17 and Zenith Electric 40 cents to $2.55.

The market as a whole was led by paper and forest issues, communications, food processors, banks, utilities, retailers and oil refiners. Western oils, strong last week, were off.

On index at Toronto, industrials gained 1.82 to 164.04 and base metals .25 to 102.64. Golds fell 8.69 to 211.16 and western oils 3.64 to 208.97.

Volume was 20,823,000 shares compared with 19,830,000 last week. Declines outnumbered advances 396 to 347.

At Montreal, the composite index rose .47 to 156.32. Volume was 5,945,000 shares compared with 6,780,000 and declines outpaced advances 164 to 159.

SHOW BUSINESS is behind for this huge logging truck, a feature at Expo 67 and now hauling logs from Vancouver Island forests. The 90,000-pound truck and 53-ton trailer combination can carry up to 150 tons of logs each trip. It is owned by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. (CP Wirephoto).

Award Increased

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Court of Appeal Friday awarded Dolly Varden Mines Ltd. a $64,976 increase on a $314,051 damage action the company won earlier against Sunshine Explorations Ltd.

Dolly Varden won the $314,051 in a B.C. Supreme Court decision when the court ruled that Sunshine failed to carry out an agreed exploration and drilling program on several of the first company's claims during 1964.

Sunshine appealed the case and Dolly Varden launched its cross-appeal for higher damages. The three Appeal Court judges dismissed Sunshine's appeal and ruled in favor of the cross-appeal.

'Increase Exploration'

QUEBEC (CP) — Western Canada will be called on to increase its exploration and development of natural gas reserves because of the growing market in Canada and the United States.

Resources Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the annual Canadian Gas Association meeting ending today "there is every indication that we can find a lot more gas" despite reports that Canada is short of gas.

Over a short-term period, he said, it is possible that there may not be much exportable surplus. But over the long term there should be no shortage.

A comparison by the National Energy Board of the continental United States and Western Canada showed that the Western Canada sedimentary basin has been much less explored than the U.S. continental sedimentary basin.

Brenda Adds Firm

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Brenda group of mining interests Friday announced it has purchased control of International Copper Corp. of Vancouver, saying the intention is to make it active in sulphur exploration. Brenda acquired slightly more than half the 2,800,000 issued shares of International for an undisclosed price. International has property in British Columbia and a stock position in a Nova Scotia mining firm.

New Offer for TV Stations

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — President Frank A. Griffiths of Western Broadcasting Company announced Friday that the company, through Saturna Properties Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary, has offered to buy all the shares of British Columbia Television Systems, Ltd.

B.C. Television Systems owns and operates CHAN-TV in Vancouver and CHEK-TV in Victoria.

Mr. Griffiths told shareholders of Western Broadcasting at their annual meeting that the offer is being made as a result of the recent decision of the Canadian Radio and Television Commission denying an application by Selkirk Holdings Ltd., Famous Players Canadian corp. Ltd., and Saturna Properties to acquire the shares of all the other present shareholders in B.C. Television. The commission's decision referred to the multiple ownership position of Famous Players and Selkirk Holdings.

Mr. Griffiths said his company's offer is subject to the satisfactory termination of the present agreement, approval of present B.C. Television shareholders, and approval by the Radio and Television Commission.

Two Companies Sold

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Triangle Pacific Forest Products Corp. of Great Neck, N.Y., has announced purchase of Pacific Pine Co. Ltd. of New Westminster and affiliated Granite Bay Timber Co. Ltd. Brothers Samuel and Paul Heller, the former president of Pacific Pine and the latter president of Granite Bay, sold all outstanding stock in the two companies. Price was not disclosed.

FIRST LOADING bridge for airline passengers west of Winnipeg was installed today at Gate Two of the new terminal at Vancouver International Airport. The bridge was first of six to be installed by Air Canada and is part of a continuing program to update the airline's loading methods to cope with the fast-changing needs of the jet age. The bridges will enable waiting passengers to board and deplane from aircraft without exposure to the elements. Bridges of a similar design will later be installed by other airlines. The bridges are 52 feet long and eight feet wide. Their height can be adjusted automatically to accommodate DC-8 and DC-9 jetliners.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Single Authority Within Year

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Hope of a Canadian Securities Commission being formed by the federal government within a year was expressed in Jasper Friday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Investment Dealers' Association.

Kent

Retiring IDA president E. M. Kennedy, of London, said the provinces seem to be swinging toward the concept of a single federal commission to guide the investment business uniformly across the country.

"We hope the coming year will see its formation," said Mr. Kennedy.

His successor, S. E. Nixon, of Montreal, said it is important for the IDA to maintain the good working relations existing between the dealers and provincial authorities, which are responsible for administration of securities acts in Canada.

But when a federal system is developed, simliar rapport will be striven for, he said.

In addition, Mr. Nixon said, the IDA could develop an educational institute designed to look after the training of all securities employees and to keep the public informed of fundamentals of good investment.

It could lead to professional status for persons who pass advanced courses, he said.

Mr. Kennedy spoke of an encouraging economic climate during the balance of 1968, predicated on continuing government leadership to stimulate real economic growth. But he also said the association is wary of high-spending by government.

Public confidence — particularly concerning investment — is a "must," he said.

H. W. Tingley, of Wood, Gundy Securities Ltd., Vancouver, retiring chairman of IDA's Pacific division, stressed the need of restoring some investor confidence in British Columbia.

He reiterated an earlier statement made in Vancouver urging government set taxation ground rules that would allow consistent gains in profitabilty, especially concerning export enterprise.

"Anything that destroys our ability to compete in world markets has to be detrimental to both government and labor to say nothing of the investor.

"Any serious inhibitons to the worthiness of B.C. as a satisfactory area for investment cannot help but be harmful to the creation of new jobs for our citizens. To my mind, profitability is still a highly respected objective and one that has played a large part in the development of our province to date," Mr. Tingley said.

It is time, he said, to stop the investment dollar drain to other parts of the world, mentioning the U.S. in particular. B.C. and Canada, in that order, represent no better place for investment savings, he said.

Confidence that has taken 100 years to earn can be destroyed in five years or less "if we decide to eat our golden goose for dinner," he added.

Representatives of member firms urging Canadian investment in American equities — such as the wide range of special situation and glamor stocks available in New York — may have something to say in rebuttal. But don't listen.

The bond market responded pretty well as predicted with passage through the U.S. House of Representatives of the tax hike and spending cut measures.

But one dealer expressed surprise that business was not as overwhelming Friday as had been expected; dealers in New York were well able to cope with their orders.

Sogemines Ltd. said Friday that by June 28 it would have more than 95 per cent of outstanding shares in McAllister Towing Ltd., in compliance with an offer made April 18 when Sogemines held 18¾ per cent of the towing-salvage firm's shares.

Sogemines offered to take over all the outstanding stock up to June 18, but extended the offer to June 28. The Canadian company said earlier it would take no fewer than 615,000 of the 1 million outstanding McAllister shares, provided the Canadian Transportation Commission approved of the deal.

Shareholders of record June 27 will be eligible both for a 30-cent McAllister dividend and for turning in shares.

Sogemines said the 95 per cent interest it expects to have includes the 18¾ per cent held by Compagnie Maritime Belge and the 37½ per cent held by McAllister Bros. Inc., of New York, who are the majority shareholders.

FERGUSON BOWS ON 18TH . . .

. . . ELLISON SIDELINED 5 AND 4

Art Moved Commercially, John Caught Flair Flight

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Arthur Donaldson and John Russell locked arms today, and if the tug-o-war for the B.C. Amateur golf championship was anything like the semi-final bouts, it would have been a study of contrasts.

There was greater flair in Russell's style. The defending provincial champion sidelined Point Grey clubmate Ross Ellison, 5 and 4, with a round in which he hit seven traps and counted seven one-putt greens to finish one over regulation figures..

After Friday's contrasts, all that remained was today's 36-hole final and the testy task of selecting B.C.'s four-man Willingdon Cup team.

By virtue of their showing this week, Russell, Donaldson and Ellison must be considered the best bets. The remaining slot was a tossup, but don't be too surprised if Vancouver's Bert Ticehurst picks it off.

Vancouver's Tom Moryson and Doug Roxburgh will probably round out the junior team. Moryson qualified for the eight's of the Amateur showdown this week, and both have good stroke records on the mainland. The selectors will not forget that Moryson and Roxburgh have been runners-up in the past two Canadian junior finals.

Russell's fancy flair with the sand wedge, plus the fact he caught his 20-year-old rival on an "off" day, wrapped up the semifinal quickly Friday. Ellion scored eight straight fives on Gorge Vale's first holes, then broke the spell with a birdie four on the par-five ninth.

The 36-year-old Russell, three up at the turn, came up with a spectacular sand-shooting display. On the sixth, for example, he hit into two traps yet still came up with a par four for a victory. He popped his second sand shot to within two inches of the cup for a tap-in four.

Russell also came out of traps on eight and nine to score pars.

Donaldson played it straight in a game that drew that largest gallery and the greatest suspense. Always straight and always steady, Donaldson stayed with par all the way, and it proved good enough.

There was never more than a one-hole difference in the match. Donaldson won the first, Ferguson squared it on the fourth. Cec won No. 6, Art claimed no. 7.

It was Donaldson's turn to win the eighth, but Ferguson squared it again by chipping in for an eagle three on the ninth.

They halved the next eight holes in succession and came to the 18th, all square. Both hit the last green in the regulation two strokes, but Ferguson three-putted from about 65 feet while Donaldson was down in two.

Ferguson pinned his downfall on the fact he "stubbed" his long approach putt, leaving it about seven feet short.

"I use an outside swing on the very long putts for better line. The putter stubbed the grass before hitting the ball.

"I didn't even bother watching. I knew it wasn't going to get there," said the disappointed youngster.

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

All is not well in the umpiring field.

Disputes between the city's umpires and district leagues has been brought into the open. It may be for the best . . . Not just to the advantage of the leagues but, perhaps, also for the men in blue.

The technical differences can be re-hashed and re-phrased, but little would be accomplished if it was proven that one side was wrong and the other was right.

More positive action is required, and Victoria's umpires can lead the way in clearing the air.

Umpires are people, tho' not always favored by the masses. No game can be played without one. Most mean well, and I would suggest there are several solid citizens among those who officiate regularly on the softball and baseball fields.

By the same token, the leagues have their share of good citizens who respect the duties of the field officials.

Nonetheless, the Lower Island Women's League, the Senior Men's Softball League at Central Park, and the Senior Amateur Baseball League all have voiced certain displeasures.

Two umpiring groups are involved. One is the strongly-supported Baseball Umpires' Association headed by Doug Hudlin, and the other is the 16-member softball body headed by Charlie Pye.

In both softball and baseball, the issues boil down to a few personalities. There seems to be no criticism of a well-meaning majority of umpires — a point that should not be overlooked.

The baseball dispute is the lesser of the two. Hudlin did, in fact, indicate surprise Friday evening that "there was a problem."

"There were some differences at the start of the season. We had a meeting, and I thought it was all ironed out," he said. Believing the issue should be one between the senior league and his association, he would offer no other comment. Wisely so.

Hudlin's attempt at minimizing any "dispute" received backing from a Victoria Amateur Baseball Association director who made it plain that "there have been no difficulties in the minor leagues." In baseball, the only issue is the senior league's objection to the assigning of an official it considers inadequate.

●

Greater differences exist on the softball front. Pye's group continues to find employment in the Stuffy McGinnis and the Junior Men's Leagues.

The four-team Women's League had its fallout with association umpires early in the season, and the Senior Men's League followed suit Thursday.

All leagues seek "greater voice" in the matter of umpiring assignment, and that's a matter that can easily be settled at a conference table.

Most umpires I have met are reasonable men, and with good intentions. Officials of the objecting leagues agree by admitting there are "several good men" in the umpiring guild.

Those good ones in the majority should make a point of rendering a fast decision . . . Are a "few" spoiling it for "all?"

If not, then three leagues should be so advised.

Balking Bruce Ready to Enjoy Canadian Open

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Devlin of Australia took a three-stroke lead into today's third round of the Canadian Open golf championship that he wasn't wild about entering. In fact, it took a bit of negotiating to get him in.

"I wouldn't have tried to qualify if I hadn't been exempt," he said after taking sole possession of first place Friday with a two-round total of 135, five-under-par.

"But he never really sent in an entry form," said an RCGA official Friday. "Later, he asked us if he could be given a sponsor's exemption so he wouldn't have to qualify and we agreed.

"Later we learned that all the places on the exemption list were filled and that meant Devlin had to make the cut at the U.S. Open last week or be forced to qualify for the Canadian Open."

THOUGHT OF VACATION

Devlin said he would not have bothered coming to Canada if he had missed the cut at the U.S. Open.

"I would have taken a vacation in Britain for a week or two."

When Devlin arrived here early this week, his failure to file a formal entry was discovered and he was only allowed to play after a meeting between the RCGA and Professional Golfers Association.

Devlin scored a three-under-par 67 in the opening round Thursday to share the lead with Ken Still of the U.S. and shot a 68 Friday to take a three-stroke lead over his nearest pursuers.

His second round was played through a steady drizzle that hit the 6,792-yard St. George's Golf Club course about 11:30 a.m. and continued until after he completed his round.

USED 29 PUTTS

Devlin took 29 putts during the second round of the $125,000 tournament that carries a first prize of $25,000 and winds up Sunday.

Three strokes behind came Still and Bob Charles of New Zealand with two-under 138s. Still carded a 71 Friday, while Charles came in with a 68.

Tied at one under par 139 were Bruce Crampton of Australia, Mac McLendon and Donald Bies, both of the U.S.

Billy Casper, the defending champion, was the only member of golfdom's Big Four to finish at par. Starting the day at one-under 69, Casper carded a 71 and tied with seven other U.S. professionals at par 140.

Jack Nicklaus scored 68 Friday and was one-over at 141 after 36 holes. Arnold Palmer, who also missed the cut in the $200,000 world championship here last year, finished with 149 and headed for home.

PLAYER QUALIFIES

A total of 73 golfers—all professionals—qualified for the final two rounds with scores of 147 or better.

Failing to qualify were Bob Cox of Vancouver, 74-75—149; Ken Fulton of Trail, 71-78—149, and Bill Wakeham of Victoria, 77-74—151.

George Knudson of Toronto qualified with a 144 after a 69 Friday that included a hole-in-one on the par-3, 147-yard sixth hole. He hit his tee shot with a nine iron. It was the ninth ace recorded on the PGA circuit this season and the first of the tournament.

The final five holes of the tournament will be televised by the CBC in Canada and the CBS in the U.S. from 1-3 p.m. (PDT) Sunday.

Scrambling Sandy Leading by Stroke

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Pretty Sandra Post, a 20-year-old rookie from Oakville, Ont., took a one-stroke lead, and four-time winner Mickey Wright blew sky high Friday in the second round of the $20,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association championship.

Miss Post scrambled to a two-over-par 39-36—75 for a 36-hole total of 147, one stroke ahead of defending champion Kathy Whitworth and West Germany's Gerda Whalen at the half-way mark of the 72-hole tournament.

Miss Wright, winner of four of six tournaments on the tour this year and all-time top money winner among the pro gals, trailed by six strokes but appeared set to make a serious charge at the outset of the second round.

She conquered the front nine of the sun-baked but wind-swept Pleasant Valley Country Club course in one-under 37 and was even with regulation figures, but then needed 16 strokes to complete the final two holes.

Miss Post said she "scrambled all the way."

"I hit the ball real good at times. I was in and out all the way. It was a real scramble."

Miss Post said it was her 10th LPGA tournament and "I've been in the money every time."

Mrs. Whalen, a 38-year-old widow who shared the first-round lead by matching Miss Post's 72, ran into putting difficulty and posted a 76.

Miss Whitworth also had trouble on the spacious greens but managed a second straight 74 to move into a tie with Mrs. Whalen.

Tied another stroke back at 149 were Sandra Haynie, Sandra Spuzich, Murle Lindstrom and Sue Maxwell Berning.

ARGUING with par in Victoria is Gail Harvey Moore (above), one of three former Canadian women's Close champions entered in trials being held to determine make-up of B.C. interprovincial team. Also entered are Marilyn Palmer and Janet MacWha. Trials opened at Uplands today and continue at Victoria Golf Club on Sunday, starting at 11:15 a.m.

Rocks Lose Pepper And Carls Had Salt

VANCOUVER — Bob Salt is doing his best to keep pepper in Vancouver Carlings.

Scoring three goals for the second time this week, Salt was one of the few players who displayed a hot touch Friday night as the Carls boosted their lead in the Western Division of the National Lacrosse Association by trimming Victoria Shamrocks 11-5.

Shamrocks, who snapped a slump at Victoria Wednesday as they outhustled Vancouver for a 9-4 triumph, failed to continue their peppery, attacking tactics Friday in an uninspired game.

Carlings boosted their lead to four points over Victoria and New Westminster as they took charge late in the second period before only 823 fans, a big drop from the 5,573 who watched Salt score three times Tuesday in a 12-11 win over Portland.

THOMPSON TOUGH

For more than half the game, Vancouver was held at bay by Victoria's substitute goaltender, Doug Thompson, who relieved starter Barry Forbes early in the opening session after Forbes suffered a painful foot injury.

Probing for a weakness in Thompson's armor, Carls found one when the score was knotted at 3-3. They started firing long, high shots and when Whitey Nelson and Art Dickinson connected on booming drives they had a 5-3 advantage to take into the third period.

Three more long shots hit the Victoria net to make it 8-3 before Forbes returned to the floor and the Rocks were unable to get back into contention.

GRAY SCORES TWICE

Billy Gray was the only Victoria player to beat goalie Skip Chapman more than once. Gray scored twice while Ranjit Dillon collected a goal and two assists and Nirmal Dillon earned three assists. Other Shamrocks goals came from Ron Zilkie and Reg Foster.

Dickinson and Gord Liebscher, each with two goals, and Salt were the top Carling snipers.

It was announced Friday night that Portland will play New Wesminster at home tonight without the services of Dick Crompton. League commissioner Tom English handed Crompton a two-game suspension and $25 fine for remarks to officials that earned him a match misconduct penalty in a game last week.

NHL WON'T DEAL

Rebel Group Gets Warning

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League will not do business with the newly-formed Canada Hockey Association, NHL president Clarence Campbell said Friday.

Campbell made the announcement after a joint development committee meeting involving the NHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Campbell said that "all professional hockey unequivocally supports the CAHA and the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States as the only amateur hockey organizations in North America."

The Canadian Hockey Association was formed this year by the Western Canada Junior League. A newly-formed Western Ontario group later joined the association.

Campbell warned all leagues, associations and individual players that there is no possibility of recognition of the CHA or any independent league that may sever relations with the CAHA.

The NHL president also said that players who sign contracts to play in the western group may find some delay in entering professional hockey. He said the NHL doens't care to become involved with players who are on contract to these teams because of the possibility of law suits.

The Western League has 10 teams: Winnipeg, Flin Flon, Estevan, Swift Current, Moose Jaw, Weyburn, Saskatoon, Calgary and Edmonton. The Western Ontario league is comprised of teams from Sarnia, St. Thomas, Chatham, Guelph, Brantford and Stratford.

Major difference between the CAHA and the CHA is that the CHA requires junior hockey players to be under 21 as of Dec. 31 of the playing year.

MEETING JULY 6

Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, Ont., president of the CAHA, said his organization called a meeting for July 6 in Montreal "to discuss meeting the western league in a new junior playoff."

"But they went ahead and broke away from us," Pollock said. "We were going to let the other hockey associations play off for the Memorial Cup and we'd meet the western winners."

TO HELP GET GAMES

Province Ready To Share Costs

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Friday the British Columbia government is prepared to cover half the cost of a campaign to bring the 1976 Olympics to Whistler Mountain in Garibaldi Park.

Mr. Kiernan said during a news conference called by the Garibaldi Olympic Development Association, which has been bidding for the Winter Olympics since 1960, that the provincial government will support the project financially.

He said the government will pay half of the $45,000 GODA officials estimate it will take to get the project rolling. The balance of the money will come from municipal and private contributions, GODA officials said.

NO FAST RETURN

"Nobody is going into this with the idea of any fast return of net revenue," said Mr. Kiernan. "Our efforts will focus world attention on B.C., and if the bid is successful, the long-range benefits to the province are beyond evaluation."

GODA president John Fraser said the first hurdle in getting endorsation from the Canadian Olympic Association has been cleared—COA officials have inspected the site at Whistler.

"Our chances of full COA approval are good," said Mr. Fraser. "Our first bid, in 1960 and 1961, was a bit brash because there were no facilities at Whistler at all.

"Our second bid, in 1964, was turned down in favor of Banff, Alta., but Banff was rejected by the world Olympic people."

The chief problem, said Mr. Fraser, may be Montreal's bid for the 1976 summer Olympics. It's unlikely Canada would get both sets of games, he said.

CANADIANS THIRD

DEAUVILLE (AP)—Italy won the world bridge olympiad Friday, defeating the United States in the finals to take their eighth straight world championship and their 11th in 12 years. The final score was 172-123; Canada finished in third place.

Bouncy Belle Wins Feature

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bouncy Belle, a five-year-old mare, came up with a fast time of 1:42.06 Friday, to win the featured seventh race over a mile and 70 yards at Exhibition Park.

Bouncy Belle, owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Allen, paid $7.79, $4.60 and $3.80. Golden Wine placed second and Lovely Leader came third.

South African Sprinter Shines

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Paul Nash, 21-year-old sprinter at Witwatersrand University, equalled the listed world record of 10 seconds for the 100 metres for the fifth time this year.

Three Americans—Jim Hines, Ronnie Ray Smith and Charlie Greene—all bettered the existing record in Sacramento, Calif., Thursday with times of 9.9.

Brazilian Team Lures Record 42,002 Fans

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The largest crowd ever for a soccer game in the United States, 43,002, turned out at New York's Yankee Stadium Friday night to see Santo of Brazil defeat Napili of Italy 4-2 in an exhibition game.

The appearance of Pele, regarded as the greatest player in the world, helped attract the huge crowd. The previous record turnout for a soccer game in the U.S. was 41,598 when Santos played Inter of Milan in New York two years ago.

The attendance was much lower at the two regularly scheduled games in the North American Soccer League. Chicago Mustangs beat Boston Beacons 6-5 before 5,751 at Fenway Park. In Washington, 5,266 watched the Whips defeat Toronto 3-2.

A goal by Antonio de Oliveria with just two seconds left gave Washington its victory over Toronto. De Oliveria also tallied earlier for the Whips to tie the score 2-2.

Mothers in Action

Mothers will take over the National Little League baseball field at Hillside and Cook Sunday at 6:30 p.m. Mothers of boys in the league's major teams will play against mothers of players on minor clubs.

Trades Help Lions Stock Den

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference today announced deals with Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers that bring three WFC players to Lions.

They are defensive end Garner Ekstran and offensive end Jim Carphin, both from Saskatchewan, and defensive end Dick Fouts from Winnipeg. Carphin and Fouts both are former Lions players.

To Roughriders, Lions give the rights to one yet-unnamed player and Bill Goods, fullback-kicker acquired from the Calgary Stampeders earlier this month in trade for end Pat Claridge.

To Winnipeg, Lions give rights to 27-year-old lineman Rudy Reschke, 6-2, 235 pounds, who joined Lions in 1966.

Ekstran, 6-0, 215 pounds, a WFC all-star four times and all-Canadian in 1963, played out his option with Saskatchewan last year. The 28-year-old import had said he wanted to play with Lions.

Carphin, 6-4, 210, was with Lions from 1959 through 1966 and was traded to Saskatchewan in 1967. The 29-year-old Canadian played his college football at University of Washington.

Fouts, 6-6, 245, came to Lions in 1962 from Toronto Argonauts of the eastern conference. He returned to Toronto in 1967 and earlier this year was traded to Winnipeg for Bob Taylor. A Canadian, he is 35.

Futility Record Tied But Cubs Beat Reds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ed Charles, at 35, a relic among the youthful New York Mets, hit a single and double Friday night to drive in three runs in New York's 5-1 National League victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The two hits boosted his average to .303, ninth best in the National League.

Elsewhere in the National League Friday night, Chicago Cubs tied a 62-year-old record for scoreless innings and then defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-2, Houston Astros edged Philadelphia Phillies 2-1, San Francisco Giants shut out Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0 and St. Louis Cardinals edged Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 13 innings.

Charles was a ballplayer without a team during the winter when the Mets released him. But he was invited to spring training and made the club with some lusty Florida hitting.

He's been New York's hottest hitter over the last month and has spurred a Met drive of 12 victories in the last 18 games and a jump into sixth place, a half-game out of the first division and one game under .500.

Charles, who has hit in nine straight games, doubled home two runs in the third inning and then singled another run across as the Mets wrapped it up with three in the eighth.

The Cubs tied the record for team futility with two scoreless innings, running their string to 48, then busted out of it with three straight walks and a sacrifice fly by Billy Williams in the third inning against the Reds.

The record was set by Philadelphia Athletics in 1906.

The Cubs later pushed two more runs across to beat the Reds. Singles by Adolfo Phillips and Williams drove them across. Johnny Bench homered for Cincinnati.

Yielded 13 Hits but Earned Praise

The White Sox got all their runs off him for a 10-4 victory Friday night after losing the first game of a doubleheader 6-3.

In other American League games, Washington Senators topped Oakland Athletics 7-3, Baltimore Orioles edged California Angels 4-2, Cleveland Indians nipped Detroit Tigers 4-3 in 13 innings and New York Yankees blasted Minnesota Twins 11-6.

The White Sox jumped to a 4-2 lead early in the second game and then wrapped it up by scoring six runs, three of them unearned, in the fifth inning.

Boston got its six runs in the first game in the second inning. Ken Harrelson drove in two with a bases-loaded single and Reggie Smith tripled home two more. Harrelson also drove in a run in the nightcap and had three hits in each game.

"It was a brave performance," manager Dick Williams said of Stephenson's complete game battering.

"He was throwing good at the end. I was going to take him out, but he knew the situation (three injured pitchers) and said he'd stay in. It took a lot of guts. He saved me two relievers by going all the way."

Frank Howard and Bernie Allen provided the power as Washington beat Oakland and ended an eight-game losing streak. Howard hit his 24th homer with two men on.

RAIN STRIKES AT SOFTBALL

Rain threw three strikes at softball Friday evening.

Postponed by the dew were league games in the Junior and Senior Men's Leagues and the Stuffy McGinnis circuit.

The Senior Men's League at Central Park will try again tonight, hoping to make up a Red Lion-Carlings game postponed from Tuesday. Game time is 6:45.

Colwood Golfers Collect Trophies

Members of the women's divison at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club have been busy in trophy competitions.

Eileen Ewing won the match play event for the Campbell Cup by defeating Sheila Morgan in the final. Ruth Thomson bested Mickey Wescott in the consolation final.

Ted Tries Again

BOSTON (UPI) — Ted Williams,, the 50-year-old former Boston Red Sox baseball slugger, has married for the third time.

Williams and Miss Dolores Wettach, 32, former model who represented Vermont in the Miss U.S.A. beauty pageant in 1956, were married last fall but have kept the marriage secret. He was divorced from his former wives in 1956 and 1965.

Cheryl Equals Mark In Zone Track Meet

Eleven-year-old Cheryl Blevins turned in the best performance at the Royal Canadian Legion zone track and field championships at Victoria High School and earned the right, among others, to move into the Vancouver Island finals set for July 7 at Centennial Stadium.

The first two finishers in each event will represent the South Island zone against two finalists from each of the North and Central zones. Competitors range from pee-wees to juveniles.

Miss Blevins equalled the B.C. pee-wee girls' record in the 100-yards in a time of 12.1 seconds, ran the 220-yard dash in 28.3 and stepped into the bantam class to anchor her relay team to victory.

Other promising youngsters in the sprints included Doug Temple (midget), Grant Bowland (bantam), Steven Smart (pee-wee) and Ellen Cochrane (bantam girls).

Amateur Upsets Top-Rated Laver

LONDON (AP) — Amateur Tom Okker Friday upset Rod Laver of Australia, the world's top money-winning professional, 6-4, 6-4 to move into the final of the London grass court tennis championship.

It was the first time Laver had been defeated by an amateur in three open tournaments.

Clark Graebner, U.S. Davis Cup star, defeated Russia's Alexander Metreveli 6-4, 6-2 in the other semi-final.

Graebner and Okker will meet in the final today.

Miss Richey now will play British pro Ann Hayden Jones, who defeated Margaret Smith Court of Australia 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 in the other women's semi-final match.

Okker surprised Laver by his speed about the court and the power of his top-spin forehand. The Australian also double faulted five times.

IT'S NOT TRUDEAU

VANCOUVER (CP)—If you are going to tell a lie, you might as well tell a whopper.

His signature: Pierre Trudeau.

Car-Cheque Gift Of Two Parishes

A new car and a cheque for $1,300 were presented to Canon Robert Willis Friday night in honor of his 20 years' service as rector of St. Mark's and St. Christopher's Anglican churches.

The surprise presentation was made at a dinner given to Canon and Mrs. Willis on their retirement by the parishioners of both churches.

"Canon Willis is one of the finest clergymen I have ever known," said Archbishop Harold Sexton, who sat at the head table with Mrs. Sexton.

"He is an exemplary parish priest and I have often held him up as a model.

"He lived wholeheartedly with his people, sharing their joys and sorrows, their triumphs and disappointments as a good priest should."

The archbishop praised Mrs. Willis for her welfare work in the two parishes and for the splendid support she gave to her husband.

The car presented to Canon Willis was concealed by four wide screens at the end of the dining hall. Few people knew what the gifts would be until the car and the cheque were presented by E. C. Cunningham, rector's warden at St. Christopher's.

"We wish you both many happy years of retirement," he said.

C. P. Smith and J. Marshall of St. Mark's Church also spoke in praise of Canon and Mrs. Willis.

"We are overwhelmed by your kindness and generosity," Canon Willis replied.

... 58 years

Metropolitan Church Will Honor Pioneer

It was in June 1910 that Mrs. George W. Robinson became a Sunday school teacher.

And she's been teaching ever since.

So there'll be a presentation to Mrs. Robinson in Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning in honor of 58 years' continuous effort.

Hundreds of children have grown up under her instruction and many will be in church — with their families — when Mrs. Robinson receives her farewell gift.

Three children — Helen, Gordon and Douglas — all followed her as Sunday school teachers, and all of her nine grandchildren have attended the weekly classes.

For the past 40 years, Mrs. Robinson has been superintendent of the primary department. Before then, she taught in the primary, junior and intermediate classes.

Her husband, George W. Robinson, isn't far off her record. He taught Sunday school in Metropolitan for 53 years and is still a stalwart member of the church.

Formerly Ethel Bailey, Mrs. Robinson came to Victoria with her family in 1903. The same year the Robinson family came out to Victoria from Manitoba and opened a combination drygoods store and grocery on Douglas Street.

Mr. Robinson continues as president of a well-known sporting goods store on Broad Street. Both he and his wife are enthusiastic fishermen.

Italian PM Named

ROME (AP) — Christian Democrat Giovanni Leone was named as premier-designate Wednesday and given the task of forming a new government to end Italy's post-election government crisis. President Giuseppe Saragat gave the mandate to the 60-year-old senator on the 14th day of the crisis.

Theological Convocation Backs Office

HAMILTON (CP) — Delegates to the national convocation on theological education approved in principle Friday a proposal to set up a permanent office to continue the work begun by the conference this week.

The proposal now goes before national planning committees and once approved will be forwarded to regional denominational boards who will finance the office.

This bureau would co-ordinate the efforts across the country and serve as a channel for information, aid in religious studies and research and "facilitate ecumenical co-operation at all levels of the Christian enterprise."

The conference, under way at McMaster University since Tuesday, has no official policy-making power.

The delegates have been studying the role of the church in Society, function of the theological seminary, and the relevancy of current seminary curricula to today's needs.

Labor Bureau Extends Hours To Meet Needs

Canada Manpower in Victoria is extending its hours.

Manager George Bevis said office hours "will be extended by whatever amount is necessary" to provide service and counsellors "will, at all times, remain on the job long enough to ensure that employers' orders are filled at the earliest possible moment."

He also said manpower expects to open the office in the fall for late evening business on at least one day a week and possibly Saturdays too if public response requires it.

A temporary office is being planned in the Sidney area to help those who have difficulty in getting into the Victoria office.

Blunt Questions Wait Hospital Get-Together

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

When the regional district hospital board meets next Wednesday, so the grapevine chatters, blunt questions are going to be asked.

Some board members, a mite annoyed to read a report in the newspaper before they had received their official copy, want to know "how come?"

Hume

Esquimalt's Mayor Ray Bryant, who snapped and crackled as loudly as anyone earlier in the week, has also been the first to simmer down.

He now suggests that the board get on with the more important aspect of this weeks events; to endorse or reject the proposal of the board's priorities and advisory committees that a new acute care hospital be built in the Elk Lake area.

●

"What we must do now is examine their proposal carefully, see if it has merit and, if it does, support it. And if it doesn't stand up, reject it and get on with alternative site proposals, alternative plans."

It sounds like good advice.

A few things the hospital board could be looking at next Wednesday instead of trying to uncover newspaper story sources, would be finding the answers to the following:

Who authorized the request to the Capital Region Planning Board for a survey of possible hospital sites? A report which zeros in on the Douglas-McKenzie Avenue site.

Which members of the hospitals advisory committee agreed to trim the Elk Lake acute care hospital proposal from 800 beds to 650 beds knowing full well that 800 beds will be required?

Was the bed total trimmed because a 650 bed hospital would suffice or because committee members realize that a $32 million referendum for a new hospital this fall would face a tough up-hill climb? And because with a lesser figure more saleable to the people, it would be relatively easy to sell the extra 150 beds once construction was underway?

●

Is there a move from within provincial government ranks to get the new hospital located in the Saanichton area?

How many municipal leaders, after solemnly pledging "hospitals are above politics," have been actively attempting to manipulate the new hospital within their municipal boundaries since the early part of this year, long before the Agnew-Peckham report on hospital services came out?

Is it true that while the 650 (800?)-bed acute care hospital proposal remains the big item on the priority list, 200 extended care beds at Colwood, St. Mary's Priory remains the most urgent project to relieve the current bed crisis?

If the regional hospital district board will direct itself to finding answers to those questions it will have little time to worry about the bill payers having the audacity to read a hospital progress report before the civic leaders.

●

To happier items.

On Friday the provincial government via Municipal Affairs Minster Dan Campbell announced that talks regarding provincial-municipal finances were underway between his department and the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

Two years ago, in September, 1966, Mayor Stephen, then an alderman, was almost laughed off the UBCM convention floor in Penticton when he called for a royal commission to study all levels of government financing.

Since his resounding defeat in Penticton he has not missed an opportunity to voice his fears that all is not well when it comes to cost-sharing formulas, and to appeal for intensive study of the overall problem.

In Prince George last September he enunciated those fears clearly and firmly to the UBCM, this time winning limited support but no action.

A lesser man would have quit. But, as the months went by, he quietly and firmly continued to expound on his call for a full review.

Friday's announcement must have made sweet reading after so long a battle.

TEACHERS SPELL OUT 'INTOLERABLE'

Primary classes of 30 or more and elementary classes of 40 or more have been labelled "intolerable" by B.C. teachers.

Robert Buzza, president of the 18,000-member B.C. Teachers' Federation, said these are among new guidelines established by the teachers' group.

At the secondary level, a work load involving teaching more than 160 students daily or one which requires a teacher to work regularly 45 hours or more a week will be regarded as an intolerable learning situation.

"The BCTF is again prepared to support, morally and financially, any teacher who on the advice of the BCTF and his local association refuses to teach in a situation which, after investigation, is considered intolerable," said Mr. Buzza.

The BCTF president has written school boards across the province thanking them for their co-operation in attempts to reduce class sizes.

The federation launched its war on large classes over a year ago and Mr. Buzza said the number of classes containing 40 or more students dropped from 411 in January of 1967 to 40 by last October.

The campaign has led to more teachers and teacher assistants being hired, he said.

Seven-Year Decline In Church Attendance

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Except for a slight increase in 1967 average attendance at St. Peter's Church, Quamichan, has been steadily declining for the past seven years.

In his parish bulletin this week the rector, Rev. Neil Robinson poses his congregation the question: "How long can this continue without St. Peter's disappearing?"

St. Peter's is the parent church of St. Andrew's, Cowichan Station, and the Duncan district has two other Anglican churches, St. John's and St. Mary's.

Perhaps Mr. Robinson may find his answer coming from a synod committee which is considering the overall picture of consolidation of parishes on Vancouver Island.

★ ★ ★

The vote has come and gone—at least at Duncan United Church.

And the result is that the one morning service during July and August and Labor Day weekend will be at 10 a.m.

The congregational ballot last Sunday voted for 10 a.m. rather than 9 a.m. or 11 a.m.

The United Church AOTS club has put out an appeal for household articles such as bedding, pots and pans to help furnish the manse at Klemtu on the West Coast of the B.C. mainland.

A former Duncan United Church member, Ted Marsh, is the lay missionary there among the Indian population.

★ ★ ★

As a congregational summer project the men of Duncan United Church plan to put a new roof on the building—all by volunteer labor.

And the congregation learned this week it has to meet a $2,100 share of the $35,000 total cost of up-dating the facilities at Camp Pringle, Shawnigan Lake.

The camp is used by all churches within Victoria Presbytery.

This year's vacation Bible school of Trinity Lutheran Church, Duncan, starts July 2 and caters to children from nursery school age to junior high.

It will run for two weeks with sessions each morning Tuesday to Friday the first week and Monday to Friday the second week from 9 to 11:45 a.m.

Christ and the Election

The sermon at Metropolitan United Church Sunday at 11 a.m. will be in the nature of a meditation on Canada's general election next Tuesday.

Rev. Albert King will speak on The Christian and the Just Society.

"Without favoring any political party, I shall discuss our responsibilities as Christians at this time," Mr. King said.

Hans Siegrist cellist with Victoria Symphony Orchestra will be soloist, and the Sanctuary Choir, led by Frank Tupman, will sing Fight the Good Fight.

The Junior Choir, directed by Mrs. Jackie Gleason, will be heard at the 9:15 a.m. worship.

'We Thank God For the Doctors'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

Ninety-seven per cent of man's habit-thinking is negative, Rev. Emma Smiley told the congregation at Victoria Truth Centre.

"Only about three per cent of the world's population is truly positive in its thinking — and positive thinking is the key to happiness and success."

Victoria Truth Centre has been likened to Christian Science, but Dr. Smiley says there are profound differences.

"We believe in freedom of thought within a certain framework," she said. "We like our people to think for themselves and evolve their own religious concepts. Above all, we want them to adopt positive, happy thinking."

NO PREJUDICE

Dr. Smiley said her church has absolutely no prejudice against medical doctors.

"We thank God for them," she said. "We believe mental, spiritual and physical ailments are related but we cannot ignore the physical."

Dr. Smiley said Victoria Truth Centre was started as a small group in 1898. For the past 19 years the centre has been housed in the old Crease residence at 1201 Fort Street.

It is enclosed in three acres of verdant parkland and sheltered by tall trees, one of which is festooned with colored lights every Christmas.

GARDEN OF SILENCE

There is hedge-bordered Garden of Silence where members like to meditate, not only on Sundays but in lunch hours and spare moments during the week.

"The pause that refreshes doesn't have to be a soft drink, or a hard one," Dr. Smiley says. "To escape into the silence for a few minutes can mean renewal for the rest of the day."

Dr. Smiley is particularly proud of what she calls the Children's Church — a separate building, brightly decorated, where 300 youngsters of all ages receive instruction.

"We avoid the term Sunday School," she said, "because it is too much associated with week-day learning."

SIMPLE SERVICES

Sunday morning and evening services in the Truth Centre are notable for their simplicity. The long, high-windowed church is unornamented except for a red carpet down the aisle, the flower-decked platform, the speakers' lectern and a grand piano.

There are plush, tip-up seats and the general effect is that of a concert hall, except for the quiet air of reverence that prevails.

The service usually opens with a popular hymn and is followed by a responsive reading, led by Dr. Smiley. This one is fairly typical:

Dr. Smiley: "Life in all its loveliness is now revealed to me.

Congregation: "The day is complete, perfect and eternal and I live it joyously.

Dr. Smiley: "I seek the quietness of God and I am conscious of His presence.

Congregation: "I am radiant love. I give freely and joyously my gift of love to bless and uplift everyone."

A vocal or instrumental solo follows, after which Dr. Smiley gives her meditation. She uses hardly any notes — just a few headings — and the content is usually spontaneous and inspirational.

"What I say is what I feel at the moment," she says. "It may not be what I feel the day after or the day after that.

"We are not in competition with other churches. Some of our followers belong to what are called orthodox churches and visit us only occasionally.

"We welcome them regardless."

'WE STILL HAVE TO KNOW STARS'

Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons will officially retire from the United Church Sunday after 50 years in the ministry.

Farewell services will be held in Centennial United Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and there will be a reception for Dr. and Mrs. Parsons after the evening worship.

Wednesday they leave for a five-week visit to England, but they will continue to reside in Victoria.

Born in Cornwall, England, Dr. Parsons served the United Church at Calgary, Brandon, and Winnipeg before coming to Victoria in 1959.

DR. PARSONS
... retires Sunday

"Church life has changed considerably over the past 20 years," he says. "Congregations are less integrated and they have to face competition from many forms of entertainment, especially TV.

"But I'm not despondent over this. The church is changing fast but it is keeping pace with the times."

Dr. Parsons says young people today are no different from 50 years ago except for the influence of their environment. And they get less encouragement for the religious side of their nature from home and school.

"But I find that, whenever young people are challenged by people who live their faith, they respond with service."

Dr. Parsons believes there is too much emphasis on sex these days.

"Sex has always been a problem in the field of living. But when it is undisciplined and undirected it becomes a menace.

"Sex in this form has brought down strong and vigorous civilizations. And it will destroy us unless we baptize it in the love of God."

Dr. Parsons says there must be a real distinction between what changes and what survives.

"The same stars have guided mariners for centuries. We have perfected many instruments of navigation, but we still have to know the stars.

"In all living, we must recognize moral law and the law of God."

Just recently, Dr. Parsons retired from the presidency of Greater Victoria Council of Churches and was succeeded by Canon Grahame Baker of St. John's Anglican Church.

Dr. Parsons noted that the United Church of Canada celebrated its 43rd anniversary on June 10.

"Some say we shan't see our 50th because there will be a new church embracing Anglican and United Church members. I think this is being over-optimistic.

"There are many problems to straighten out before such a union will be possible and I think it will take rather more than seven years."

Churches to Hold Membership Survey

What church do you attend?

More than 6,000 Victorians will be asked that question Sunday and Monday.

There are no strings attached. If you say "No church," no one will try to convert you.

No one will ask you for money and no one will try to cajole you into a church.

Results of the census will be turned over to Greater Victoria Council of Churches for use by Anglicans, United, Baptists and Roman Catholics in meeting the needs of their followers.

POOLED RESOURCES

Four churches have pooled their resources to take a religious census of the area bounded by Gordon Head, Ten Mile Point, Cadboro Bay and Lansdowne Road.

The churches are St. George the Martyr (Anglican), Cadboro Bay United, Emmanuel Baptist and St. Patrick's Roman Catholic.

More than 140 men and women belonging to these churches have volunteered to take the census either by door-to-door calling or by telephone.

CALLS TO BE BRIEF

"We shall make the calls as brief as possible," said R. F. Sampson of St. George the Martyr, Cadboro Bay. "The sole idea is to find out how many Victoria people have a church affiliation and what religious denomination they belong to."

Mr. Sampson said there are approximately 2,000 families in the area to be surveyed, and the average Victoria family contains about three persons.

"So we should reach at least 6,000 people."

Canon Grahame Baker, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches, said:

"This is a worthwhile enterprise and I'm glad that four different church denominations are working together in an ecumenical spirit.

Laurier Saumur, district overseer for British Columbia, will also participate.

Atomic Evolution

Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force? This question is the topic of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. Services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Chambers at Pandora, begin at 11 a.m.. The public is invited to attend. The Golden Text, from Proverbs, states the theme of the Lesson: "The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens."

English Lash Bowling For Good Start in Test

LONDON (Reuters) — Explosive batting by Colin Milburn and a stylish innings by Ken Barrington set England on the way to a promising first-innings total Friday in the second Test match against Australia at Lords cricket ground.

Milburn scored 60 of his 83 in boundaries and had a second-wicket partnership with Geoff Boycott of 132—the highest against the Australian XI on the current tour. By close, England scored 314 for the loss of five wickets.

England—out to square the five-match series after Australia's first test victory at Manchester—opened the day at 53 for one before a crowd of 29,000. Milburn immediately lashed into the Australian attack with a pre-lunch barrage but was eventualy out of Australian spinner John Gleason.

Barrington, who retired with an injured hand, after scoring 61, consolidated the position in a fourth-wicket stand with England skipper Colin Cowdrey which yielded 97 runs.

STRONG BATTING

Cowdrey looked strong and scored three fours off one over by paceman Graham McKenzie, before McKenzie had him caught at slip.

Graveney after two fine drives for four, then fell to a catch by wicket-keeper Barry Jarman off Alan Connolly.

New Tires, Sad Motor On Dave's Trouble List

Track officials are expecting about 12 Vancouver cars to be on hand to compete against Vancouver Island machines when time trials start at 7. Racing will begin at 8.

Among the Island wheeljockeys, Ross Surgenor and Bob Bissenden have now acquired "regulation" tires for their super-stocks and are expected to provide tougher competition for Cooper, currently the leading super-stock driver.

There may also be another bit of trouble for Cooper. His motor blew last week in a mainland race and mechanics have run into problems getting it back in operation.

Bermuda Story: It's All Right There in the Songs

TIMES STAFF WRITER WINS TRAVEL AWARD

Pete Loudon, Victoria Daily Times feature writer, has won the 1968 Canadian travel writing award sponsored by the provincial department of travel industry and Air Canada.

He wins $250 and a two-week all-expense-paid vacation for two to Quebec.

Stories on the Inside Passage, Butchart Gardens and tyee fishing at Campbell River won the award for the Times staffer.

The winner for the best Canadian travel story by a Canadian writer was selected by the editors of The Press Journal, Toronto, and announced today by Travel Industry Minister W. K. Kiernan.

Out-of-province winners visit British Columbia, while British Columbians go to Quebec as guests of the Department of Tourism, Fish and Game. In each case transportation is provided by Air Canada.

Runners up this year were Roger LaCasse of La Voix de L'Est, Granby, Quebec, and Foster Russell of the Cobourg-Sentinel Star, Ontario.

... Quebec trip

"I am happy that a local writer is this year's winner," said Mr. Kiernan.

HAMILTON, Bermuda — To find out just about all you need to know about Bermuda, just listen to her music.

The British Colony has created music and talent that tells almost as much about the island as any history or guidebook.

Want to know about the island's famous Bermuda-shorted Bobbies, for instance? Listen to Jimmy Waugh's Policeman on the Corner, as sung by the Bermudian group that recently introduced it to the public, Hubert Smith and his Coral Islanders.

PAGEANT OF BERMUDA

As a matter of fact, Jimmy Waugh has composed a Bermuda suite of songs about the island. He calls the composition a pageant of Bermuda. His book includes songs about the ducking stool, a popular sightseeing attraction and a melody about Featherbed Alley in the town of St. George.

Other famous trademarks of the island are the horsedrawn carriage and the singing group, the Talbot Brothers. Playing since the late 1930s, the Talbots introduced a song at that time, Bermuda Buggy Ride, that has become one of the most requested songs in their varied repertoire.

WAY OF LIFE

Introducing songs of Bermuda that become standards is almost a way of life for the colony's entertainers. Step Through A Moongate, a song that celebrates one of the features, was first presented by the Bermudian troupe, the Holiday Island Revue. The song was written by Ralph Blane, who also wrote The Boy Next Door and The Trolley Song.

Trolleys Bermuda doesn't have, but the island's most prominent means of transportation, the motorbike, found its way into the melody, Gooseneck Handlebars. Few visitors to the island have not heard the song or experienced a ride on one of the colony's putt-putts.

And most visitors have been impressed by twilight and moonlight on the sea in Bermuda. The song, Sunset In Bermuda, written by Ross Talbot of the Talbot Brothers, is about the beauty of evening, the sunlight gilding the ocean.

BERMUDA AFFAIR

Telling of the moon sparkling on the sea is Archie Talbot's contribution to the colony's musical archives; the song is titled Bermuda Affair.

That Bermuda has won the hearts of the Talbot Brothers goes without saying. Another melody by Ross speaks not only for them but for generations of people who have come to the island. The title — Bermuda Is Paradise. Besides telling of the colony's beautiful blue water and sky, the song salutes another part of the island's historic architeture, the Bermuda cottages' white roofs.

The history of Bermuda is approached in another way by the Bermudian folk singing group, The Travellers.

These three energetic entertainers compose delightfully witty pieces mainly touching on the days of privateering, rum running and sailing. Their songs even discuss some of the colony's more infamous figures such as Daniel Tucker, the first Governor of Bermuda in 1616, who inspired the well-known folk song, Ol' Dan Tucker.

Mexico: 6,000 Miles Of Coastline

With more than 6,000 miles of colorful tropic coastline, Mexico's beaches literally offer something for everyone's taste.

There is the famous international playground, Acapulco, renowned for its spectacular scenery and cosmopolitan atmosphere.

The desire for quiet, fun, romance, sports, or adventure can be fulfilled in scores of coastal settings. For the hunter, game abounds in the jungles that fringe coastal resorts and placid villages.

●

On the Gulf of Mexico, Tampico and Veracruz, Mexico's principal Eastern ports, spring to mind, but less known Tuxpan, a port that seems to exist only for the sheer fun of it and many more beckon the traveller to more remote strands.

Many of these vacation centres are only a pleasant drive from Mexico City, which in turn is linked to Buenos Aires, Santiago and Lima by jet service from eastern and western Canada.

In the same category, the Isla Mujeres and Island of Cozumel are less frequented, but growing in popularity and offer the most iridescent waters in the region.

●

These same waters enhance the coast with both their beauty and marine wonders. Here the great galleons of Spanish explorers lie encrusted—to the delight of skin divers. Spectacular coral formations spray from the ocean floor.

While many of these tropical wonderlands are only accessible by boat or air, transportation from Mexico City can be arranged easily.

Prime Minister WHO?

OTTAWA (CP) — To find out what to say for Canada at Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, a check was made on what the Japanese already know.

They know Anne of Green Gables. She is "Anne of the Red Hair," and she lives on Prince Edward Island, which has mountains and sits under a midnight sun.

●

Canada is Niagara Falls, ice and snow and Eskimos.

Someone said the prime minister is Josephine Baker. You start from there.

The Canadian government exhibition commission, gearing up for an $11,200,000 presentation in Osaka, will present some of these things, the things people expect to find.

An Eskimo family, for example, will spend the full run of Expo 70 carving a mural in the Canadian pavilion.

It was one lesson of Canada's Expo 67 that when pavilions leave out traditional signs of national identity they disappoint their visitors.

But the rest will be discovery — touching the land, meeting the people and sensing the spirit of Canada.

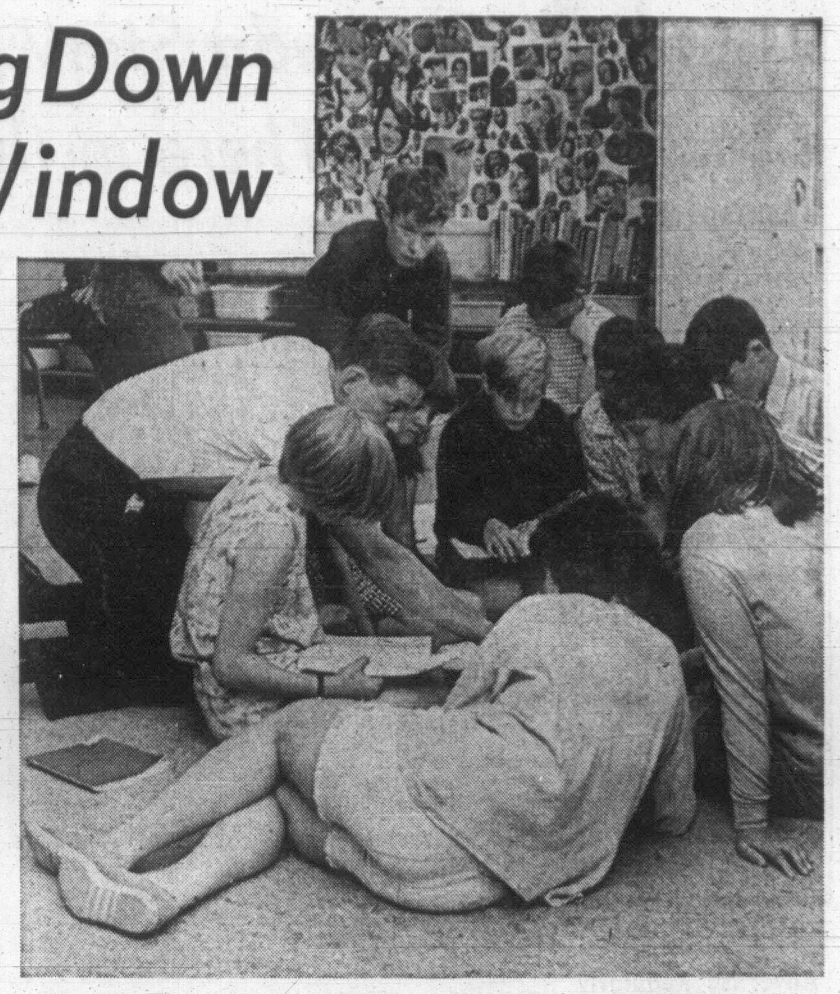
Walls Come Tumbling Down Tradition Out the Window

THE YOUNG PEOPLE who make Beaver Lake School go, from left, principal Jim Chow, teachers Mrs. Vana Baxter, Mrs. Linda Pearson, Mrs. Carol Newhouse and Peter Mergens. Their school emphasizes children as individuals, uses flexible classrooms, mobile student groups and teacher teamwork in presenting lessons. Classmates talk over what they are studying, often work in pairs on projects or to help each other. Teachers guide them but much of the discovery trail is left for the youngsters to uncover.



THE QUESTION IS how can Japan, far smaller than British Columbia, but with 40 times the population, manage to feed her people? Classroom floor was the handiest spot for this group from Grade VI to study research material for some answers in Social Studies project.

Switch: Teacher Teaching Becomes Learner Learning

By Don Vipond

Nothing!

The youngsters working on maps take their time about finishing a line. The pupils busy reading continue to the end of the page. The chatter between classmates continues uninterrupted.

The conclusion is a tough one. But seeing is believing. These children like school! And they're in no hurry to leave, for lunch or any other reason.

What's happening in our schools anyway?

●

What's happening at Beaver Lake School on West Saanich Road is that five young men and women are using advanced ideas to create something special.

It's something special:

- To watch an entire class free to talk while it learns, free to move about the room looking for answers in a lesson.
- To see a youngster diligently helping a classmate with an arithmetic problem, their desks pulled together in a temporary partnership.
- To watch two teachers blend their talents to present a new idea to a mixed grades class.
- To see half a dozen children huddled around books on the floor, thrashing out a geography puzzle together.

It's something special when you have a school bubbling with initiative, imagination, eagerness and laughter.

Beaver Lake Elementary School, with 140 pupils in Grades 1 to 7, is not a unique operation. There are a handful of other schools on the lower Island using similar ideas.

But it is a classic example of what can happen when you give enlightened young teachers a chance to convert education jargon like "individual progress," "team teaching," "open areas" and "resource centres" into something real.

The philosophy behind individual progress is recognizing each child learns at his own rate and no two are quite the same, explains principal Jim Chow.

"I don't think it's for us to mold them into the same type of person."

It's obvious when you pause to think about it. But schools for years have ignored it in the main and many still do.

They ignore it with desks in rigid rows, when youngsters are popped in and out of arbitrary molds called grades, when a teacher talks to 30 children as though they were one.

Remember?

At Beaver Lake, and schools like it, the emphasis is switched—from teacher teaching to learner learning.

The teacher's job is changing, says Peter Mergens who handles Grade 6.

He or she should first provide an environment and then the opportunity for children to learn. The teacher then acts as a guide.

No more one-way traffic — teacher spouting like the fountain of truth with mute pupils absorbing, more or less.

What do you do when you want to convert pupils to individuals, allow for their differences, teach them to learn on their own and work together?

At Beaver Lake this year a wall was removed, the grade lines between 1 and 3 erased. These children worked in mobile groups in one big room.

When the school opens in September, more walls will be gone, four former classrooms and a hall will be one big room and most of the pupils will be in it.

With individual progress, students gravitate into small groups with about the same ability. Now the teacher can offer the group what it's ready for. The rest don't have to wait or struggle to keep up.

Groups can change because kids change. So no desks are bolted to the floor. With the teacher-guide moving from group to group, children must learn to work on their own. After all, that's what they are going to have to do after they leave school.

Often the quicker ones lend a helping hand to the ones who are finding the going tough. It works. They speak the same language.

The open area concept is a natural outgrowth of individual progress because there is no place for grade cells. It gives the flexibility needed so the bright grade 4 type can shift easily into grade 5 work a few feet away.

The alternative?

Mr. Mergens puts it this way: "What are you going to tell the grade 5 who is intrigued by a grade 6 project, 'You can't do that 'til next year?' "

The open area challenges the concept that silence is the best learning environment. Pupils now talk to each other about their work with the basic rule "not so loud so you annoy others."

It has worked this year. Next fall carpeting and acoustic tile in the new open area will soak up much of the noise.

●

Team teaching also follows naturally with individual progress. When the grade lines disappear, more than one teacher is available to work with the new groups formed.

"You have to have a flexible staff, a principal who is behind you and no rigid guidelines," says Mrs. Vana Baxter, who works with Mrs. Linda Pearson in the grade 1 to 3 groups. They and Mrs. Carol Newhouse, grade 5 teacher, are all in their early 20s.

With team teaching children get a chance to associate with more than one teacher, notes Vana. And a teacher with a particular skill, say in art, can present a lesson to a combined class while other teachers supervise.

Maybe one of the biggest advantages is that teachers working as a team can combine to help each other, stimulate and work out new ideas.

"It involves a lot of staff discussions," says Mr. Chow. "We sit down and talk about problems."

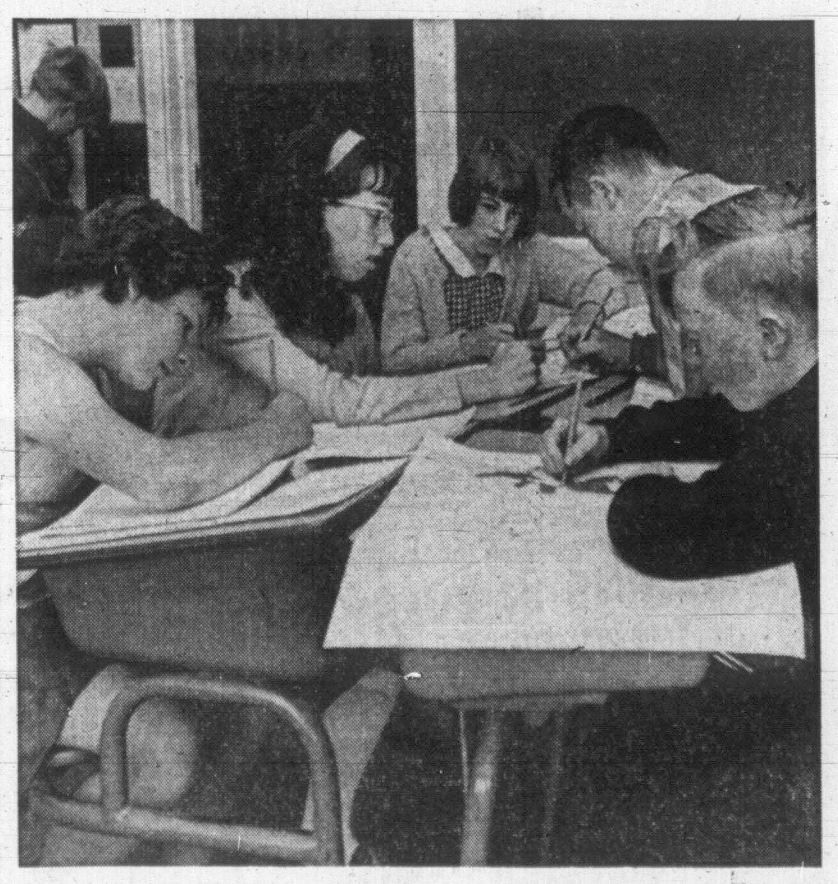
Do they learn it better?

Maybe you can't measure something like that. But there appears to be a lesson in what happens when the noon hour bell rings.

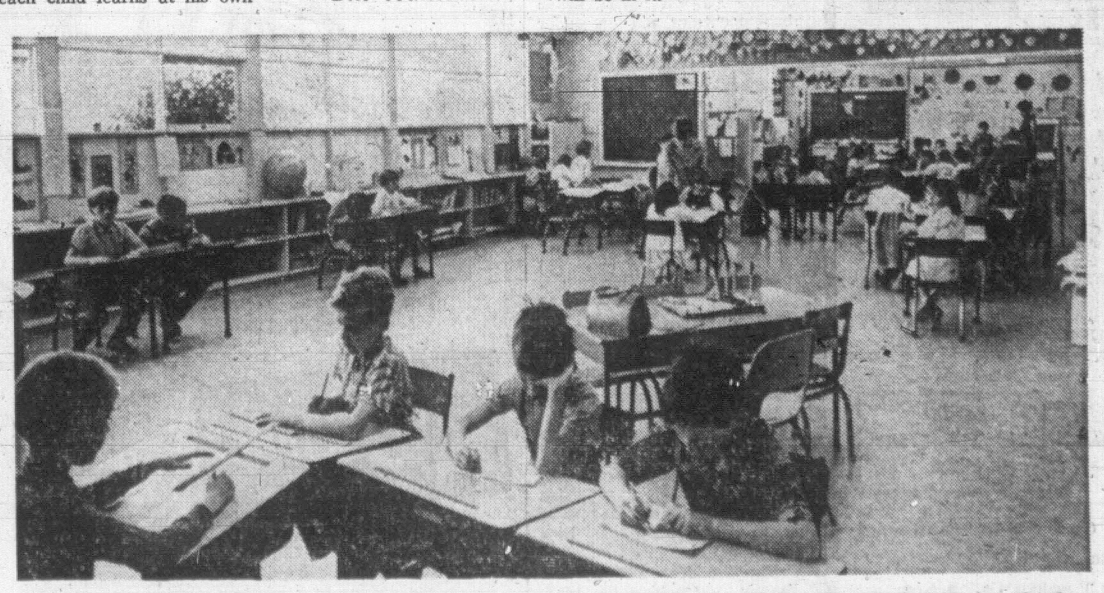
Photos by Bill Halkett

MOBILITY AND FLEXIBILITY are needed for individual progress. Desks must move so pupils can work in pairs or small groups and this means teacher must also move from group to group in role of guide. Mrs. Pearson checks a point with Pam Pemberton while Walter Honicke works on. Idea of the mobile teacher is hardly new. It was the usual thing in the multi-grade classes of backwoods.

STONE AGE TABLEAU created by Sandy MacSween and Bev Waterfield followed study of man's early history. Youngsters are encouraged to use their imaginations. Scene has miniature pottery, matchstick firewood.



IS THERE ANY REASON why pupils shouldn't talk over work in class or help each other on projects? Many teachers think it is an important part of learning. Peter Mergens estimates it takes a year for a class to settle down to this routine. Then they still need some reminding.



EXPANDING OPEN AREA at Beaver Lake school, now the size of two classrooms, will incorporate four rooms when school opens in September. Carpeting and acoustic tile will be added to deaden noise. Children at grades 1 to 3 level are at work here, each advancing at his own rate.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

Leave It to the Cockneys, They Found a Word for It

By JACK BEASTALL

The dictionary tells us that compost is "various substances well mixed." That aptly describes this week's column. While on the subject of definitions, the origin of the word "manure" is rather interesting.

Jack

Today it is usually applied to animal wastes which are added to the soil, but not originally when the word was brought to England after the Norman Conquest.

The nobles of the French court acquired estates around London, their hired help being the true Londoners, or Cockneys, and the Cockney dialect is a mixture of old English and mispronounced French.

Those who worked on the land were told, in French, to "manoeuvre" the soil, the word manoeuvre coming from the Latin "to work skillfully by hand."

The closest a Cockney could come to pronouncing the word was as "manure." Since quantities of animal dung were always applied when the soil was manoeuvred, the English took it to mean the substance put into the soil rather than the act of tilling.

Here in Canada, "manure" is reserved for animal dung, but in English gardening literature it can mean any form of fertilizer, the chemical fertilizers being referred to as artificial manures.

As we have slowly improved our knowledge of animal manures we no longer look upon them as fertilizers because of their low content of plant foods.

On the other hand, we have learned their great importance as soil builders and the essential part they play in feeding and maintaining large populations of enzymes, yeasts, moulds, bacteria, and insects, without which healthy and nourishing plants cannot be grown in fields and gardens.

Today we also know that certain hormones from bodies of animals are important to plants, hormones that cannot be supplied with chemicals.

Bird manures are in a different class to animal manures. Bird manures (chicken, duck, turkey, pegeon, etc.) have a high ammonia content, high enough to burn plants just as easily as straight ammonia fertilizer can burn.

The ammonia is converted into the plant food nitrogen, and an excess of nitrogen causes rapid, soft growth easily damaged by cool temperatures and greatly liked by several kinds of aphides.

It is quite noticeable in local gardens that aphides infestation has increased and become a serious problem where quantities of bird manures have been added to the soil.

It is better to look upon bird manures as fertilizers. When dry they can be easily powdered and applied by teaspoon to each lettuce, cabbage, or other plant whose succulent leaves are a delicacy.

While aphides are a problem to some gardeners, the sudden wilting of last years' raspberry canes are worrying others.

These are the canes that should be bearing fruit this year, but after a promising start they have wilted almost overnight, although young growths (this year's) continue to make vigorous headway.

In most instances the wilted canes can be removed from the soil with a sharp pull, and we find that active roots are entirely missing.

The blame for this condition is being placed on our last two mild winters and prolonged periods of heavy rainfall.

In fact, the winters were so wet that many gardeners spent weeks without a trip around the garden to see how their plants were faring.

Only those who, from necessity, had to work among the plants realized that for weeks on end the soil water table was only one to two inches below soil level.

This means that roots of trees and shrubs were without air, standing in water for periods longer than roots can tolerate, and the finer roots and the feeding roots were all killed.

Not only raspberries, but many ornamental and fruiting trees and flowering shrubs have been added to the list of losses.

In all instances, the plants had sufficient reserves in their stems to make early leaves and flowers, but were unable to continue growth once the reserves had been exhausted because there were no active roots to provide further food supplies.

As far as raspberries are concerned, the strong young growths produced this year can be lifted after leaf-fall and replanted in another part of the garden.

Unless there is good drainage where the new bed is made, the same thing can happen in any winter of heavy rainfall, therefore it would be wise to improve drainage by breaking up the hard underlayer of clay and holding it open with some gravel or a good quantity of compost.

Most of us have, at one time or another, been highly amused at the amount of energy the gardeners in England expend on "double digging," that is, breaking soil to a depth of some 24 to 30 inches before planting.

We are now beginning to see the wisdom of this practice in a wet climate, and we should probably have saved a lot of plants, especially trees, had we realized its value two years ago. Nicotine sulphate, sold as a 40 per cent solution under the trade name of Black-leaf 40, is one of our oldest insecticides.

●

It is the standard spray for use against aphides and widely used by some home gardeners, but it is not generally realized that an air temperature of 65 degs. F. is necessary to cause sufficient fumes to be effective. The fumes are highly toxic to humans.

WEEK'S WORK

As lilies are making flower buds, give one feeding of either a balanced general fertilizer or a bulb fertilizer. Water in well.

If the big bearded-iris are due for a move, lift them now for dividing and resetting.

Cut back straggly ends of sun-roses (helianthemum) for plants to continue long in bloom.

Nipping off the little stems of Rockery Thrift (armeria), and removal of old flower stems from rock dianthuses, will promote summer long flowering.

Cover exposed potato tubers but do not hill. Lift earlies and use ground without further digging for late cabbage, cauliflower and broccoli.

MAKE EVERY HALL VERY ATTRACTIVE

By PAULINE GRAVES

Unless you use rooms as traffic areas, such as going through the living room to reach the bedrooms, you must devote a certain amount of square footage in your home to hallways.

Many people think of this almost as wasted space, but it does save wear on your rooms. Why not, then, make every hall as attractive as possible.

●

In fact, it is an entry hall almost without walls, for a sofa effects the separation between hall and living room. And the exterior wall is all glass.

This exterior wall, however, has a strong feeling of solidarity, due to the heavy tapered posts that divide the glass into two foot wide panels. And two-inch dowels cross the glass horizontally, one foot down from the ceiling beam and one foot up from the floor at the entry level. No one will attempt to walk through this glass thinking that it is open to the outdoors.

Rocks were a part of the natural terrain, and they were integrated into the house design where the steps descend from the entry to the living room.

Locksmiths Make It Pay On Mondays and Fridays

By PAT MOAN

As many as 30 Victorians lock themselves out of their homes or cars each day of the week.

But some days are worse than others.

Locksmith Lou Schleppe finds Mondays are a bad day. Or, from his point of view, a "good" day. Monday is wash day and many housewives find themselves out in the cold — for longer than they anticipated!

Friday night (shoppers' night) is also a good night, according to Harold Price, of Price's Key Shop.

Also there is the weekly number of children who have locked themselves in the bathroom and must be rescued from drinking the bubble bath.

$5 A CALL

A good locksmith can unlock your door in anywhere from 5 to 20 minutes, depending on the lock.

The going rate for a service call is $5. But then there are those not-so-very-rare individuals who have to call in a locksmith two or three times a week! It could run into money.

With the equipment, training (five-year apprenticeship), and talent to open a locked door in five minutes you may wonder if many locksmiths aren't tempted to abuse their trade.

"Some of the best locksmiths are behind bars," joked Lou Schleppe. Like other Victoria locksmiths, however, he agrees that as businessmen they are interested in a clientele, not a "quick buck."

"Criminals," says a local blacksmith, "have neither the time nor incentive to learn the locksmith trade. Why should they spend five years studying when they can just as easily kick a window in?"

In the United States locksmiths are required to be registered with the police. There is no such requirement in Canada.

KEEP 'EM CLEAN and happy and 10,000 hens will lay 8,000 eggs a day. It's all done by electronics at the Duncan farm of Ed Hopps. Here Mrs. Hopps helps gather up the harvest. Latest luxury for these birds will be piped-in music.

BY AUTOMATED DUNCAN EGGMAN

All-Canadian Hen Sought

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — The facilities of an electronically-operated Duncan hen farm are being utilized by the federal government to carry out an experiment.

Electronics engineer-cum-hen-farmer Ed Hopps is co-operating with federal and provincial officials to find the best bird to lay the most eggs.

Mr. Hopps says: "They want a Canadian bird and not an American bird."

He explained: "Most of the chicks we buy in Canada right now are from the United States' stock so that in effect all our breeding birds are coming from south of the line.

"These government men are trying to breed, and I believe have produced a new strain with a low mortality rate and capable of producing a greater numer of eggs.

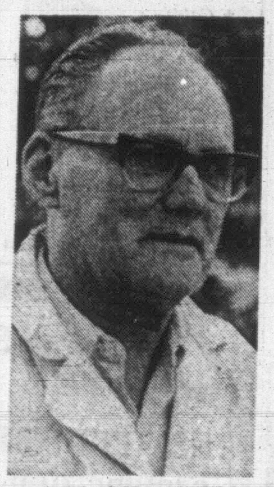
10 VARIETIES

The government men are working with 10 different strains of white leghorns and meantime haven't given a name, just a number, to the newly developed strain.

Mr. Hopps' farm was chosen for the experiment because it is unique in Canada in the electronic cleanliness of the entire operation.

Ed Hopps doesn't take all the credit but says the Inverarity Road farm was started by a fellow Yorkshireman by the name of Sikes.

However, Mr. Hopps has applied much of the electronic knowledge gathered in running a small factory in England.



ED HOPPS
. . . eager egger

The hens' feed and water is fed to them in trays powered by electronics, and the trays of manure are scraped off electronically twice a day.

It's probably the cleanest, sweetest smelling hen farm you'll come across anywhere. Soon it will also be the most content.

Mr. Hopps is going to pipe music into the 500-foot long henhouse which is home for 10,000 birds.

HEP CHICKS

He says: "It will have to be Mantovani or something like that. Music soothes them and makes them used to constant noise so they won't scare so easily.

"Something soft and sentimental will change the present situation; when you enter the place in the morning, you can't hear yourself think."

Ed Hopps came to this country in 1953. He switched to operating a hen farm mainly because his elder son wanted him to.

He made the switch in 1965 but because last year was the worst ever in the industry in Canada his son had to move out and take work in Victoria.

But Mr. Hopps says business is beginning to pick up and he hopes to bring his son back into the business.

He would be happy if there is substance to the current rumor the egg marketing board is to be taken over by the federal government.

He said: "Thousands of cases of eggs are being brought into B.C. from the United States and we still get eggs from Alberta and Manitoba.

"This wouldn't apply if there was a standard price across the country."

Mr. Hopps' farm produces up to 8,000 eggs a day and they are marketed through a Victoria wholesaler.

He said: "I have my own feed formula but I've been told part of the reason for the high quality of my eggs is the quality of the water we use from Quamichan Lake."

Mr. Hopp's Whitegates farm is run by himself, his wife and their teenage son, David, who is a Quamichan Junior Secondary School student.

'Don't Beg' Candidate Tells Indians

DUNCAN — Mladen Zorkin told an election meeting in the Cowichan reserve long house that begging the government for money is not the right attitude for Indian people.

He said: "You must put forward candidates from amongst you to run for public office and send some of your own people to Ottawa.

"There are enough educated persons among you that eventually, I believe, the federal department of Indian affairs should be completely administered by Indians."

The Liberal candidate for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands said:

"Canada is buying its conscience by giving you money but you can't buy conscience or human emotions of love.

"The deplorable condition of Indians in Canada should not be filling you with bitterness and hate.

Teen-Age Girls Found on Ship

NANAIMO (CP) — A 16-year-old Nanaimo girl was given an indefinite term at Willingdon Girls School, Burnaby, after she was caught Wednesday aboard the freighter M.V. Victoria, at Port Alberni.

Five other girls, the youngest 14 years old, were given sentences ranging from two months in jail to a one year suspended sentence.

All six were charged with vagrancy.

Recently RCMP at Port Alberni and city police at Vancouver and Victoria drew attention to a danger to young girls enticed to remain aboard deep-sea ships between coastal ports.

The problem has been increasing in recent months they said.

DUNCAN—On the eve of the second consecutive Sunday morning mass meeting of Duncan local 1-80 IWA members, Chemainus Ministerial Association has protested the 11 a.m. timing.

The protest says the union meetings clash unnecessarily with the hour of worship.

Duncan Ministerial Association called a special meeting Friday to consider the situation.

Rev. Allan Kerr and Rev. John Boonstra were appointed a delegation to approach the union local with a view to reaching compromise regarding the timing of these meetings.

Mr. Kerr said: "We don't want to be branded anti-union but think a change of time can be mutually agreed."

Local president Weldon Jubenville is in Vancouver as a member of the union's contract negotiating committee and was unavailable for comment.

A mass meeting of Duncan local is set for the James Street curling rink at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Admiral Brock, who resigned from the navy last year after a rift with then Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, advocated the move in a campaign speech.

He said: "It will be difficult to put the armed forces back to where they were before unification but I believe the whole question must be reviewed.

"Armed forces are simply a tool of diplomacy but necessary for the future."

COURTENAY—Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has called a public meeting to discuss problems of the Mount Becher Ski Development Society.

Mr. Campbell, who is the member for Comox, said the meeting Thursday will deal with "printed and privately expressed innuendos" and anyone involved in any way with the society is invited to attend.

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indian band has been forced to cut its projected housing program for 1968-69 from 20 to 14 new houses.

And the band's overall housing program has been extended from four to five years.

Band secretary Miss Louise Underwood said Friday the cuts were necessary because the housing grant has been reduced from $171,000 to $125,000.

This includes $25,000 for service costs to the now completed 18-house subdivision.

Miss Underwood said: "Council has been assured that funds being used this year to provide services to the subdivision will be refunded to the general houing program."

A protest letter about the lack of money for housing has been sent to Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing.

It states: "The reduction of housing funds has definitely caused the band hardship, and in order to meet the requirements of the Indian Affairs Branch it is essential to obtain separate funds to provide services and employ experienced and qualified staff."

Cowichan band's community planning committee has held meetings with some "interested developers" for the proposed Somenos shopping centre on reserve land.

'WHY SHOOT ISLAND WOLF?' CONSERVATIONISTS QUERY

By MORGAN MacGREGOR

CAMPBELL RIVER — "It's a terrible animal so go kill it" are the words local conservationist George Bergsma used to describe the attitude many people have towards wolves.

"It's regrettable that the wolf shot by a farmer at Sayward last week couldn't have been live-trapped and returned to its natural habitat."

Bergsma said he has never heard of a wolf attacking a human being and could see no reason to shoot it just because it's there.

"This is the same attitude we have towards the cougar," he added, "and yet both animals have a role in nature and every effort should be made to protect them."

A 17-year-old senior school student and winner of the 1968 biology award, Bob Mason, also voiced concern over the death of this animal.

He asks what was the motive behind the killing.

"In Farley Mowat's book Never Cry Wolf, it is stated that there is no record of anyone ever being killed by a timber wolf," said Mason.

NOT GUILTY

He added that perhaps wolves should be killed if they are guilty or dangerous or have committed some crime but so far all the evidence is on their side.

The wolf shot last week was spotted near farm buildings of a Sayward farmer. The carcass has been sent to the Nanaimo fish and wildlife department where geologist Don Blood is doing a study of the animal to determine whether it is one of the almost extinct Vancouver Island species. It is believed the wolf had killed a dog.

"Even so," commented Bob's mother Mrs. Gordon Mason, "one has to consider that perhaps the dog had attacked the wolf."

Mrs. Mason said she would be leary of having a wolf around her property but said she would look for alternative ways of having it removed such as live-trapping or a tranquilizer gun.

SECOND WOLF

Wildlife conservation officer Ray Rogers said that a second wolf has been sighted in the same area and that his department have set up snares to catch it alive.

"Unless the Nanaimo biologist or the universities request this second wolf for further study we will liberate the wolf to another area . . . that is, if we do trap it," said Rogers.

"I don't feel we should condemn the person who shot the first wolf," he added.

"One has to consider the concern both the farmer and his wife must have felt for the safety of their children.

"The youngsters have to walk through the bush to school and any parent would be naturally fearful in this situation," said Rogers.

Market Certain For Indian Crop

DUNCAN — Recently formed Cowichan Indian Co-operative Association has an assured local market for this year's hay and silage crop.

Co-op manager Rennie Louie said Friday the three-month-old association with six members already has 200 acres under cultivation.

He said the group will specialize in an oats, peas and vetch mixture.

He stated: "We hope to enlarge our market next year, and will be preparing a five-acre area to break into the strawberry growing business."

Mr. Louie is hopeful of recruiting more members and having more Cowichan Indians lease their land to the association.

Believes in Constructive, Not Destructive Programs . . .

INDIAN CHIEFTAINESS WORKS FOR HER PEOPLE

Mrs. Mabel Vera Stanley is in Victoria as the house guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. Stanley of Balfour Place. She is not too concerned about the dying-out of Indian languages. "They're not essential for communication. After all, you only have to travel from Campbell River to Courtenay to meet two tribes who are unable to understand each other's language." (Bill Halkett photo.)

By PAT DUFOUR

The fiery Indian model Kahn - Tineta Horn makes headlines with her vitriolic outbursts. One of her countrywomen, Mrs. Mabel Vera Stanley, does much more. She brings back pride to her people.

Mrs. Stanley, hereditary chieftainess of the We-Wa-Kwa tribe of the Kwaiuth nation, rarely stops working for her people. But, she believes in constructive, rather than destructive, programs.

Of Miss Horn she says, "She's still wet behind the ears and needs a few more years of maturing. I was rebellious like her once but you achieve nothing through hate."

Mrs. Stanley feels the main way to help her people is to foster self pride. "Without this you are nothing. I used to tell my children 'Stick your chest out. We are Indians and this is our country. Everyone else came from other places.'" She has six sons, two daughters, 18 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

GROOMED FOR ROLE

Mrs. Stanley's leadership qualities are no happenstance. The only child of a chief, she was groomed to take her rightful place from the time she was a tot. "During the evenings they would talk to me for hours, teaching and preparing me."

Mrs. Stanley admits that she pulls no punches when she works with her people. "I was visiting Oakalla recently and I noticed that many of the boys had no teeth. I told them to get some. When you apply for a job, it's the well-groomed person that gets it, regardless of training, or whether you're Indian or non-Indian."

She was brought up on the reservation at Cape Mudge but left it at an early age to attend Coqualeetza Residential School at Sardis. She has lived off the reservation since her marriage.

Mrs. Stanley feels that she was helped to adjust to life through her membership in the Colqualeetza Fellowship.

INDIAN CENTRE

"It's formed of ex-students and former staff members of the school, and was the brainchild of one of the principals, the late Dr. G. H. Railey. The members are of all denominations, Indian and non-Indian."

This is the group which worked to create an Indian centre in Vancouver. Although Mrs. Stanley is not in favor of segregation, she feels the centre is meeting a pressing need.

"When you're away from home, it's easy to get lonely . . . too easy to drift to Skid Row in search of friends. The centre provides a stepping-stone, not only for Indians but for others who've come to appreciate its worth."

Another group that's enabled her to fulfill a role in the community is the Vancouver Civic Unity. "Again, we are all kinds of people working together against discrimination. One of the most effective things it has done is to bring into being the Fair Employment Act."

To talk with Mrs. Stanley for any length of time is to be impressed with her wisdom and strength of character. One also can see why her people had trouble adjusting to a white man's way of life and thought.

"Our people had no difficulty accepting non-Indian religions, they're similar to ours. We believe in a Creator, one God who makes all things. We found it less easy to understand why each missionary kept insisting that his God was a better one than the others. To us, there could only be one."

BRIDAL POTLATCH

Divorce, too, is something which Mrs. Stanley feels is handled in a much more civilized way by her people.

"Marriages are arranged through the family. The groom's family will invite all the neighboring tribes to a potlatch, providing a feast and gifts.

"Later the bride's family will give a potlatch session too. They will equal, if not surpass, the one given by the groom's people. This way, the bride is relieved of her obligation, she is no longer her husband's property. If she is happy with him, she stays because she wants to. If not, face has been saved and she can return to her own people. You don't have to commit a crime, like adultery, to be free."

Punishment, too, is something which Mrs. Stanley feels the Indian administers with better logic.

NO PRISONS

"We don't have prisons . . . we don't send the offender away. He has to carry on living with those around him. Sometimes the one he has harmed may throw a potlatch which the offender has a moral obligation to attend. This is the worst trial of all."

Mrs. Stanley says that potlatch sessions were forbidden for many years because Indian agents failed to realize their significance in the lives of Indians.

"A potlatch is a ritual but not part of our religion. At a potlatch we celebrate births, deaths and marriages, and receive names." Mrs. Stanley was given the name Gee-Wee-Lim-Gwa at her naming potlatch.

"It is customary, when giving a potlatch, to give almost everything you have. Sometimes the agents would call and find the homes almost bare. So they thought that potlatch sessions were a source of impoverishment. What they failed to realize at that time was that soon after there'd be another potlatch and a redistribution of gifts."

Mrs. Stanley says that some of the rituals also terrified the agents. "What they couldn't understand was that all these were carefully planned before, and that everyone knew what was to be expected.

"For instance, when the wild man was supposed to come back from the forest and bite one of the dancers, there was always a skin put over the dancer's arm that would protect him and ooze blood . . . not his own . . . to help with the effect.

"Again, when the wild man was supposed to dine on only dead bodies, this, too, was simulated. There'd be deer meat and bones shaped like a human's to add to the effect."

Potlatch sessions are again permitted as Indians and non-Indians gain more understanding of each other. Many more Indians are leaving reservations to live a wider life.

With more people like Mrs. Stanley to act as their counsellor . . . and conscience . . . the transition must prove less painful and more rewarding.

Women Play Pool On Evening Out

TORONTO (CP) — A group of suburban Toronto women has found an unusual way to spend the housewife's traditional night out with the girls. Once a week they gather in the home of Mrs. D. J. Frescoe for a friendly game of snooker.

The six housewives call themselves the Erindale Ladies' Snooker Tournament. They recently wound up their second year of weekly pool sessions with a trophy presentation.

Originally the women spent their evenings just fooling around Mrs. Frescoe's pool table, but they soon became interested in the niceties of the game. An instructor was hired to give them lessons and soon they summoned up the courage to visit a pool hall.

At first they were self-conscious, but when they found they could play as well as the men they relaxed.

Volunteer Parents Play More Important Role in Education System

TEACHER AIDE PROGRAM WINS SUCCESS LOCALLY

Grade 7 students at McKenzie Elementary School are among many in Victoria who have benefitted since parents with special training have been brought in to help at some schools.

Pictured above are Karen Leachman, Gordon Caton and Liz Lasell with Mrs. Grace Smith, an artist who joined other parents volunteering to take part in the teacher aide program.

"The teachers need a break if schools are to create an atmosphere in which students want to learn and want to go on learning and enjoy the process.

"More specialists—businessmen, politicians, lawyers and doctors—should be brought into the schools and teachers should be relieved of mundane chores so they can concentrate on instruction." (School board chairman Peter Bunn.)

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

Parents are In—in schools, of all places.

No longer considered an unfortunate blot on the educational landscape, a number of parent drop-ins are taking part in a teacher-aide program with the enthusiastic approval of teachers.

"My parent is a jewel," one teacher said. "She's so understanding and so capable."

"I don't know what we would have done without them," was the comment of View Royal principal Jack Crowther. "We've been extremely fortunate in the parents and student teachers who have helped us this year."

Jack Hayes, principal of Frank Hobbs School which has utilized the volunteer parent aide program for a number of years, finds it "extremely satisfactory."

"We've had excellent co-operation any time we've called on parents for assistance."

This is a far cry from the days when any parental interest in teaching was considered bad form. Have a bazaar if you must, but leave the teaching to us, more or less sums up the old attitude.

Now, progressive educators have decided that parents can be useful in more effective ways, primarily by taking over various chores, leaving teachers free to instruct.

Ron Berod, principal of McKenzie Elementary school, explains the growing enthusiasm for parents as volunteer teacher aides:

"The old method of having a whole class doing the same work at the same time is much simpler than allowing for individual rates of progress and different interests, as many schools using the ungraded or levels systems now prefer.

POOL PARENTS

"In keeping with the trend towards individualized teaching, the staff and I are working on a curriculum which we hope will give the children the best education possible during the seven years we have them at our school.

"But this requires a great deal more time and work on the part of the teacher in planning, preparation of materials, evaluating and giving individual instruction."

This is where parents come in, doing many of the time-consuming extra jobs that teachers find so frustrating.

"We had tremendous response to our call for help just after Christmas," Mr. Berod continued. "We worked out a flexible system with two groups of parents, the pool parents and the special assignment parents."

The pool parents, five or six of them, come every Wednesday afternoon and are called upon by teachers for various jobs listed on a call board.

Parents with special training in art or music, or with past teaching experience, are naturally used in areas where their training will be of greatest value.

PIANISTS HELP

Frank Hobbs School and View Royal School, for instance, are both grateful to pianist-mothers who have accompanied choirs and helped with music classes. At McKenzie School, an artist helps once a week with a grade seven art class.

At View Royal, a pre-primary teacher works with a group of grade one children with severe reading problems, and another parent helps a family of French-Canadian children who arrived with no knowledge of English.

At Frank Hobbs school, parents take over chores such as buying books and medallions for awards ceremonies, providing food for a class party, and preparing materials for teachers in the primary grades. They also accompany classes on special trips.

At McKenzie school, parents take over ground responsibilities, supervising the playground at lunch and recess.

This, Mr. Berod points out, leaves teachers free to attend noon-hour meetings, the only time they can all meet to discuss curriculum plans.

Parents are just as enthusiastic about working in the schools.

One mother, working with a small group of slow learners in a primary grade while the teacher goes ahead at a faster rate with the other children, spoke of her pleasure over one small incident.

One little fellow was so frightened he cried the first day. For weeks he would only answer yes or no. Then gradually he gained confidence in the small group and began to talk about himself in well-framed sentences.

"It's only one child, but it's wonderful to feel I've helped," the mother said.

She and the other teacher aides all agree that a mother with a bit of free time could hardly find a more interesting or rewarding alternative to staying home to wash the kitchen floor.

Anyway, it's much more fun to be "resource material," as one teacher put it, than a floor-scrubber. As school board chairman Peter Bunn suggested in his talk at Vic High's recognition ceremony, teachers need all the help they can get.

Parents' time spent at the school gives teachers a bit of free time—and free time for teachers evidently means time to work harder than ever at the business of educating the young.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Middle-Aged Man 'Adopts' Girl, 11

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am an unmarried, middle-aged, professional man. While working in another state last summer, I became acquainted with a young woman who worked as a car hop. She had a pretty 11-year-old daughter, and was having a hard time making ends meet. Since I was going to take an extended trip through the west, I offered to take the child with me. They were both enthused and the mother gave me the girl's birth certificate "in case I needed it."

Upon returning from the trip, the mother was nowhere to be found. I spent several days trying to locate her, but to no avail. The forwarding address she left was phoney. I notified the local police, but they couldn't find the mother, nor did they try to remove the girl from my care. They took my permanent address and said they'd notify me if anything turned up.

When I commenced my present job in this town, I presented the girl "as a close relative." She is now 12, very happy, and doing well in school. She never asks about her mother. I think I am doing an excellent job of raising her and it would be a shame to be separated now.

Can you advise me as to the legal and social aspects of this?

NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR NORTH CAROLINA: I think you need a lawyer to help you establish a legal guardianship over the child, satisfying whatever preliminary actions that are required. However well-intentioned, you are now vulnerable to a number of unpleasant charges.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because I don't have a mother and my dad wouldn't understand.

I am 14 and have a boy friend named Gary, who is also 14. This might be only puppy love, but I do like him a whole lot.

My problem is another girl. She likes Gary, too, and she's trying to get him away from me. She is having a party and she invited Gary but not me. I think she just made up this party as an excuse to get my boy friend.

I felt just terrible and cried in my pillow last night. I keep thinking that if Gary really liked me he wouldn't go.

GARY'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Try to be a good sport if it kills you. Don't say a word to Gary about the party or the other girl. The surest way to lose a boy friend is to be possessive, and bossy. Give him all the freedom he wants and you won't be able to get rid of him.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps Elmer could solve his problem in some manner such as this. Inscribed on the tombstone in an eastern state are these words:

"Here lies Ephriam Wise
Between his two wives.
One was Tillie. The other was Sue.
Both were loyal, tried, and true.
I hope my friends from Adam to Willie
Will lay me out so I lean toward Tillie."

Girl Watcher Group Fights for Mini-Skirt

NEW YORK (Reuters) — "Alarmed and shocked" at the drop of the hemline, the 20,000-strong American Society of Girl Watchers has begun a campaign to save the mini-skirt.

The society, which describes itself as "a body of refined gentlemen dedicated to discreet but relentless girl watching," was founded 14 years ago and feels its existence is threatened by the current below-the-knee trend.

In a statement, society founder Don Sauers said: "We are deeply shocked and troubled by this news. We hope all will rally to the support of the mini-skirt."

The society warned: "The sudden lowering of skirt lengths is historically associated with world wars and serious depressions."

Coinciding with the start of the new viewing season, Sauers also issued some general reminders and guidelines to members.

ADMIRE WRONG SEX

He pointed out that current fashion trends sometimes lead to boys being mistaken for girls.

"There is nothing more humiliating to a girl watcher than to discover that the 'girl' he has been admiring is, in fact, a male rock 'n' roll drummer."

He warned members the use of binoculars is forbidden, nudging is vulgar and that girl watching while pouring hot coffee, clipping hedges and drilling teeth is hazardous.

The society, formed in 1954, now has a full-time staff of five at its New York headquarters, and plans are almost complete for formation of similar groups in Canada, Britain, West Germany and Japan.

It lists a bishop, an air force general, a tea-taster and movie star Paul Newman among its members.

Sauers believes the organization's success is largely due to the fact that it has no age limit—current membership ranges from 11 to 85—and cuts across racial and financial barriers.

"You can drink and smoke and go to bed late and still excel at the sport," he says.

Preventive Care Urged in Message Of Safety Council

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wives: Nag your husband until he promises never to jump up in the boat with excitement when he hooks a fish.

That's the message today from the British Columbia Safety Council which is concerned over this year's high rate of boating fatalities.

Up to this time last year there were fewer boating mishaps; but this year 18 have already drowned in 11 accidents. And the boating and fishing season is just starting.

The council notes that in two of the accidents canoes overturned and life jackets were not worn. In six other cases a small boat overturned when one of the occupants jumped up. Three victims could have held on to their boat, but tried to swim to shore though they were not wearing life jackets, says the council in a statement.

The council emphasizes the need for life jackets and the danger of jumping up in a boat.

New York Becomes Magnet for Models

NEW YORK (Reuters) — More and more foreign models are picking up dollars, prestige and wider experience in return for bringing foreign charm to the American modelling scene.

British, West German, Italian and Scandinavian beauties see New York as the advertising centre of the world and consider the experience of working under the direction of American photographic techniques outweighs the advantage of a portfolio showing experience in London, Paris or Rome.

"It is a question of timing as well as a search for creating a name and identity for yourself," said Ursula Wunnenberg, a West German model who was working for an exclusive Paris fashion house when Wilhelmina — one of New York's top models who runs her own agency — asked her to come to New York.

"The French are no longer designing for an international clientele but exclusively for the petite French woman," she said. A model follows the markets where her image will sell, she added.

An Irish model, McGilliga, is impressed with the approach and attitude of the photographers and technicians.

"There is a great deal of pressure here to execute a flawless product because there is so much at stake — the financial investment, the product itself, reputation of the photographer and of the model.

"It is not fun here, it's hard work."

Youthful Beauty

From the early twenties, bedtime massage with a vitalizing night cream is ideal for softening traces of surface skin dryness and tiny lines. Apply Olay vitalizing night cream to cheeks, forehead, and throat and coax it into the skin with light, upward moulding strokes, then remove with a tissue. Such care will encourage complexion loveliness.

IN STEP WITH STYLE — BY NONA DAMASKE

Legs Have the Limelight

Damaske

Fashion's love affair with legs is at its highest pitch . . . the Midi and Maxi intrusion has failed to stem the tide of interest in hosiery.

There are any number of leg looks and the importance of a hosiery wardrobe is becoming an integral part of our completely co-ordinated look.

Classic neutral tone nylon hose are, of course, the backbone of any woman's hosiery wardrobe, but, for the woman who enjoys a little variation, there are now some most attractive textured hose.

In neutral shades with just a hint of pattern, these hose may be worn comfortably by the most conservative woman.

For the more adventurous there are more daring patterns in stronger shades.

If you are a little reluctant to wear textured or patterned hose for normal daytime wear, how about going off the deep end with fun hose for sports and country wear?

Economically speaking, the textured hose are great . . . they wear and wear and wear and they certainly do not need the delicate care that the finer hosiery requires.

With casual clothes and the popular low-heeled bulky-toed shoes the colorful textured hose create an effective fashion image.

There is no end of scope for leg enhancement for evening hours. There are lustre looks . . . lacy looks and embroidered looks.

Latest news from high fashion hosiery designers in New York tells us that the ankle clock patterns of the 1930s are being revived.

There are signs that the really pale shades will fade away after this summer season. Much deeper tones are predicted for the fall and winter scene.

Knee highs, with a crocheted appearance, are high on the teen-agers' fashion spectrum. They allow complete freedom from garters but achieve the neat well-groomed look.

The popularity of panty hose is growing by leaps and bounds. These are now available in Victoria with a girdle-like top which gives good figure control when needed.

Consult the weight and height charts carefully when selecting panty hose size . . . it can be a bit of a problem to find your correct fit.

Sock It To Me . . . geometric fishnet hose are an important part of the 1968 hosiery story. This summer sees the boldest, most colorful, least-inhibited leg that ever stepped out.

BABIES BUGS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bugs are usually the horror of every adult female but they don't bother Thelma Finlayson at all. They've been her profession for more than 30 years.

Mrs. Finlayson is curator of the school of entomology at Simon Fraser University and with the school of pestology there. The school will study the chemical and biological control of pests.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Parents Kept On Toes By Trusty Youngsters

By Penny Saver

Packing! I feel as if I have done nothing else for weeks. Now that the youngsters are, for all practical purposes, out of school, they have decided to take a long relaxing session up at the cabin. They will be entirely on their own except for the weekends when my husband and I visit. We aren't worried. All four have had enough experience with housekeeping and all kinds of safety to keep their parents on their toes. I must admit to harboring a pile of oily rags that constituted a fire hazard until the boys pressured me to remove them, and they are constantly reminding us to put on our life belts, for, even though we know we couldn't swim to shore, my husband and I are very remiss in this little detail. As for the housework end of the thing, the girls often get after me when I am (supposedly) relaxing at the cabin for not keeping the house as shipshape as I could. The cabin will be cleaner when I visit them at the end of the week than it is now.

Lest my four sound too good to be true, let me tell you that if they weren't this careful they wouldn't be allowed on their own—and they know it too. The one area that I ever worry about with them is that of mending. The girls just hate to mend. I have bought them a handy portable sewing machine this year in the hopes that it will encourage them to fix those rips immediately. This machine is $6.95 and cased in grey plastic. To work it you squeeze it with your hand and it makes the stitches. If you have to work it by hand, what is the advantage? Well, this little machine does buttonholes and zigzags and installs zippers as well as doing the straight sewing stitch. It takes a regular size of needle. Because it doesn't require electricity and will fit in a woman's handbag (a fairly large one, mind you, but the machine is still under a foot in length), this machine will go anywhere you do for minor repairs.

White-Collar Workers Need These

While I am on the subject of repairs, I have found a solution to my white shirt problems. My husband wears a lot of white shirts and he has trouble with the collars and cuffs. Both fray quicker than the rest of the garment and both eventually gain a layer of ground-in dirt that just won't budge. Making the stains budge with strong soaps and bleaches is part of what makes them wear out more quickly than the rest of the shirt, I often feel. There were several of these shirts around our house with perfect sleeves and bodies but mangled collars and cuffs and I was pleased to find replacements for just these pieces. Cuffs, ready-made in high quality, shrink-resistant white cotton broadcloth are 75 cents a pair for the regular style and 79 cents for French cuffs. A plain collar is 75 cents. These pieces are completely finished and just need to be sewn in place of the worn pieces. Sorry, but they are in white only.

What does one do when the bottom falls out of a pocket? Most ripped pockets I have seen are too badly torn to be re-sewn. There is, however, an iron-on pocket repair for 29 cents. This is two pieces of material folded with the adhesive side in. Just wrap one around the pocket to be fixed and press with a hot iron for 10 seconds on each side of the pocket. Let it cool thoroughly (the package suggests 15 minutes) then trim according to directions. Each package will repair two pockets.

If you would like to know where I found these mending aids, please call me at 382-3131.

Showers Held for Bride-Elect

Mrs. E. Kowalyk, assisted by Mrs. E. Chalk, gave a shower in her Robertson Street home. Miss Maysmith, her mother, Mrs. R. Maysmith, and the mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. A. Stokes, were presented with gladioli corsages that were centred with tiny rosebuds.

Mrs. H. G. Ferguson gave a linen shower for her niece at her Cyril Close home. Instead of a corsage, Miss Maysmith received an arrangement of large artificial flowers in a tall vase. The misses Leslie and Pamela Ferguson assisted their mother by arranging games and serving refreshments.

The Robertson Street home of Miss Gwen Rossiter was the setting when the bride-elect's co-workers at St. Joseph's Hospital gave a party in her honor. Miss Maysmith was presented with blankets, other gifts and an orchid corsage. A buffet supper was served.

Another aunt of the bride-to-be, Mrs. F. Cracknell, gave a party in her home on Elliston Street. A bride doll centred the lace-covered refreshment table. Miss Linda Cracknell assisted her mother with serving guests. Games were played.

Swedish Air Force Opens Door to Women Officers

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — A proposal by the Swedish Air Force to admit women has attracted a flood of inquiries from both men and women flying enthusiasts.

Commenting on the increased interest from men, the air force chief recruiting officer, Bjoern Holmbaeck, said: "They are obviously stimulated by the idea of being trained by women officers."

He also said he has had to disappoint women asking about the possibility of piloting jet fighters or bombers.

However, except for combat training, there is a possiblity that women pilots could be used.

The defence department is considering a new air transport line and experts hinted that his might be suitable for women flyers.

If the government accepts the air force's proposal, women will be able to train for almost every kind of ground job and possibly rise to the rank of colonel.

"We would prefer to enlist unmarried women, mainly to avoid dropouts through pregnancy," said Holmbaeck.

The Most Important Bottle Ever to Enter the Life of any Woman

When the contents of a bottle win world-wide acclaim for helping make older, lined, female faces look younger, pre-eminence is but one of the laurels accorded it. The power of 2nd Debut is now acknowledged wherever people read. This exotic emulsion is relegating facial lines to at least semi-permanent residence in the never-never land of happy forgetfulness. Applied nightly to the skin surface, the CEF (Cellular Expansion Factor) ingredient enters, aggressively, the outer or stratum corneum layer of the facial skin. As each particle of CEF enters the stratum corneum it carries in with it a particle of water. These water particles start a refreshing action that causes those dreaded facial lines to seemingly fill in. As the water level in the stratum corneum is raised to normal, the skin's surface improves noticeably; many surface lines vanish as though a magic wand had so commanded them. Others of deeper nature find their nagging importance squelched into near nothingness. Continued for just days this simple, pleasant before bedtime routine results in a smoother, younger presentation than your face has made in many a year. You'll find 2nd Debut (with CEF 600) and 2nd Debut (with CEF 1200) mightily rewarding and the 2nd Debut satellite preparations more than justifying every claim made for them.

2nd Debut is made in two potencies. One contains CEF 600 and is for the woman with early worries; that is, for the woman under 40.

The double-potency CEF 1200 is for the face over forty; or for the impatient lady who wants visible results without delay—or for you if your facial lines are deep. It should smooth age lines faster.

To prepare your skin to receive CEF there is 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser. Its application is different, for it is to be applied in a thin layer over your face and throat. Then rinsed off with cool water. Now your skin is clear, and clean. Really clean!

2nd Debut Liquid Makeup (with CEF 600) is probably the most covering make-up in all the world. Imparts a flattering, flat matte finish and hides most blemishes completely. Moisturizes, too, with CEF 600. Six shades.

Finally, 2nd Debut Body & Hand Lotion (with CEF 600) imparts a feeling of luxury to the body that makes you regard yourself with extra importance. And its CEF 600 richness quickly defeats the cause of hands chapping. This is a dual-purpose balm. Money Back Guarantee on all 2nd Debut products.

GOLDBERG
. . . write memoirs

Noted Envoy Leaving UN For New Life

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Arthur Goldberg, bowing out as chief U.S. envoy at the United Nations, is setting up a busy future for himself as lawyer, writer, lecturer, professor and government consultant.

Goldberg, 59, has paid his farewell call on Secretary-General U Thant. On Monday, after heading the American delegation here since July 28, 1965, he will hand over the job to his successor, George Ball.

Goldberg announced his resignation weeks ago but stayed on until he saw the U.S.—Soviet nuclear non-proliferation treaty approved by the 124-nation General Assembly and blessed by the Security Council. He served as president of the council in June.

He is returning to law practice, in which he engaged in before entering government service as labor secretary in the Kennedy Administration.

Goldberg also will write a book on American foreign policy beyond Vietnam. He has said that, after Vietnam, the United States cannot help counting as a world power but need not be a world policeman and should follow a middle course between isolationism and interventionism.

PLANS MEMOIRS

Later he will write the memoirs of a life that has taken him from boyhood in Chicago to top labor lawyer, labor secretary, Supreme Court justice and ambassador to the United Nations.

Goldberg thinks some time must pass before he publishes his memoirs because of people still around who might be oversensitive to his views of them.

Goldberg will give public lectures and teach international affairs as a visiting professor at a still unannounced university.

He will take over his already-announced post of chairman of the board of the UN Association of the United States next Tuesday.

One possibility for Goldberg is a return to the Supreme Court. His name is one of those mentioned in the speculation as to who will be named to the court now that it has been reported authoritatively that Chief Justice Earl Warren has submitted his resignation.

Goldberg often told UN correspondents his greatest source of frustration here was that he could not bring the United Nations to help settle the war in Vietnam.

BREWER'S ENIGMA

Canned Beer Price Raise Confusing

A provincial liquor board spokesman Friday denied that Prince George brewer Ben Ginter has been granted an exemption from the recent 10 cents per dozen price increase on canned beer.

Mr. Ginter said he received a letter from the board Thursday which implied he had been exempted from the increase—from $2.63 to $2.73—which was granted by the board May 6 to all major breweries.

Mr. Ginter has waged a battle against the increase and this week began refunding 10 cents to customers returning a dozen empty Tartan brewery cans.

The letter, he said, told him he was wrong to have raised his selling price to the board from $1.99 to $2.09 and that he should re-bill the board at the old price because no authorization had been received for the new one.

Mr. Ginter said he feared he would end up losing a dime per dozen on the old price because of the refund, but would continue the refund.

The spokesmen refused comment on the letter received by the brewer but said Tartan beer would sell at the same price as all other canned beer—$2.73.

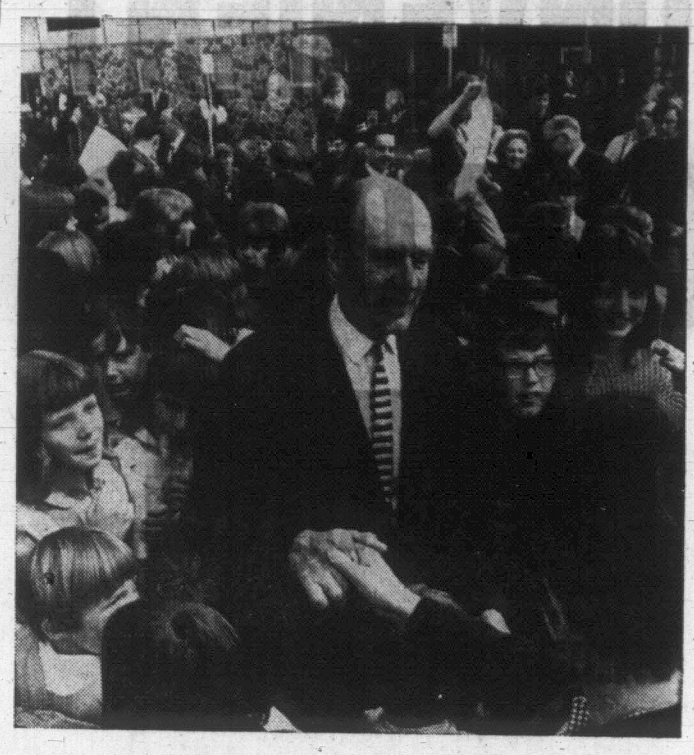
Assault Case Brings Fine

A man who grabbed an 18-year-old girl from behind and fell to the ground with her Thursday afternoon was fined $250 Friday.

Richard Sawyer, 36, of 3117 East Sooke Road, pleaded guilty to assault. Court was told he fled when the girl screamed.

Police said Sawyer had been drinking before the assault.

What we share:



I share with my family an appreciation for all the helpfulness, and the kindness and the warmth of your reception.

We share a new sense of wonder at the magnificence of Canada that we have been privileged to travel from sea to sea.

We share from these experiences a conviction that those things that divide Canadians are less than those things which would unite Canadians.

I share with you a desire to achieve a full and harmonious Confederation of all our people, none of whom are to be "put in their place", but all of whom we hope can make and find their place.

We share the need to be tolerant and respectful of each other in the achievement of this goal. Prejudice and confrontation have never solved differences.

Let us together create the kind of society the world will recognize not merely for its affluence, its comfort, or its power but for its humanity, its compassion and its decency.

We share a responsibility to elect a government that will seek these things for our country.

A government of experienced people providing firm leadership, a depth of understanding, initiative and the will to manage our economy.

I am dedicated to this country.

I am dedicated to preserving its unity through a strong Federal Government in one united Canada.

I want a nation that is self-reliant. I want a nation of such excellence that people in the world will ask when they have problems of their own: "How did Canada solve this?"

I want a nation of such opportunity that people in the rest of the world will ask: "How did Canada achieve this?"

I believe I can form a government to achieve these goals for Canada, not for a year but many years.

Not merely for ourselves but for our children.

For them we cannot fail. We will not fail.

Toronto Uses Parks For Garbage Dumps

TORONTO (CP) — The City of Toronto Friday turned 40 city parks into temporary garbage dumps for the duration of a strike by 3,700 outside workers.

Streets Commissioner Harold Atyeo announced the move to combat a strike by members of Local 43 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees that has virtually stopped garbage collection in the city.

The workers left their jobs Thursday night after refusing a 15-per-cent wage increase in their basic wage of $2.61 an hour. They are seeking a 20-per-cent increase.

Mr. Atyeo said sections of the parks will be fenced off for the garbage and the city hall will offer plastic bags to those who do not have suitable containers.

If the strike is lengthy, the city plans to ask the Toronto board of education to offer some of its school yards after elementary schools close June 28.

Meanwhile Friday, the Ontario department of labor announced it will send a mediator to weekend discussions in an effort to settle the strike. The provincial mediator will meet today and Sunday with cit yand CUPE officials.

But as discussions were set up, the city prepared for a long siege.

CAN'T BURN REFUSE

The department of health announced it was illegal to burn refuse outdoors and Toronto's five boroughs warned their incinerators and dump sites will be shut down.

The strike also affects pumping station crews, water-and-sewage-treatment plant employees, city parks workers, Toronto Island ferry operators and the men who operate dumps and incinerators.

William Overkoot, Local 43 president, promised that ambulance service would not be affected although it is provided by Local 43 members.

Ferry service to the islands in Toronto harbor has been limited to island residents only.

Riverdale Zoo will be closed to the public, but swimming pools will be open because they are operated by members of Local 79 of CUPE.

The last strike by outdoor workers was in November, 1966. It lasted five days. It was made bearable by brisk winds whistling through alleys and streets where garbage was accumulating.

Officials fear a heat wave this time could leave Toronto blanketed by the stench of rotting garbage.

Council Post To Be Filled By Esquimalt

A municipal byelection will be held in Esquimalt this fall, Mayor Ray Bryant has announced.

The election will fill the post to be vacated by Ald. Gerald Horne who is resigning to take a teaching position in Nigeria.

Mr. Horne was elected to a third two-year term on Esquimalt council last December. He has taught at Esquimalt High for fifteen years, and will teach in Nigeria for two years as part of a Canadian program to aid developing nations.

Mayor Bryant said he hopes to hold the the byelection at the same time as the regional hospital referendum.

No date has been set, but planners are hoping for a fall vote.

EVENING DIVISION

Evening Division courses lead to completion of the same programmes as offered in the Day Division. In order to complete the courses in the restricted time available, evening students must be prepared to do the non-instructional part of the course (reading, etc.) outside of classroom time and consider the classroom sessions as instructional assistance only. As a rough guide, an evening student should be prepared to devote at least two hours of home study in conjunction with each hour of class time.

Secondary School Completion classes in the Evening Division are held either twice weekly or on Saturday mornings. The courses are of approximately five-month duration. Fall Term: September through January. Spring Term: February through June. Senior Matriculation classes in the Evening Division are held either twice weekly or on Saturday mornings. Courses are of approximately ten-month duration — September through June.

ALLAN McCALLUM

A STATEMENT OF POLICY

The Institute is concerned with the student as an individual and in his development to the maximum of his potential. It endeavours to provide a student-oriented approach to continuing education at an adult level. It is designed essentially for those who have been out of school for some time and have developed a degree of maturity in which the need for an education has been clearly established together with a willingness to accept the heavy demands of acquiring it. Such students will find a stimulating academic climate here at the Institute and in many cases, may prosper academically to a degree they had not previously thought possible.

The Institute is open also to students coming directly from secondary school into Grade 13 if such students give evidence of willingness to accept mature responsibility.

The Institute reserves the right to ask students who fail to give continuing evidence of serious academic intent to withdraw from the Institute.

PROGRAMS

1. PREPARATORY

Adult students with elementary school education only will be encouraged and assisted in programs of studies designed to suit their needs, allowing them to progress to the regular programs listed below. Educational deficiency need not be a barrier to enrolment at the Institute.

Special classes in core subjects will be available. Adult students will not be required to take all courses in all grades associated with a regular school for youngsters. When a degree of proficiency has been reached in these "core subjects" (mainly English, Mathematics and Science), the adult student may move ahead into a program in which secondary school completion is the goal.

2. SECONDARY SCHOOL COMPLETION (GRADE 12)

Adult students, eighteen years of age or older, may be given permission to complete Secondary School standing (Grade 12) on a special adult program—The Adult Secondary Program. Total requirements, compared to school age programs, have been modified.

Students who have completed Grade 11, or have incomplete standing in Grade 12, will normally be required to complete the requirements of their original program.

Under Department of Education regulations, secondary school completion may be achieved on one of several programs.

(a) ADULT ACADEMIC TECHNICAL
This program fulfills the requirements of university entrance and higher levels of technology.

(b) ADULT COMMERCIAL
A high degree of commercial specialization is possible by completing this program.

(c) ADULT INDUSTRIAL*
Secondary School completion may be achieved through this program which emphasizes industrial training.

*Under Development. Enquire through counselling.

3. COMBINATION (GRADE 12 and 13)

Students with incomplete Grade 12 may enrol in a partial Grade 13 program while making good their Grade 12 deficiencies. Such programs must be individually approved.

4. SENIOR MATRICULATION (GRADE 13)

This is a Provincial Department of Education standard. However, the five subjects required may be chosen to satisfy first-year university requirements, making it possible for students to transfer into the second year of university work. A close liaison with the universities facilitates such transfer in accordance with their admission regulations.

Senior Matriculation requires completion of Grade 12 (Academic Technical) plus:

(1) English 100-101*
(2) Four subjects selected from:

(a) Biology 100* Botany 105	(g) German 120	(m) Latin 120
(b) Chemistry 112*	(h) Greek 90	(n) Mathematics 112*
(c) French 110*	(i) Greek 101	(o) Mathematics 113*
(d) French 120*	(j) History 101*	(p) Physics 101*
(e) German 90*	(k) History 102* (Cdn.)	(q) Spanish 110
(f) German 110	(l) Latin 110	(r) Spanish 120
		(s) Zoology 105

* Classes are scheduled in these subjects.

5. COMMERCIAL

The commercial department will offer job-oriented training in clerical, accountancy and secretarial areas. A flexible program will be available by which several goals may be achieved.

DIPLOMA COURSE—Consists of a year of study resulting in a high degree of employable skills.

SECONDARY SCHOOL COMPLETION (Grade 12)—This can be achieved by completion of the DIPLOMA COURSE requirements plus English 12 and Social Studies 11. This may be accomplished in one school year.

BRUSH-UP COURSES—Students may purchase blocks of instructional time at the rate of 20 hours for $10, which may be applied to instruction and practice. This will be largely individual instruction.

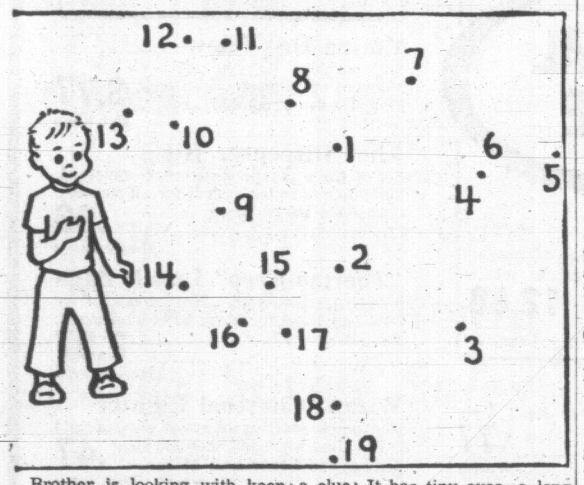
DOT PICTURE TO DRAW



Brother is looking with keen interest above at something that seems to have vanished from the scene. What is it? To find out, draw connecting lines from dot 1 to dot 2, than to 3, etc.

Should you wish to guess the missing figure's identity, here's a clue: It has tiny eyes, a long nose, large ears and a thick skin. And you wouldn't want it to step on your toe!

PLUNGE INTO THIS FEET FIRST

It's a help to have your foot in your mouth, so to speak, in seeking out answers to this test. It's about feet.

1. What's alive and has only one foot?
2. What has 50 feet, but can't walk?
3. What has four legs and flies in the air?
4. What has four legs but only one foot?
5. What has a foot on each end and one in the middle?
6. What's bought by the yard and worn out by the foot?

Answers: 1. a leg; 2. a clothesline; 3. two birds; 4. a bed; 5. a yardstick; 6. a carpet.

KEEP THIS IN MIND

"Attention, my friends," said the professor. "I am thinking of a number. I add three, divide by two, add eight, multiply by two, subtract two, and thus arrive at twice the number I thought of originally."

What is the number the professor thought of originally?

See if you can work this out in your head, without using pencil and paper.

Answer: The number thought of originally was 17.

On-third of 60 equal to 15? Cra-zee! But that's how they figure on the planet Bongo. If you were a student in the Bongolian math class above, how would you answer the second computation? That is to say, if one-third of 60 equals 15, how much is one-sixteenth of 48?

Hint: The answer is a whole number that may be easily and quickly derived.

No fair peeking at explanation below.

Solution: In the unique system of reckoning employed on Bongo, the value of a number appears to be three-fourth that which we consider normal (one-third of 60 is normally 20, of course). Three-fourths the value of one-sixth of forty-eight then, would be six.

Answer: The item cost 10 dollars and 45 cents, including 50 cents sales tax. The item was priced at $9.95 at the purchase site; $10 locally.

HOW MANY IN THE PARTY?

A party of inter-related persons composed of a mother, father, uncle, aunt, two cousins, sister, brother, niece and nephew arrived in a popular resort town in one car and had no difficulty getting hotel accommodations, because the number of persons in the group wasn't as large as it seems. How few could comprise such a party?

Answer: Four. They were a man, woman, boy and girl. The man and the woman were brother and sister. One had a son and the other a daughter. They were also uncle and aunt while the boy and girl were nephew, niece and cousins.

QUICK AT GRASPING?

Extend one arm forward. Place a sugar cube or coin atop the back of the hand. Now, dropping the hand suddenly, attempt to bring it back and forward so that you can grasp the sugar cube or coin before it drops to the floor. Next, try it with two cubes or coins. Increase the number of objects after each successful try. Practice makes perfect, natch. When you really get good, try moving the object or objects farther back on the wrist.

GOOD WORKER, BUT CARELESS

"That new man I've taken on," said the stopwatch plant manger, "is a fast worker but he's careless. The quality of his work is 25 per cent lower than anybody else's; but his output is 30 per cent higher. I don't know whether to give him an increase or fire him." Which course would you advise the plant manager to follow?

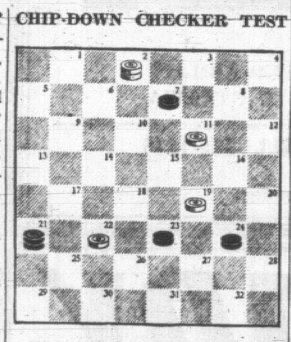
Answer: While each of the other men produces 100 articles saleable at (say) $100 each, making a total of $10,000 the new man produces 130 articles each worth $78, a total of only $9,750. But there are other ways to look at it.

WHAT SAY TO THIS?

How time flies, mused Grandpa. Why, in three years this hearing aid will be three times as old as it was three years ago. How old is Grandpa's hearing aid now?

Answer: It's six years old.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



White checkers, moving up the board, to move first and win in four turns, is the challenge here. Can you meet it?

Solution: White 19-15, Black 7-16, White 22-17, Black 21-14, White 15-10, Black 14-7, White 2-11-20-27-18.

IRON OUT HIS PROBLEM?

An old story has it that a small town hardware merchant undertook to order from the city for a neighborhood tailor, two useful implements. "Send me two tailor's geese," he wrote. That, he thought, was plainly wrong, and he tore up the order. "Send me two gooses for a tailor," was his next attempt. But he thought better of this, too, and began again. The third time he got it right without a doubt. How did he phrase it?

Answer: "Send me one tailor's goose. Yours, etc. PS—Please send me another just like it."

NAUTICAL, BUT NICE

When yon fine vessel on the ocean sails,
Unto my FIRST the watchful tar's attending;
And yet my SECOND oft attends his thoughts,
When at my WHOLE his powerful form is bending.

In a rebus, "First," "second" and "whole" refer, of course, to syllables and the whole of the concealed word.

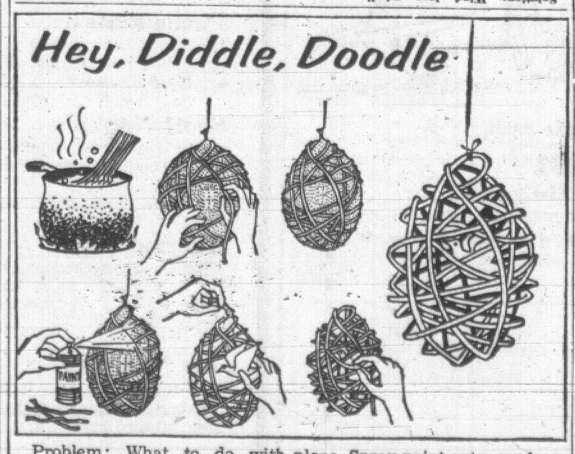
Hey, Diddle, Doodle



Problem: What to do with spaghetti or noodle leftovers? One suggestion within the realm of possibility: Use it to make a bird cage. Projection: Inflate a good-size balloon. Gird balloon with moistened noodles or spaghetti (unsauced). Leave small opening for insertion of artificial bird. Dry in a warm place. Spray-paint outer surface, plus two or three short noodle strands. When thoroughly dry, deflate and remove balloon (gently). Insert bird (use ingenuity to inprovise perch). Cement short noddles over entryway. That's really using the old noodle!

Views Differ On Vietnam Talk Headway

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

PARIS (AP) — The dispute between the United States and North Vietnam over whether they are making progress in the Vietnam peace talks springs from their basic conflict of purposes at this stage of the negotiations.

North Vietnam is still trying to manoeuvre President Johnson into granting a new concession by putting an end to all attacks on North Vietnamese territory.

The United States is trying to manoeuvre Hanoi into making a concession of its own by curtailing infiltration of troops into South Vietnam.

Public opinion all over the world is regarded by each side as a weapon to be used against the other in this struggle.

Hanoi, speaking through Ambassador Xuan Thuy and the rest of its negotiating team, obviously regards pessimism as its most effective public opinion lever.

The theme which Thuy and his spokesmen have been sounding for weeks is that the talks are making no progress because the United States refuses to stop attacking North Vietnam. The way to move toward peace, they argue, is to end the attacks.

SEE SLIGHT PROGRESS

On the other hand, U.S. officials have emphasized every indication of movement in the discussions. Their theme has been that despite the deadlock slight progress has been made in laying the groundwork for more serious future peace negotiations.

Both assessments are based on what has been happening in Paris since the meetings started May 13. There has been much talk but no progress on the question of how to de-escalate the war; there has been some progress in U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman's effort to develop a cordial, informal relationship with Thuy.

Harriman believes this will enable them in coming months to explore secretly the issues of a compromise peace.

The difference in interpretation of these two lines of development erupted into open disagreement Friday.

U.S. defence Secretary Clark M. Clifford had said Thursday there were "bits and straws" which indicated "some movement" at Paris. State Secretary Dean Rusk told reporters in Washington he agreed with Clifford. Harriman, leaving for Washington Friday, said "some progress is being made by bits and straws."

North Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le told a news conference in Paris, however, that the talks are "marking time." He said the "absence of progress" was due to the refusal of the United States to end all attacks on North Vietnam so that other subjects could be discussed here.

FORMER mayor of Birmingham, Alabama, lawyer Arthur J. Hanes Sr. said in London he will defend James Earl Ray, accused assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Journalist Barred

BERLIN (Reuters) — East Germany has barred Bernt Konrad, head of the West Berlin office of the independent daily Die Welt, from travelling through its territory to the West, a spokesman for the newspaper said. A senior East German police officer offered no explanation but granted a visa to Konrad's wife, the spokesman said.

Coretta King Launches Conscience Campaign

By JUDITH MARTIN

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. will announce on Tuesday the formation of her own national organization.

Coretta King's "campaign of conscience" will be a womanpower movement working for social justice and against the Vietnam war. She is inviting leaders of women's peace groups, religious organizations, welfare agencies and clubs to a planning conference in September.

Mrs. King stayed in Washington a day before and a day after Wednesday's solidarity day march — of which she was vice-chairman — to consult women who will be working with her staff on the preliminary plans.

Objectives of the "campaign of conscience" are the same as those voiced by the late Dr. King as the head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. But Mrs. King is now turning to women to carry them out.

CORETTA KING
... women's turn

Those close to her have been trying to keep the new plans secret, partly so that they could be worked out and partly to discourage rumors that they grew from a dissatisfaction with new leaders of the poor people's campaign. But Mrs. King has been doing a great deal of public speaking about womanpower.

In her solidarity day speech, she said, "There is need for a creative approach to the critical problems which we face in our nation and in the world. I believe firmly that the women of our country have been called at this hour to furnish the kind of forthright, honest, dedicated and creative leadership necessary to bring about positive solutions to the difficult problems we face."

THREE EVILS

She urged women to fight "the three evils of racism, poverty and injustice," and to do so non-violently, "for the means must be in keeping with the ends."

The women's Strike for Peace and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, in which Mrs. King has participated for many years, are doing much of the work. So is the National Welfare Rights Organization, which planned the Mother's Day march that Mrs. King led here in May.

Dagmar Wilson of WSP, Judy McFadden of Wilpfand Minnie Stein, who worked on the Mother's Day march and who is on the Methodist women's division of the board of missions at the National Council of Churches, are among the chief planners of the movement.

Mrs. King has also asked many of the well known women who flocked around her after the assassination to lend their support.

PAGE DIEF'S TRAIN

Beg Pardon! Your Beard Is Showing This Morning

OTTAWA (CP) — One morning in Halifax during the election campaign the rain was coming down in sheets.

A thoughtful Liberal organizer travelling with Prime Minister Trudeau arranged the purchase of umbrellas for the press corps. They were women's umbrellas, but no matter.

They did more than keep the rain off. Fast sword-play in the Trudeau mob scene kept teenyboppers at bay.

At Yarmouth that night, the ramp of Mr. Trudeau's chartered Air Canada DC-9 jet was pulled up, the door slammed and the plane taxied off for the runway.

A late filing reporter charged out of the terminal, waving his umbrella like a Londoner hailing a taxi in Trafalgar Square. The plane wheeled around on the tarmac, the door opened, the ramp went down and the puffing reporter clambered aboard.

"Made it," he gasped, holding his umbrella aloft like a Churchill cigar. "This is the 6:12 from Paddington."

Was it that time Mr. Trudeau sat hunched in his seat, twirling and contemplating a rose in his hand as he unwound from a arduous day?

Events tend to blur so that it is difficult to recall whether they happened while travelling with Mr. Trudeau or in Conservative Leader Stanfield's slower plane.

REPORTERS LOOK BACK

In any event, the general reaction among veteran reporters has been: "Bring back the Diefenbaker train."

It was possible, on the train, to skip an early-morning shave, dash outside during Mr. Diefenbaker's first stop to take notes, then nip back to bed for a catnap before the next stop.

An early-morning shave skipped with Mr. Trudeau or Mr. Stanfield is a shave skipped for the entire day.

The same with eating. And bathroom-going.

The trouble with planes is that so much time is consumed paying the hotel bill, taking the press bus to the airport, getting aboard.

Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Stanfield each hit up to six or seven places a day, some of them hundreds of miles—or provinces—apart.

When their regular campaign planes cannot get into certain airports because of short runways, they take smaller planes or helicopters. This tends, however, to remove at least one campaign evil—the 90 miles-an-hour motorcade with the driver turning around to intone for his passengers the beauties of the riding and of the local candidate.

BOTH WERE FIT

Mr. Stafield one day flew in his charter DC-7C from Calgary to Quesnel, B.C., to Kamloops, to Kelowna and back to Ottawa, arriving the next morning. Mr. Trudeau one Sunday made five short hops by light plane and helicopter to Newfoundland outports, then flew from Gander to Montreal, and to Winnipeg and to Penticton, B.C. Neither appeared exhausted. Which could not be said for their flying companions.

NDP Leader Douglas travels on scheduled airline flights, which means some odd hours to meet campaign commitments.

In Halifax, for instance, where he was up until near midnight, he had to rise at 4:30 a.m. to get to the airport 25 miles away for a 6 a.m. flight to Newfoundland.

Nicholson Successor To Pearkes?

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A successor to Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will be chosen shortly after the June 25 election if the Liberals are returned to power.

Mr. Pearkes' extended term of service comes to a close at the end of next week and former labor minister John R. Nicholson has been widely rumored to succeed him.

If the Liberals win the election they would be in a position to make the appointment next week, although Mr. Pearkes might be asked to stay on for another month until things settle down in Ottawa.

Should the Conservatives be elected Mr. Pearkes would undoubtedly be requested to continue until the new government had sufficient time to make its choice.

Court Imposes Heavy Penalty

A man was fined a total of $500 Friday as a result of an accident on Esquimalt Road June 18.

He was fined $200 for leaving the scene and $300 for public mischief.

Films To Be Shown

Three films loaned by Victoria Public Library — Klee Wyck, Octopus Hunt and Ski — will be shown to Saanich Silver Threads at their headquarters, Lurline and Harriet Road, Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Members and friends are invited to a card party Wednesday at 2 p.m. Cards will also be played Friday at 2 p.m.

COASTGUARD PICK-UP

Queer Craft Ends Voyage

SAD FAREWELL and a happy re-union marked the end of Hugo Vihlean's trans-Atlantic voyage in a "six by six" bath-tub like sailboat. Hugo is shown waving farewell to his April Fool after being picked up in the Gulf Stream by a U.S. Coastguard launch near Fort Lauderdale, Fla. His wife and son were aboard the launch which took the April Fool in tow. The re-union was a happy one.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Hugo Vihlen's one-man fight against the fury of 4,700 miles of Atlantic ended off the coast of Florida Friday with his tiny sailboat April Fool in the frustrating clutches of the Gulf Stream.

Battered by storm, thrice aground and followed by whales, Vihlen made the first 4,600-odd miles from Casablanca to Miami by himself in the bathtub-like craft. It took him 85 days.

Then, betrayed by westerly winds and the swift Gulf Stream current, he reluctantly accepted a 25-mile ride on a fishing boat to a hero's welcome at Fort Lauderdale.

"I'm sick that I didn't get to finish it," he said. "The west wind held me off shore and the stream pushed me north. It was the very worst thing that could have happened."

To his chagrin, the U.S. Coast Guard listed him as a "search and rescue case."

Vihlen said: "The coast guard confiscated my boat. I was ready to sail on to South Carolina — or wherever the current took me."

The April Fool was lashed to a U.S. Coast Guard cutter. The odd-looking craft is five feet, 11 inches in length and five feet in beam. It was rigged so that Vihlen could set the two sails and rudder, allowing the boat to maintain course by itself.

Campbell Ridicules Grit On Pollution Statement

DAN CAMPBELL
. . . raps candidate

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Friday criticized Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate David Anderson for giving a "false" impression of federal money available for pollution control.

The minister said Mr. Anderson has been guilty of the same tactic used by former provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault and other federal Liberal candidates—raising expectations of "a bucket of gold at the end of the federal rainbow."

"It simply isn't there," he said.

Mr. Anderson was reported to have said federal anti-pollution money is not even being applied for by provinces in an address at View Royal Anglican Church Hall Thursday night.

The minister said B.C. not only applied for but used up all of its allotted money three months after it was made available.

FALSIFICATION?

He said Liberal candidates "bouncing around the country" have been painting the picture of federal money available "in deliberate terms of falsification" by suggesting that there was an endless supply of money available.

British Columbia in fact was allotted only $35,000,000 of a $400,000,000 fund and did not have access to a larger share. The shares were decided on a population basis, the minister said.

Mr. Campbell said the total cost of anti-pollution measures is a heavy burden on municipalities because of the "distorted" state of the money market and the fact that cost-shared programs cover only a small percentage of sewerage programs.

The cost of lateral sewage lines might be 10 times that of main trunk lines on which federal help is available, he said, as an example.

The minister said about 95 per cent of B. C.'s allotment was used on sewer and water systems and repeated earlier claims that in general pollution problems are far less serious here than in other parts of the country.

He said B.C. is the first province to adopt a total basin pollution control approach as is being done in the Okanagan.

Asked if his statement meant he was acknowledging a provincial Socred-federal Tory alliance, Mr. Campbell said his only concern was that the regional districts faced with major sewerage works would not be misled into thinking there is a "bucket of gold" in Ottawa.

He said he was tired with all the Liberal "yik-yakking" about federal pollution control money and added he was "disgusted" that the "bright new candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich" would adopt the same tactics as "the old Senate-bound Liberal leader."

Mr. Anderson said today he is "delighted" the municipal affairs minister admitted Ottawa is making pollution control money available to the province.

"It is the first time anyone in the provincial government has been willing to do so."

But, he added, Mr. Campbell does not appear to understand completely the terms on which the money is offered.

The candidate said he would like to know why Ontario has received 60 per cent of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. money available to the provinces for pollution control programs.

"And I'd like to know why the federal government offer to carry out a pollution study in this province at federal expense has not been taken up."

Mr. Anderson said Mr. Campbell may be correct in saying the B.C. pollution problem is not as serious as that in other provinces, "but this is no reason for him to imply that the people of this province, and my riding in particular, can ignore the problem."

Esquimalt-Saanich Progressive Conservative candidate George Chatterton today said if Mr. Anderson wants the "real information" on federal money available for local anti-pollution and housing schemes, he should ask the municipalities themselves.

Mr. Chatterton said he recently made a personal check of Ottawa authorities to see if federal funds were available to assist the Saanich municipalities plans to clean up the Colquitz Creek water system.

He found there were "no federal funds available to assist this municipality . . . not even to help prepare an engineering study."

Page Madison Ave.: Capitalistic Media Aids Soviet Sales

By PETER BUCKLEY

Vechernaya Moskva (Evening Moscow) the official daily of the capital's Communist Party and city government, has launched an illustrated weekly supplement containing nothing but advertisements — everything from straight promotional stuff to want ads.

Advertising was long held in contempt in the Soviet Union — as a "means of swindling the people and passing off goods that are often useless or of doubtful quality."

WORDING SOLEMN

The ads mostly have a solemn, no-nonsense tone — what ad men call "tombstone" prose. Obviously, the suspicion of advertising as a devious capitalist trick dies hard.

For example: "The Nutrition Institute of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Medical Sciences recommends including sunflower oil in the daily diet of children and adults, as well as in special diets prescribed for those suffering from arteriosclerosis, hypertension, obesity and kidney disease. Sunflower oil is on sale at any food store."

DRY CLEANING ADS

The Chaika Seagull Factories say they handle "any numbers of any kind of clothing, carpets, fabrics, hats, furs natural and synthetic, etc." Cleaning takes 10 days, it explains, but urgent orders can be handled in 48 hours.

As a passing note — something the ad doesn't mention — customers must remove all buttons and buckles from their clothing before leaving it to be cleaned. Pressing is not included in the job.

Bribery Convictions

NEW YORK (AP) — A reputed Mafia bigwig and two other men linked with former New York City water commissioner James L. Marcus in a $40,000 bribery case have been found guilty of conspiracy by a federal jury. A fourth defendant was acquitted. Marcus, 37, pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge June 3.

Vietnam Outlasts Independence War

SAIGON (CP) — The Vietnam war becomes the longest war in American history today with thousands of U.S. troops set up in new positions to protect South Vietnam's capital.

At midnight in Saigon the war will be six years, six months and one day old, measured from the death Dec. 22, 1961, of Specialist James Thomas Davis of Livingston, Tenn., the first of more than 25,000 Americans who have been killed in Vietnam.

The longest war involving American fighting men had been the War of Independence — six years and six months, from the April 19, 1775, skirmish at Lexington, Mass., to the Oct. 19, 1781, surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown.

The U.S. has withdrawn thousands of Americans from outlying provinces, military sources said today, in an effort to block key Communist infiltration routes and cut down Viet Cong shellings that have terrorized Saigon's 3,000,000 people.

Nine shells landed on Saigon's southeastern tip today, with one hitting a British merchant ship, and indications were that the rounds came from U.S. or South Vietnamese artillery.

The round which hit the 10,892-ton London Statesman on the Saigon River caused some damage to the main cargo lifting gear and a civilian in a nearby junk was reported killed by flying shrapnel.

A U.S. spokesman said four other rounds landed in the river, three hit in a swamp and a ninth round was a dud. It was identified as being from a 105-millimetre howitzer, which only the Americans and the South Vietnamese are known to have in the Saigon area.

The U.S. indicated the shells were rounds which fell short of intended Viet Cong targets and said it is investigating.

Thirty-three South Vietnamese civilians were killed and six others were wounded today when a bus hit a Viet Cong mine on National Highway 1, Vietnamese military headquarters reported.

The highway runs north-south along South Vietnam's east coast. The explosion took place north by Tuy Hoa, 240 miles northeast of Saigon.

'MANY DON'T KNOW WHAT IT MEANS'

HAMILTON (CP) — Norm Braden is long-haired, wealthy and 22, and he's running for Parliament to reform Canada's sex laws.

An independent Liberal candidate in Halton-Wentworth, Mr. Braden says he wants to break open middle-class morality by legalizing fornication, homosexuality, abortion and prostitution.

He advocates free birth control pills for all women, including single girls of 15.

The statement was contained in three mimeographed sheets setting out Mr. Braden's program, and it caused some raised eyebrows in suburban Waterdown where he lives.

"That part about fornication — people see that and just curl up," he says. "I think a lot of people don't know what it means and they visualize some sort of orgy.

"It's one of those words you get in the back of a little 60-cent paperback which nobody knows what it means. If I had said sexual intercourse that would have been all right, but not fornication."

Although he says his platform is unchanged, Mr. Braden has removed "seedy language" and replaced it with all-inclusive euphemisms for a leaflet which will be mailed to the riding's 29,000 homes.

He bases his campaign on opposition to a situation in which he says the poor and the rich are unequal. Wealthy people can buy safe abortions while poorer women die in kitchen-table operations.

In Parliament, he would support the Liberal program and represent poor people who have no political power.

A political science student at Amherst College in Massachusetts until last month, Mr. Braden says he himself has enough money that he doesn't have to work for a living.

"I have nothing to lose," he says. "I'm just taking advantage of the fact that the money I'm spending I didn't have to earn."

Only Unicorn Absent From Circus Parade

The Big Top will come to Esquimalt July 1 and 2 as Carson and Barnes present what is billed as the second largest circus under canvas in North America.

Sponsored by the Esquimalt Lions Club, the circus is making its 68th annual tour of the United States and Canada.

Outside the tent will be Carson and Barnes' travelling zoo including the largest hippopotamus in captivity and Joske the elephant, described as the largest in North America.

Ticket prices for the show are $1 for children and $2 for adults. The public is invited, at no charge, to visit the circus grounds and tour the zoo.

Kirby Grant, star of the television series Sky King, is the show's feature star and will appear in all performances.

MILLION DOLLAR LOSS

Nerve Gas Damage Suit Filed

WASHINGTON (WP) — The army said Friday the owner of a Utah ranch on which 6,249 sheep died after an army nerve gas test last March filed a claim for $998,279.81 in damages.

The claim was presented to the U.S. Army claims service by the Anschutz Land an Livestock Co. of Denver, and included a claim of $375,000 for the loss of the sheep and their wool, as well as a claim of over $623,000 for damage to the ranch land.

Some 500 other sheep owned by two other ranchers were killed after the nerve gas test at Utah's Dugway proving ground. These sheep herders have yet to file a claim, the army said.

Rubber Boat Drift Ends With Rescue

PLYMOUTH, England (Reuters) — A Norwegian ship Thursday night rescued lone French yachtsman Joan de Kat, adrift in the Atlantic in a dinghy after his yacht foundered.

A message from the 10,000-ton bulk carrier Jagona said de Kat was in good health.

The plane dropped another dinghy and canisters containing food and water. De Kat was seen to climb from his own dinghy into the new one and retrieve the canisters.

Tax Bill Awaits LBJ Pen

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is expected to sign within a few days the 10-percent income tax surcharge bill and U.S. taxpayers should find pay cheques smaller before the end of July.

The first federal income tax increase in 17 years, coupled with a $6,000,000,000 cut in federal spending, whipped through the Senate Friday by a surprisingly large margin, although passage had been expected.

Withholding rates will be raised 10 per cent for individuals in the first pay period 15 days after the measure is signed.

The surcharge is retroactive to April 1 for individuals, Jan. 1 for corporations. It expires June 30, 1969, unless extended.

APPOINTED executive director of the Educational Research Institute of B.C. is Vancouver industrial psychologist Conrad Lamond. Financed mainly by the province's school boards, the two-year-old institute supports research mostly on elementary and secondary education. A lecturer in industrial psychology at Vancouver City College, Mr. Lamond is also president of the B.C. division of the Association for Adult Education.

Pair Accused Of Financing Haiti Revolt

By JOHN VINOCUR

PORT AU PRINCE, HAITI (AP) — An elderly British millionaire joined his son in custody Thursday night, and both were charged with financing an unsuccessful attempt to invade Haiti and overthrow President Francois Duvalier.

Oswald Brandt, 76, told a military tribunal he had nothing to do with the attempted revolt.

Born in Jamaica of British parents, the elder Brandt is Jamaican consul in Haiti. He is said to have made a fortune of $20,000,000 in textiles, sugar and vegetable oils. He and his son have holdings throughout the Caribbean and in Bermuda and the Bahamas.

Brandt's son Clifford, 44, was arrested earlier Thursday and accused of financing the exiles who landed May 20.

The government claimed he gave $150,000 to Haitian exiles in Montreal and New York.

The younger Brandt, who is Jamaica's vice-consul here, also denied the charge. He was confined in a military prison adjoining Duvalier's palace.

Ten men are on trial for participating in the invasion. The government claims its forces killed most of the rest of the invaders, variously reported to number between 10 and 40.

The prosecutor, Lt.-Col. Franck Romain, told the court two unidentified Americans took part in the raid but escaped.

The 10 accused plotters had told the court Clifford Brandt gave them money, arms and a plane. They pleaded guilty to various charges including murder and appealed for leniency.

Clifford Brandt said he was in Montreal at the time of the invasion visiting his wife and five children, who live there. In Montreal, Mrs. Brandt told a reporter her husband "had nothing to do with any invasion."

"I'm very worried about the safety of my husband and children," she said.

TIME YANKED IN BRITAIN

LONDON (Reuters) — This week's edition of Time magazine has been withdrawn from sale in Britain on legal advice, a spokesman for its publishers said today.

The magazine contained an article on James Earl Ray, now in custody here, who is being sought by the U.S. in connection with the assassination April 3 of Rev. Martin Luther King.

Red Feather 1968 Goal Up 9 Per Cent

In an announcement Friday, the Community Chest board of directors said the canvass of firms and executives carried out by the appeal's corporations division will begin in early July although the major effort will not take place until September and October.

R. B. Hutchison, general campaign chairman, said he expects more than 3,000 volunteers will carry out this year's canvass.

Membership in the campaign committee's business divisions now is complete, he said, and the residential division's roll is being filled.

BUDGETS STUDIED

The budget committee has finished six weeks of meetings with the member agencies to determine their financial needs for the year.

Funds raised by the appeal amount to about one-third of the cost of services by the agencies. The remaining two-thirds comes from government, membership dues, fees and special bequests.

Increases this year are needed to cover inflationary trends and to provide funds for proposed new services and expansion of existing programs, the announcement says.

Oil Company Game Rigging Charges Made

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a congressional investigating subcommittee says that if oil companies and firms producing giveaway games cannot rebut testimony of rigging and pressure, there's a possibility congress will outlaw the games.

Representative John D. Dingell (Dem. Mich.) said the oil companies and giveaway firms will be given an opportunity as soon as possible to answer testimony about rigging given Thursday before his House of Representatives small business subcommittee.

The amounts ranged from six cents to $1.15.

Mrs. Trostle, vice-president of the Maryland Association of Petroleum Retailers, passed the cards to Al Collins, board chairman of the group, who rubbed off spots to reveal the winners. She also deliberately picked losing cards.

Maryland has enacted as law, which goes into effect July 1, banning games of chance in service stations there.

PICK WINNING AREAS

Collins, whose group backed the law, said other winning game cards also can be extracted the same way. He also said oil companies have given large winning cards to locations of their choice.

Lewis A. Haskell Jr., president of the Virginia Gasoline Retailers Association, Inc., testified that a large number of Sun Oil Co. dealers in northern Virginia stopped issuance of Sunny Dollars cards when a second phase of that game came along last June.

"The company immediately took steps to pressure individual dealers into having the Sunny Dollar program reinstated," he said.

"One dealer was told his location would not be rehabilitated as promised if he did not go along with the program."

Carl A. Pescosolido Jr., Haverhill, Mass., president of the Valley Oil Co., told of cases where his firm was given "seeded" boxes of coupons in a game sponsored by Cities Service Oil Co. in 1966 after complaints from their customers about few winners.

After this distribution, he said, the winners nearly quadrupled.

Indians End Pilot Course For Drivers

Officials of the B.C. motor vehicle branch decided to give the eight-hour defensive driving course following discussions between administrative officer Arthur Sharpe, Tsarlip Chief Philip Paul and Rod MacGinnis, a director of the B.C. Indian advisory committee.

Mr. Sharpe handed out certificates to the graduates and told them 80 per cent of B.C.'s drivers have no formal training.

The success of the course, offered for the first time, he said, would mean more driver trainng for other Indians.

Mr. MacGinnis said the success of the course showed Indians are interested in community programs even though they are not usually included.

'Worse Than Murder'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Michael Kushman, 52, of Vancouver, was sentenced Friday to 15 years in prison for trafficking in heroin, described by the judge as "a crime worse than murder."

Diphtheria Mounts

VANCOUVER (CP) — A second case of diphtheria was reported Friday in a Vancouver elementary school. The first was a 10-year-old boy and the second a younger one. They are the third and fourth cases in the city this year. A woman died of the disease in her apartment.

POLICE CLOSED in on a group of separatists who tangled with some NDP supporters after the socialists refused to join in the separatist chants. Prime Minister Trudeau was making an east-end rally address Friday night in the Montreal riding of Hochelaga when the scuffle broke out. Police carted off the small group before further trouble erupted. (CP Wirephoto).

Scuffle Erupts At Trudeau Rally

Five Dragged Away

MONTREAL (CP) — Police dragged five separatist demonstrators into a paddywagon at a Friday election campaign rally addressed by Prime Minister Trudeau.

At this point they moved in swiftly, placed four men and a woman into the paddywagon and drove off with them.

Other separatists stayed to boo Mr. Trudeau, who had little trouble before and after the arrests in verbally handling the demonstrators.

Most of the crowd of 1,000 were on the Liberal leader's side, applauding his jibes at the heckling separatists who chanted slogans such as "Trudeau is a traitor."

Police said the scuffle arose when separatists tried to get some NDP supporters to join in the anti-Trudeau chants. The NDP people refused and the shoving started.

Mr. Trudeau, in good form after drawing a crowd of 25,000 earlier in a downtown Montreal square, said the separatists have a right to their ideas about Quebec independence. But they did not have a right to hinder other French-Canadians who want to have a say in what goes in all of Canada.

SPEAKS FOR FRIEND

The rally was outside a church in Hochelaga riding, where the Liberal candidate is Gerard Pelletier, minister without portfolio in the Trudeau cabinet, and a longtime friend and colleague of the prime minister.

Mr. Trudeau later re-opened his attack on Quebec separatists at Joliette, north of Montreal. He told another crowd of 1,000 at a street rally there that people who reject national unity tend to resort to violence.

They cannot trust to reason to sell their ideas, he said. His Jo-

'Spy' Ship Not Ours Says U.S.

TOKYO (Reuters) — North Korea said today it sank a "spy ship of U.S. imperialist aggression troops" near the port of Boopo on the western coast of the Korean Peninsula.

But U.S. navy and defence department officials in Tokyo and Washington denied that any American ship was sunk.

American officials said it was possible a South Korean vessel might be involved.

The report by the official North Korean Central news agency followed a Seoul report that South Korean troops killed seven North Korean troops in the western end of the demilitarized zone Saturday.

The North Korean report said patrol boats opened counter-fire against a spy ship dispatched by a mothership near Yunpyung Island while it was engaged in "brigandish provocative acts."

Patrol boats sank the "enemy spy ship" at about 1 a.m. local time off the port of Boopo (sometimes spelled Pukpo). "The spy group aboard the ship was sent to the bottom of the sea," the news agency said.

NO NATIONALITY

The broadcast did not give the nationality of the vessel or any other details. North Korea often includes both American and South Korean forces in the term "U.S. imperialist aggression troops."

The South Korean defence ministry in Seoul said it had no information to substantiate the North Korean claim.

A spokesman for the U.S. Air Force in Japan said the U.S. 314th Air Force Division at Osan, South Korea, reported receiving a distress signal from a South Korean fishing vessel.

The distress signal was received more than 11 hours after the time the "spy ship" was said to have been sunk.

The U.S. Navy's intelligence vessel Pueblo with an 83-man crew on board was captured Jan. 23 by North Koreans off Wonsan and accused of intruding into North Korean territorial waters.

One crew member was killed and release of the survivors is still being negotiated between U.S. and North Korean representatives at the Korean truce village of Panmunjom.

Riot Kills Five

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) —Five persons were reported killed and 150 wounded as students and police battled in Brazil's largest city Friday night, in clouds of tear gas, near the U.S. embassy.

WHITHER THE B.C. BALLOTS?

Crystal Balls Are Murky

By PETE LOUDON

Even British Columbia's professional election watchers are baffled this time.

Or there's going to be a result pattern remarkably similar to that of 1965.

No in-betweens. that's the prediction of people in "smoke-filled rooms", polled in. Vancouver and Victoria by the Times today.

But the forecast prior to a federal election has never been so foggy. And the reason given is the public response to the personality of one man — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

If this can be discounted as a passing phenomenon, politicians, campaign officials and the growing army of public relations experts in the province see the breakdown this way:

	1968	1965
Liberals	10	7
NDP	10	9
PC	2	3
SC	1	3

But if the Trudeau excitement is real and not a vivid mirage, these estimates can be knocked into the proverbial cocked hat. It would be easier to predict the weather next St. Swithin's Day.

Those polled could agree on only 11 "safe" seats in the province.

The areas of contention remaining are Burnaby-Richmond where Robert Prittie (NDP), the incumbent, is hotly challenged by Liberal Tom Good; Coast Chilcotin, where it's a toss-up between Liberal Paul St. Pierre and Hartley Dent, NDP; Fraser Valley East where Socred incumbent A. B. Patterson may be in trouble; Fraser Valley West where Mark Rose NDP may have an edge; Kamloops-Cariboo where former Conservative Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton is running hard; Kootenay West where Randolph Harding, former B.C. MLA is having his first federal contest; New Westminster where Clive Lytle (NDP) is favored; Okanagan-Boundary where David Pugh (PC), incumbent, is struggling; Okanagan-Kootenay where Howard Johnson (SC) is the incumbent; Prince George-Peace River where it's anyone's

Liberals Hold Lead in Poll

The final Gallup poll before Tuesday's general election shows the Liberals maintaining their solid lead over the Conservatives.

According to the survey, if the election were held today this is how Canadians would vote:

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
47%	29%	18%	6%

The Gallup Affiliates point out that the figures are a report on their findings in the national survey and are not their prediction on the outcome of the election.

On the other hand, their survey has been rather close to the actual result in recent elections. In 1962 and 1963 they were within two percentage points of the result, well within their three percent margin of error.

They missed in 1965 when they were four percentage points away from the actual result.

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
46%	29%	10%	10%

In May after the Liberal leadership convention the poll result was:

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
50%	29%	16%	5%

By contrast after the Conservative convention in October, 1967, the poll showed:

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
34%	43%	17%	6%

The popular vote in the 1965 general election was:

Lib.	Cons.	NDP	Other
40%	33%	18%	9%

Other includes Creditistes, Social Credit and Independent candidates.

In the national survey 11 percent of those interviewed said they were still undecided on how they would vote on Tuesday.

Personality Impact Tells

Tuesday's election will be decided by the people's reactions to Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Robert Stanfield, columnist Peter Newman says in a detailed analysis of the two leaders on Page 5 today.

"What has separated the Liberals from the Conservatives in this election are the personalities and very different styles of their leaders," Mr. Newman writes.

"This is hardly the best criterion for choosing a government but it is the one which Canadian voters seem to want to impose.

"All through this campaign they have turned out to watch the party leaders, not so much to hear them discuss issues as to take their measure both as men and politicians."

Nurses Attain Tentative Pact

Tentative agreement was reached late Friday in the dispute over salaries between more than 4,000 registered nurses and 61 hospitals in British Columbia.

While no details were disclosed, it is reliably understood that the recommended settlement is well below the more than 50 per cent salary increases sought by the nurses but slightly above the 21.8 per cent and 27.4 per cent raises in two steps which they previously rejected.

The terms of settlement represent a modification of the conciliation board award which the hospitals accepted and the nurses turned down by an 81 per cent margin.

Eight days ago the nurses voted 95 per cent in favor of striking 59 of the 61 hospitals involved in the dispute.

Nurses now are paid between $390 and $466 a month. They turned down a scale of between $475 and $593.75 effective July 1. They were seeking between $600 and $841 as well as a 37½-hour work week (instead of 40 hours) and portability of salary increments between hospitals.

No comment on the tentative settlement was made by either the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. or the B.C. Hospitals Association under a mutual secrecy agreement.

But bargaining committees for both sides will recommend acceptance of the agreement to their members. The decisions are expected sometime next week.

The accord was reached after all-day talks in Vancouver Friday under the guidance of labor department conciliator Jack Sherlock of Victoria, appointed to the dispute by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

Bomb Rocks Liberal HQ

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — A small bomb exploded today in the business district at the time Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene was due to arrive in a motor cavalcade.

Police Chief J. J. Paquette said the bomb apparently was thrown from the third floor of a Main Street hotel next to the Liberal campaign headquarters. There were no injuries.

It exploded on the trunk of a passing car, hurling pieces from the bomb up to 70 feet away, he said.

Two suspects who registered at the hotel were being questioned by RCMP officers. They were not identified, but listed their home town as Woodstock, Ont.

The explosion, heard throughout the business area of this town 25 miles west of Kingston, apparently was caused by a high-explosive powder device rather than a gasoline bomb, police said.

'Goldwater' Jab Aimed at PM

TORONTO (CP) — NDP Leader Douglas wrapped up his eastern campaigning Friday in four hard-fought Toronto ridings and tossed out a reference to Prime Minister Trudeau as "a Barry Goldwater."

Mr. Douglas used the term in the context of Mr. Trudeau's treatment of student requests for summer jobs and scholarships.

"Mr. Trudeau has outwardly appeared to be a swinger," he told 1,500 at a rally in a working district in East Toronto.

"But behind the facade he has turned out to be a Barry Goldwater."

Mr. Douglas said the prime minister had rejected student pleas with the excuse that education is the responsibility of the provinces.

"But a young person's university career should not depend on his father's bank account and "an NDP government would foot the bill."

The rally was the last stop in a wearying blitz of four ridings, but the 63-year-old leader still had enough kick to perform a modified a gogo dance with a group of folk singers.

Earlier in the day he ad-

NDP CHIEF TO DISCUSS SHIPBUILDING

Mr. Douglas will hold a press conference at the Empress Hotel at 5 p.m. and have a private dinner with the four Island NDP candidates before addressing a rally at Memorial Arena at 8.

Later he will take part briefly in an open-line radio show before leaving at 11:30 p.m. for Vancouver.

Mr. Douglas will speak on shipbuilding, pensions, pollution, housing, and economics at the rally.

Colorful, Rousing Rally Buoys Stanfield Spirit

HAMILTON (CP) — A colorful and uproarious crowd here made Robert L. Stanfield's last major rally of the 1968 election campaign a success Friday night, interrupting him 84 times with applause.

Organizers on stage had to control the chants of "Go, Bob, go" with whistles to keep the applause from cutting too heavily into the hour of TV time.

The rally in the old Palace Theatre, its 2,200 seats filled and about 300 more persons standing, was carried live by CHCH-TV and Mr. Stanfield said it reached 42 Ontario ridings.

He committed his party to a list of priorities if it is elected to power on election day Tuesday. They would "provide the main thrust of our first speech from the throne and our first budget."

The list: Curtailment of inflation; reduction of interest and mortgage rates, stimulation of "new economic growth," elimination of the housing shortage, a revised medical care insurance program and relief from "punitive taxation."

He also committed a Conservative government to swift efforts to deal with pollution; "restoration" of international farm produce markets; a long-range program to "upgrade and enrich cities;" and efforts to make Canada "a magnet for development."

He struck out at the Liberal party for failing to present a program and for being "too incompetent, too careless, and too casual" to manage the economy.

Mr. Stanfield got a boost from Ontario Premier John Robarts, who introduced the former Nova Scotian premier as one who played a large part in "our efforts to build a strong and united Canada."

"We can't afford to take a chance with Canada," Mr. Stanfield said, picking up Prime Minister Trudeau's appeal to voters to "take a chance" June 25.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1968—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

If you happened to be in the Town and Country shopping centre the other evening, you may have noticed a lean, athletic-looking fellow deep in conversation with a couple whose halted buggy held a sleeping infant.

The youngish man in the grey suit was Victoria-born David Anderson, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich. He was getting in some grass-roots, or more accurately, pavement, campaigning, and from my stance against a handy post, I was kind of hoping he would try to kiss the baby.

Sensibly he didn't. The couple passed on to their shopping; two voters more interested in next week's election than in any they can recall.

This attitude is general. The candidate who takes his campaign out of his headquarters to the places where voters come and go, must be prepared to answer some searching questions.

Those who ask them also have lively views of their own, and they don't hesitate to air them. Impressed though they may be with Mr. Trudeau, they want to know how the man who hopes to represent them in Ottawa shapes up.

★

David Anderson, who has lived much of each campaign day at a lope, arrived at the shopping centre well on in the afternoon. It was shirt-sleeve weather, and most of those he approached were willing enough to stop for a chat.

A few were up-Islanders . . . it's surprising how many of these come down to do their shopping in the Douglas Street centres. An occasional shopper had come over from Victoria riding.

To these, Mr. Anderson recommended their own Liberal contenders. And to all he was pleasant even when the conversation took unlooked-for turns.

"Does your Mr. Trudeau have faith in people," she demands, "or does he have faith in God?"

Candidate takes that one in stride. "He has faith in both, Ma'am."

"Yes," his interrogator persists, "but if he is elected, and you are elected, will you rely on people or on God?"

Candidate considers. Then he says, and I did think it was a fair enough answer, "This is politics Ma'am, and in politics we must rely on people. But we trust that God will guide them, and us."

But you can't win 'em all.

"Well," says she, "if Mr. Trudeau isn't going to rely on God, rather than mankind, I won't vote for him."

★

The citizens he stops, or who answer the urgings of a voice-horn on an orange-painted and sign-decked tally-ho parked nearby, are Very Important People. Each has a ballot, and he means to place it well.

The women are frequently concerned about Canadian unity, but the men rarely express views in that direction. They want to talk about jobs and pensions, pollution, control measures, the plight of the Indian and the need for cheaper and more plentiful housing.

Then along comes a man (surely kidding!) who didn't know a federal election was coming up. Another prospect tries to swing the topic to the U.S. presidency; he prefers George Wallace, the Southern gentleman, to McCarthy. Turns out he's a visiting American.

A candidate has to listen as well as speak, and to deal with all queries as best he can.

Here's a friendly type who wants to know whether he can net small native birds for his aviary, and where he can get a Japanese bird net.

Bird-netting could be illegal, the candidate suggests. A check reveals that only the crow, the magpie (none in these parts), the starling and the English sparrow are denied protection by law.

When I shoved off, David Anderson was still hobnobbing with all comers: a knowledgeable, patient man concerned with individual human problems as well as major issues.

In a Parliament that needs such members, I've a notion that he would prove his worth.

NEW BRUNSWICK WET, BUT

B.C. Stays Dry Election Day

New Brunswick residents will be able to buy a drink next Tuesday but B.C. will maintain the traditional drought of election day.

In fact, local cocktail lounges and beer parlors will be cutting off patrons at midnight Monday, half an hour earlier than normal.

THREE DAYS TO GO

No liquor outlets will be open Tuesday, including liquor stores.

New Brunswick has decided to alter the traditional stand and allow outlets in the province to open after the polls close.

B.C. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson could not be reached for comment this morning.

"You can't buy votes with a drink these days. People are smarter than that."

He said he thought most B.C. hotelmen shared his view.

Victoria and Vancouver cablevision systems will blackout telecasting on seven American channels from 4 to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The Canadian Radio and Telvision Commission has ordered the cutoff to eliminate the possibility of early dissemination of voting results from eastern Canada, contrary to the Canada Elections Act.

The act prohibits radio and TV stations from broadcasting results before polls close in their coverage area, but until the proclamation of the new broadcasting act this year, cable TV systems were outside the control of federal regulatory agencies.

"Cable TV systems now are facing licensing and any failure to obey the election law ruling would become a matter of consideration when licence decisions are made," CRTC counsel M. M. Goldberg said.

A Cablevision spokesman said the blackout is the only way of handling the problem because it would be impossible to eliminate from the local network any results that the U.S. broadcasters could slip into the regular programs.

Cablevision will broadcast a sign explaining the problem to viewers. Regular service will be restored at 8 p.m.

Letters urging Island Legionnaires to support Conservative candidate Jeff Brock have been criticized by Legion branches in Sooke, Cowichan and Duncan.

The letters were sent by Duncan lawyer Jack Davie, a member of Legion Branch No. 53 in Cowichan, to Legionnaires in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands constituency where Admiral Brock is running.

Don Williamson, Branch 53 president, said he is protesting to the Legion's Pacific Command and charging that Legion mailing lists were used to direct the letters. The Legion is non-political and its members support all parties, he said.

Sooke branch president A. M. Green said Friday he felt the mimeographed appeals for support were improper.

Mr. Davie said he did not personally have access to Legion mailing lists but some of his friends may have, but he could not say if these lists were used.

The letter sent to members said in part: "As a fellow Legionnaire, I am writing to you to urge you to support another Legionnaire, Jeff Brock, in the June 25th election."

Cowichan and Duncan legion branches have sent protests at the use of the mailing lists for political purposes to Pacific Command.

Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. daylight time Monday.

All manner of electioneering is prohibited in or around polling stations, as are loitering and posting placards.

Youngsters are not permitted to accompany their parents into the polling stations.

Victoria returning officer David Wilson said blind voters may solicit the assistance of the deputy returning officer in the polling station, or they may take a friend as an assistant to mark the ballot.

Single Parent To Be Topic Of Meetings

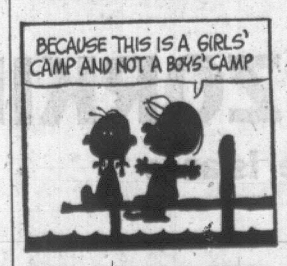
Economic, legal and emotional problems facing the single parent will be discussed in public meetings Wednesday and July 3 at the James Bay Dialogue Centre, 520 Niagara.

A psychiatrist, a social worker and a single parent will form a panel to examine the single-parent situation and answer questions from the audience.

Ron Pollard, a social worker with the Victoria and Family Children's Service, said by sharing problems, ideas and experiences, the single parents "will hopefully be better able to cope with their own problems and the situation in which their children find themselves."

Besides Mr. Pollard, the panel will include Victoria psychiatrist Dr. Pierre F. d'Estrube, and Mrs. Pat Hilborn, president of the Low-Income Group and a single parent.

The meetings' organizers say stress in the past has been placed solely on the economic aspects of the problem and more day-to day aspects have been overlooked. The meetings are designed to examine the "total situation."



PRE-STRIKE STRATEGY?

'Work Less Overtime' IWA Urges All Locals

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Coast locals of the International Woodworkers of America have been asked to cut back overtime.

The request was made in a letter dated last Thursday and signed by Del Pratt of Vancouver, second vice-president of IWA Region No. 1.

The letter, sent to all coast locals of the union, said:

"The coast negotiating committee requests of all locals that they deny authorization for unusual or extraordinary overtime, and that under no circumstances should any agreement be reached allowing production overtime until the conclusion of negotiations."

Eleven days ago, Murray Drew, president of the IWA's Victoria local, announced that members were being asked not to work overtime.

Asked if it is legal to refuse to work overtime, he replied: "Certainly. The guys don't have to work over 40 hours a week."

NO STOCKPILING

The move against overtime was seen as a union effort to prevent companies from placing themselves in an advantageous position if there is a strike or lockout by moving products to areas that could not be legally picketed.

It was not believed to represent any more of a hardening of attitude than, say, the serving of 48-hour strike notice last week.

Negotiations between the IWA, on behalf of 26,000 loggers and mill workers, and Forest Industrial Relations, representing 113 employers, continued in Vancouver this morning and were expected to run into Sunday.

There was no statement by either side on progress, except one report that an offer of 20 cents an hour over two years was made. This, however, is only half the wage increase the union gained in the 1966 settlement.

Driver Killed At Chemainus

James Allan Macdonald, 20, of Chemainus was killed early today when his car swerved out of control and crashed on North Chemainus Road.

RCMP report the youth was alone in the car travelling south toward Chemainus when the accident occurred at 5:45 a.m. The highway was wet.

The car had come out of a slight bend on to a straight stretch when it swerved out of control. The driver was thrown from the car which then passed over him.

A coroner's inquiry has been ordered.

45 Fires Controlled

The 45 forest fires burning in B.C. today are all under control, the forest service reports.

There have been 443 fires to date in the province and conditions are "relatively good" compared with this time last year when fighting 716 fires had cost $258,000.

Firefighting costs this year are $89,900.

Low to moderate fire-hazard conditions exist throughout B.C. except in the Cariboo and Chilcotin regions where the hazard is high.

The weather office reports a high-pressure system moving toward the Island from the Pacific Ocean. It should result in a sunny Sunday with high temperatures of 65 on the coast and 70 inland.

Some 35 new fires — most caused by human carelessness — were reported during the week. Firefighters put out 38 fires.

LACK OF EVIDENCE

Two Go Free On Drug Count

Two of four people jointly charged with possessing marijuana had the case against them dismissed Friday following a day-long preliminary hearing in central criminal court.

Magistrate William Ostler ruled there was no evidence to show possession on the part of Ralph Thomas Paul of 1567 Yale and Michelle Trottier of 679 Mount Joy.

Two other persons charged in the same incident were committed to trial. They are Jeff Green of Edmonton and Gordon Watt of 1658 Earle.

All four were charged June 1 after police searched a car which failed to stop at a stop sign near Mill Bay. The search produced several cans of beer and a small jar of a plant-like material.

"The mere presence of persons in a car is not sufficient to prove joint possession," said the magistrate.

SYMPHONY STARS IN MOVIE

A five-minute film of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra in rehearsal has been shot by Jorgen Svendsen.

With background sound and commentary added, it will be used in a promotional capacity by the Symphony Society.

Ask The Times

Q. In which countries was the movie, Dr. Zhivago, filmed?—G.P.

A. In Spain, near Madrid, and northern Finland, 75 miles from the Soviet Russia-Finland border.

Q. Are epileptics allowed to drive cars?—J.J.S.

A. According to the motor vehicle department, once a person reports himself as an epileptic he is required to produce proof from his doctor he has been free of seizures for the past two years. Re-examination at a later date depends on the doctor's recommendation.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

SITUATION ABOUT NORMAL

High School Job-Seekers Snap Up Every Offering

The flood of high school students looking for summer jobs has yet to reach its crest but the employment picture is brightening after earlier gloomy forecasts.

The job situation is no worse than other years, John Atcheson of Victoria's Canada Manpower office said today.

About 15 to 20 high school students a day are now making enquiries at the local office, he said. A pattern has yet to develop and he suspects many are taking a week or two of holidays before beginning the job hunt in earnest.

ORDERS COMING

Across the province about 215,000 secondary school students are expected to flood the job market in the next few weeks.

Locally, more orders for workers are coming in from employers, said Mr. Atcheson, a trend normal at this time of year.

A request for 250 berry-pickers earlier this week was quickly filled. Students like this kind of work, he said.

Victoria employs about 4,000 in the tourist service industry during the winter and this swells to 8,000 in the summer.

It's too early to assess how closely the summer job demand and call for workers will match, he said.

Most Uvic students looking for summer work have found it. The student placement officer reports that of 300 still registered only about 150 are after full-time jobs.

Job Picture Eased But Still Depressed

Unemployment in British Columbia eased slightly in May but was well ahead of the same period last year.

There were 48,000 men and women without work in mid-May compared with 51,000 in the previous month and 36,000 one year ago.

Federal figures show the unemployment rate in B.C. to be 6.1 per cent last month compared with 6.6 per cent in April and 4.7 per cent one year ago.

The number of persons employed grew to 737,000 from 723,000 in April and 723,000 one year ago.

The B.C. unemployment rate was exceeded only by the Maritimes (6.8 per cent) and equalled by Quebec. Ontario had 3.6 per cent without work, the Prairies 2.7 per cent.

TO FAMED DAUGHTERS

Man's Ashes Sent Abroad

The ashes of Walter Augustus De Havilland — longtime Victoria resident and father of two internationally known film actresses — will be flown to New York, then to Paris and finally to Guernsey in the Channel Islands.

"My husband always wanted to visit Guernsey again," Mrs. Walter De Havilland said here Friday. "He spent his boyhood there and retained very happy memories of the island."

The ashes will go first to Mr. De Havilland's daughter, Joan Fontaine, in New York and then to Olivia De Havilland, who lives in Paris with her French husband, a magazine editor.

★ ★ ★

Mr. De Havilland died in North Vancouver recently at the age of 96. A memorial service was held in Victoria Truth Centre Friday afternoon and conducted by the minister, Rev. Emma Smiley, DD.

Mr. De Havilland and his wife, the former Rosemary Beaton, were married at the Truth Centre in 1960.

"When my husband died, we had difficulty reaching Olivia De Havilland in Paris becuase of the French strike," Mrs. De Havilland said.

"But we contacted Joan Fontaine in New York and, after many delays, she was able to put through a phone call to Paris."

Miss Fontaine is now acting in a play on Broadway. Miss De Havilland has a cad role in Gone With The Wind, now being revived in Europe and North America.
